ASHLAND'S BOOMING

If you had brought into your store the furnishings of twenty rooms on top of a pretty well-assorted stock, and had disposed of most of it in a little over a month, you would think so yourself. Four weeks ago our store was chockful and it looked as though it would take an age to get back to normal. Today we are all ready for another Alpha hotel, but, failing that, we will buy anything you may have to dispose of, from a stove, sanitary cot, etc., to a household. We will pay you all they are worth—and more, perhaps. Ring up 175, The Bazaar, on the Plaza.

Girls Attacked—

Police are searching for an unknown man who, police state, attempted an attack on Lena Burton Fraley and Elizabeth Carter, 10-year-old schoolgirls who were returning to their homes early yesterday evening from the Congregational church. After being followed for a considerable distance by the man, who is said to have been smartly dressed and wearing a military overcoat, the girls became frightened at his attentions and ran home. Police say that the man passed the girls several times and attempted to engage them in conversation.

the teachers' institute, which will continue tomorrow. Regular class work will be resumed Thursday.

Among other matters to be considered at the institute are: Tenure of office, living accommodations, teachers' councils and the placement of teachers.

Three Jackson county delegates to attend the state convention of teachers at Portland during the latter part of December will be elected at the institute. The delegates will represent the county interests and will be guided by the decisions made here regarding issues expected to come up at the state meeting.

early history of the state are especially requested by the D. A. R. to attend. Mrs. Gordon MacCracken stated this morning that the dedication exercises will perform a double mission, because of the fact that the first anniversary of Mount Ashland chapter occurs on the same day.

The monument on the Pacific highway will be in full view of passing motorists and is expected to add much to the historical lore of the valley. It was erected near Phoenix because in that location the co-operation of both Ashland and Medford chapters of the D. A. R. could be obtained in raising the necessary funds. The pioneers are honored by the marker as trail blazers who made the first road to the Rogue River valley from Salem in 1846 under great difficulties.

great detriment to the organization. He allows his "spites" to rule him.

It is our candid judgment, formed by talking with a great number of the members of the organization, that if he remains its secretary the organization will be dead in six months. We believe in a live chamber of commerce and desire to give it our hearty financial and moral support, but we can't do it as long as we feel that it is discriminating against its main contributors, refuses to make periodical statements of its expenditures, and uses the boycott as its main persuader.

"Why did you go to the public with the fight instead of taking the matter up with the board of directors of the chamber?" asks another inquirer. We went to the public because he had gone to the public with his boycott. The damage he tried to do The Tidings was with the PUBLIC, not the board of directors.

In order to vent his spleen he advocated a very dangerous doctrine for any community, and that was to go out of town for your supplies, simply because the local merchant won't give away his goods that he bought to sell.

John Fuller is not the man to successfully lead Ashland up to greater accomplishments, because he believes in the meager, smaller, instead of the broad or bigger methods. BE-SIDES, according to our judgment, he is lame in many essential respects in the important elements of training and temperament for such work, and will never become an effective community leader. Ashland needs the most efficient promotion from a chamber of commerce and she cannot get it under the present arrangement.

That's why we insist that Fuller is not the man for the place. We have no favored candidate for the place; we just want the chamber to effectively function.

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE OF SOUTHERN OREGON EFFECT CONSOLIDATION

cific, which company makes a business of studying the things which attract visitors, have told our people that in this part of the state we have a wealth of beauty spots not elsewhere equaled. They point to the wonderful redwood forests along the coast below Crescent City, the beaches along the Pacific, the mountains to the east of us, the beautiful valley between, fishing in our streams and lakes, the unlimited camping sites, the Oregon caves in Josephine county, Ashland's lithia park and auto camp ground, the Modoc lava beds, Klamath lake, the spot selected from the entire world's outdoors attractions by the railroad wizard, E. H. Harriman; Mill Creek falls, the natural bridge and Rogue River gorge between Medford and Crater lake; Diamond and Crescent lakes, nesting in hollows on the summit of the Cascades; snow-capped peaks and lastly, the crowning glory of the northwest, Crater lake, "the sapphire sea of silence."

At the meeting held in Pioneer hall this morning organization was perfected by adopting articles of association and the election of the following officers: Ben C. Sheldon, Medford, president; O. S. Blanchard, Grants Pass, vice president; Fred A. Baker, Klamath Falls, secretary; J. W. McCoy, Ashland, treasurer.

Following this morning's session a chamber of commerce forum luncheon was held at the Hotel Ashland this noon, presided over by Henry Enders, president of the local organization.

Members of each city's delegation were introduced by the secretary of the respective chambers of commerce. Introductions were followed by speeches from the president of the commercial club body. Grants Pass was represented by George C. Sabin, Klamath Falls by E. E. Hall, Medford by Ben C. Sheldon and Ashland by Henry Enders.

The speakers reiterated plans announced at the morning session at Chautauqua Pioneer hall this afternoon. Each speaker dwelt on the possibilities of tourist trade in southern Oregon. Representative Sheldon was urgent in his plea that advertising, and "lots of it," should be resorted to in establishing southern Oregon as a mecca for tourists. The advertising, he urged, should build upon the entire section and should not be resorted to for the boosting of a few places.

The luncheon ended with a series of after-dinner stories, told over the coffee cups and between puffs of cigars. It is estimated that the luncheon was attended by at least 100 out-of-town guests and local members of the chamber of commerce. Early this afternoon the out-of-town guests, members of the chambers of commerce, were taken for an auto tour of Ashland and afterward to the lithia fountain, where a group picture was taken to be hung in "the archives."

Following are members of the delegations from cities of southern Oregon attending today's conference:

Grants Pass—George C. Sabin, P. B. Herman, C. A. Swope, Frank Mashburn, O. S. Blanchard.

Medford—Benjamin Sheldon, O. O. Allenderfer, John C. Mann, V. H. Vawter, H. L. Watter.

Klamath Falls—E. E. Hall, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Martin, Andy Collier, Marshal Hooper, Fred Baker, J. E. Enders, J. C. Thompson, V. A. Delzell.
