What Constitutes Advertising
 In order to allay a misunderstanding among some as to what constitutes news and what advertising, we print this very simple rule, which is used by newspapers to differentiate between them: "ALL future events, where an admission charge is made or a collection is taken IS ADVERTISING." (This applies to organizations and societies of every kind as well as to individuals.)
 All reports of such activities after they have occurred is news.
 All coming social or organization meetings of societies where no money contribution is solicited, initiation charged, or collection taken IS NEWS.

WORK ON COUNTY VAULT IS MAKING RAPID PROGRESS

The work of pouring the cement for the new county vault for the court house in Jacksonville is proceeding rapidly and the building will be ready for occupancy in four or five weeks. Its cost when completed will be in the neighborhood of $2,000. Arrangements have been made by the county court for securing the brick from the old Jacksonville brick kiln, which is being torn down.

The entire basement of the new vault will be used for the storage of old county records, heretofore stored in a haphazard manner in the woodshed and the loft thereof. Some of these records date back to 1853, when the documents were written by hand. Practically all of the tax rolls, except those of the current year, occupy a niche in the woodshed. Windows will be placed in the basement, so work can be carried on also electric lights.

When the vault is completed the recorder's office will be moved to the room now occupied by the county treasurer, and the treasurer's office will be moved to the front, using the vault now in this space.

As soon as the tax rolls for this year are turned over to the sheriff's office, the assessor's office will be moved across the street to the Ryan building, purchased last spring by the county and fitted up. A part of the assessor's office will be used by the sheriff's office, and another part used in the enlargement of the county judge's office, leaving a small space for the assessor's office, but the main part of the work will be conducted across the street in the annex, which is fireproof, has a vault and barred windows.

County officials believe that these changes will furnish relief to the congestion in county offices, besides affording long-needed and often-recommended protection to county records.

AMERICAN LEGION

Donald Spencer, Adjutant and Legion Editor.

President Harding has designated 12 o'clock noon on November 11 (Armistice day) as the time when all Americans should stop for two minutes in silent prayer, in memory of the "boys who gave their all" for their country. The slogan for this occasion is "Lest we forget." Those two minutes will be foremost in consideration of all American legion posts in their preparations for the celebration of this day.

Under a recent Washington date line we read that the bodies of four unidentified soldiers, one from each of the four prominent American cemeteries in France, will be assembled at Chalons-sur-Marne and a non-commissioned officer of the American army in Germany will select one of them for return to the United States and interment in Arlington. An honor guard, consisting of Major General Allen, of the army of occupation, and a delegation from the Paris post of the American legion will accompany the body to Havre, at which port it will be placed on the battleship Olympia, which sails October 25 for the United States.

Medal of honor men have been designated as official mourners, and transportation has been arranged for each and every one of them to Washington to be in attendance at this most memorable service. Honorary pallbearers will be eight generals of the army and four admirals of the navy, with non-commissioned and petty officers as body bearers. President Harding will deliver the funeral oration.

Ashland post loses a perfectly good member when Leslie R. Phillips, our old standby cook, transfers to Oakland post, of Oakland, Calif. However, to balance the account, we gain Comrade C. E. Banks, who transfers to us from Roland H. Smith post No. 21, of Bath, Me. We are sorry to lose Comrade Phillips and we are glad to welcome Comrade Banks as one of our number. Comrade Banks visited with Ashland post last Tuesday night and gained the friendship of every one present.

Leo Hartley, of Satanta, Kan., was the tallest man in service during the world war. He will carry the post colors to the national convention at Kansas City this month. He stands seven feet and two inches in his socks. He was in the air service. We guess that he was probably used to reach up and pull the planes down to assist in their safe landing. We'll also guess that he was "some man."

The legion boys are greatly pleased with the present outlook for the winter lyceum course. They don't expect to make a lot of money out of it, but from the splendid attendance at their first number, we feel that they will receive enthusiastic support from the people. Season tickets for the next four numbers are only $1.75 each, and there are some splendid entertainers coming.

The members of the post are planning to fill a window in some business place with souvenirs gathered while overseas. This exhibit will be placed during the first week of November and will continue in place until November 11 (Armistice day). Some very interesting and unusual things are expected to appear in this display. Watch for later announcements and then see something worth while. Comrades B. M. Heath, Guy Wolcott, S. A. Peters, Jr., and Gerald Gunter are the committee which will prepare and arrange for the display.

Roy Hartley were all in from Siskiyou to attend the legion meeting last Tuesday night.

Our adjutant, Don Spencer, has some mighty fine specimens of White Plymouth Rock chickens that he expects to take nearly all the prizes in the winter fair. He admits, however, that there is one man in the country who might have some better ones, but he has yet to be shown. Don likes "chickens."

LEGION AND LABOR

It has come to the attention of the state department officials of the American legion of Oregon, in the legion's membership campaign, October 1 to October 3, that ex-service men who have not become members occasionally believe that the legion, the only soldier organization all inclusive of veterans of the world war in existence today, is inimical to labor. This imputation is hotly denied by legion officials.

