What Constitutes Advertising:
In order to allay a misunderstanding among some as to what constitutes news and what advertising, we print this very simple rule which is used by newspapers to differentiate between them: "ALL future events, where an admission charge is made or a collection is taken IS ADVERTISING." This applies to organizations and societies of every kind as well as to individuals.

All reports of such activities after they have occurred is news.
All coming social or organization meetings of societies where no money contribution is solicited, inflation charged, or collection taken is NEWS.

If the fashion reporter were compelled to point out the outstanding style features in new fall hats she would be apt to say "soft" and "elaborate." Three representative models in the picture include a wide-brimmed hat, with soft crown, of panne velvet, a small hat of duvetyne adorned with flat rosettes of narrow ribbon, and an off-the-face model of duvetyne embroidered with white beads.

GOVERNMENT - OWNED RAILWAYS

The United States has had an experience with government operation of railways that has left the sentiment for public ownership weaker than before the experiment. But under the leadership of William McAdoo and other able advocates of state and federal socialism, there are still many who pin their faith to the nationally-owned and operated railways.

The Minneapolis Tribune has an illuminating editorial on this subject from which we cull the following paragraphs. They contain solid, convincing facts from our nearby neighbor, Canada, where conditions are not unlike our own and contain good, wholesome reading for the average American:

"Private-owned railroads in the United States are not alone in the matter of financial stress. The public-owned railways of Canada are deep in trouble, as shown by the report of Sir Joseph Flavelle to Premier Meighen. Sir Joseph charges up these troubles largely to mistakes of policy by past governments, to lack of interest by the people in the success of their own railroad property and to the blighting effect of 'politics' manifesting itself in various ways.

"Far from paying their own operating expenses, the Canadian National railways fell short of this achievement by $32,656,000 last year, and Sir Joseph says there will be another heavy deficit this year—a deficit that will have to come out of the pockets of the taxpayers. The public treasury must meet this loss—probably about $10,000,000—and it must also pay out of its coffers about $37,000,000 in fixed charges, such as interest on bonds and debentures. There is an additional fixed charge of $10,000,000 on public accounts against the roads and for further capital expenditure for indispensable terminals. Summing up, the Canadians have, or soon will have, a public-owned railway system against which there will be annual fixed charges of approximately $50,000,000, which, in the absence of an operating surplus, will have to come out of the pockets of the people in the form of taxes."

OCTOBER IS THE MONTH—

- To pick apples.
- To enjoy living.
- To store the root crops.
- To wish the hens would lay.
- To make cider—and become popular.
- To provide a good litter in the chickens' scratch shed.
- To top-dress the apple orchard. Wood ashes are helpful.
- To provide warm quarters for the stock. The first frosts hurt worst.
- To put up the biggest hen or turkey to fatten for Thanksgiving.
- To set fall fruit trees. Many claim they get a year's growth over next spring's trees.
- To sow rye and vetch. It both improves the soil and furnishes winter and spring pasture.
- To think, as you go to the movies, of the old-fashioned corn huskings so popular this month in bygone days.
- To provide a big supply of winter wood. It is far more pleasant to do it now than next January, besides making better fuel.

HIGH SCHOOL FORENSICS

There is a flourishing forensic society at the high school this winter. This is a move in the right direction. Scholarship and speaking ability are surely of equal importance with athletics. If the debating team could be given the praise, the cheers, the hooting which is given the football or basketball teams, we might develop some men and women of real intellectual ability in our own school.—Contributed.

CONTINUANCE OF BRUMFIELD CASE DENIED AT TRIAL

ROSEBURG, Or., Oct. 6.—Charged with the brutal murder of Dennis Russell and with an attempt to substitute the body for his own, Dr. Richard M. Brumfield is on trial in circuit court here.

The state will contend that the defendant, who is said to have been in involved financial circumstances, tried to make it appear as though he were the murder victim, so that his life insurance policies, aggregating 26,000, might be collected.

Brumfield disappeared the night of July 13, when Russell was murdered. He was captured August 12 while working on a ranch near Calgary, Canada, under the assumed name of Norman Whitney.

It was the Roseburg's dentist's strange desire to secure possession of a box of women's lingerie which led to his arrest. It had been learned Brumfield shipped the dainty garments to Seattle on the afternoon preceding the murder, addressing the parcel to "Mrs. Norman Whitney." The authorities had no idea Brumfield himself would venture to recover the box, but hoped it might eventually put them on his trail. But while safely hidden on the Canadian ranch, with the chances all in his favor of being able to maintain his new identity indefinitely, Brumfield betrayed himself by writing to the Seattle express office for the parcel of underwear.

"I don't remember" has been the persistent answer of Brumfield to all questions regarding his actions between July 13 and August 12, indicating insanity will be advanced by counsel for the defense at the trial.

Considerable mystery exists concerning the box of lingerie which Brumfield expressed to Seattle on the afternoon preceding the murder. He purchased various bits of flimsy underwear—but not a complete outfit—at a local store and shipped the box from an adjoining town, to which he made a hurried automobile trip.

In the box, when returned to the authorities here, was a pink silk shirt, which was bought at the store by a strange woman just before Brumfield entered to buy the lingerie. The dentist spoke to her.

It may develop at the trial that there was a "woman in the case."

The prosecution will contend that the purchase and shipment of lingerie by Brumfield before the murder shows his alleged crime was premeditated and will ask for conviction for first-degree murder. The penalty in Oregon is "to hang by the neck until dead."

The prosecution, in outlining its case, announced it expected to prove that Dr. Brumfield visited the cabin of Dennis Russell, who was a rancher living near Roseburg, the night of July 13, pled Russell with drugged liquor, took him out for a "ride" in his roadster, beat in the skull of the rancher and then shot him twice in the back to make sure he was dead. It will further try to prove Brumfield exchanged clothes with the dead man and ran his automobile over an embankment, attempting to make it appear that Dr. Richard Brumfield had been killed in the wreck of his automobile.

Blew Off Victim's Head

The state will further contend that the dentist, following the wrecking of his roadster, blew off Russell's head with a stick of dynamite and removed the jaws of the victim so that there could be no chance of using the teeth to identify the murdered man as Russell. The jaws and other parts of the head have never been found. Besides his own clothing, Brumfield is alleged to have placed his own ring on the dead man's finger.

Mrs. Brumfield, after viewing the remains of the murder victim and until her husband was captured a month later, persistently maintained that the murdered person was the dentist. Whether she knew differently and preferred that her three children should remember their father as a murder victim instead of the brutal taker of a human life, may always remain a secret as far as the public is concerned. For the state has indicated no intention of attempting to make Mrs. Brumfield an accessory to her husband's alleged crime.