The capital and labor disputes are admirably summed up in the stand of the American legion, taken at its second annual national convention held in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1920. "That the attitude of the American legion toward organized labor is exactly the same as its attitude toward all groups of American citizens who are interested in a square deal for all in the maintenance of law and order and the protection of the institutions handed down to us by our forefathers; that in any dispute between capital and labor, the interests of the American legion is confined to the maintenance of law and order, and without taking part on either side; in case a situation should arise where life and property are endangered, it is the duty of the American legion member to perform his duty as a citizen, according to his own conscience and his own understanding that it is his duty in such a contingency to assist in the maintenance of law and order; that there is nothing to prevent the individual member of the legion, as an individual, from taking either side in such a controversy, but the legion, as an organization, will not do so."

The legion constitution pledges it to "combat autocracy of both the classes and the masses," and "to maintain law and order." The legion is not a military organization, and has nothing to do with strikes, with promoting them or breaking them. Certain cases, where individual legion members acted in a way offensive to organized labor, brought criticism on the legion as a body until it was proved, beyond a doubt, that these members acted as individuals and that the legion, as an organization, did not sanction their acts.

Organized labor has come to know that the legion is in no way inimical to it. In the past year numerous labor organizations all over the country have endorsed the legion and have urged members to join.

The American legion is an association of the veterans of the world war, including former members of the army, navy, marine corps and army and navy nurses, to make secure and perpetuate here at home those principles for which they served, suffered, fought and their comrades in arms bled and died.

Every man who wore the uniform and is eligible should join the legion. The legion calls upon the same people who backed it up during the world conflict to back it up now that they have returned.

A gigantic membership push is now under way in Oregon through the 104 posts of the legion in this state to enroll an additional 10,000 members.

CALIFORNIA PRAISES ROGUE VALLEY PEARS

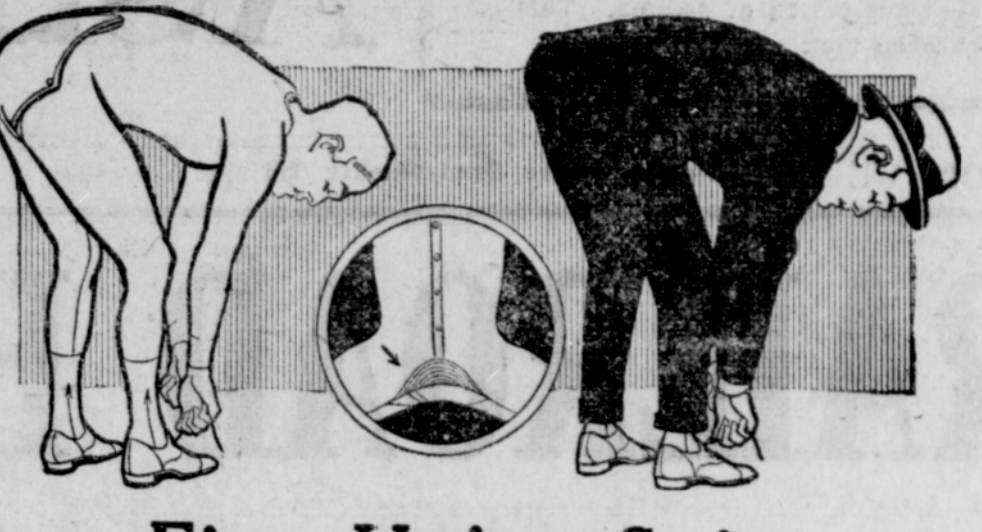

The following letter from Frank T. Swett, president of the California Pear Growers' association, will be of interest to the orchardists of the valley, coming as it does from the Rogue River valley's nearest competitor:

"Mr. W. H. Stewart, President Stewart Fruit Company, San Francisco, Calif.

"Dear Mr. Stewart: It certainly must be pretty smooth sailing up on Bear creek and the folks who grew those Anjou pears must be very proud and happy over breaking the record.

"It must mean good soil, good climate, good culture, good packing, and last, and by no means least, good salesmanship.
 "Heartly congratulations.
 "Sincerely yours,
 "FRANK T. SWETT,
 "President California Pear Growers' Association."

Fine Union Suits and always comfortable

It is hard to believe that anything can be right in every way; and yet it sometimes happens.

What does it? A man makes up his mind to do a thing right; and does it.

GLOBE Trowser Union Suits

are this exactly right thing. To begin with it's the finest underwear made in this country. It is worked out in every detail.

- Fit: Tailored to fit—not depending on the stretch. Too much stretch wears out.
- Seams: Twice sewed, won't break. Ends stayed, will not unravel.
- Shrinking: Special process of laundering—guaranteed not to shrink.
- Soft and Elastic: Secret process makes the fabric soft and elastic, and alive until worn out.
- Buttons and Buttonholes: Buttons sewed on with six-cord thread. Buttonholes tailored. Will not enlarge or tear out.
- Finish: Fine and right—but not finicky—real.
- Comfort: Stretching in every direction—following every movement of the body. The elastic gusset does it.
- Convenient: Big flap with only one button. And yet it doesn't sag or gap.

All this quality for a very moderate price.
