What Your Family Doctor Will Say About Winter Washing

Washing at home, steaming over a hot tub, freezing while hanging clothes out on the line, is at the bottom of many severe winter colds...

And even, if it were not positively dangerous, it most certainly is unpleasant and a heavy drain on your vitality.

You'll find much simpler, and fully as economical, to bundle up the family washing and send it to us.

We will wash everything just as carefully as you could wish, dry it; iron the flat pieces; fluff the woolens, underclothes and stockings, and starch such garments as need it.

Then we'll return your bundle promptly, everything clean and sweet, and with only a few pieces left for you to iron—all the distasteful, heavy work over with.

Phone today and have us show you how you can forget wash-day worries.

ASHLAND MAY HAVE TO FEED TRAIN HOBOES

the number is increasing daily, an average of twenty-five men stop in Ashland every night.

Hatcher states that the bunk house is the only one of its kind maintained by any city on the Pacific coast. The room was originally given a heavy coat of plaster when put in use in 1913, but now bears the marks of many knives used to crudely fashion the names of visitors to the room.

The railroad police and employes are practically helpless to stop the crowds of unemployed men who are beating their way, Hatcher says. The best that can be done is to search the men and make those with money pay their way. The others make their way by freight train from one city to another.

Activities of the police and the railroad employes tend to curb the hobo menace and prevent the men from boarding passenger trains. In many cases the men will leave the train just outside the city limits, walk through the city and board the train again at some out-of-town crossing.

Chief Hatcher claims that there is more hobo travel now than at any time since 1913 when "soup lines" were resorted to by the city in caring for the road element. The menu consisted entirely of Mulligan stew, a concoction of the table leaving from local restaurants. Coffee was boiled on the stove in the bunk house.

in good will and high purpose, but with high faith.

"We are met for a service to mankind. In all simplicity, in all honesty and all honor, there may be written here the avowals of a world conscience refined by the consuming fires of war, and made more sensitive by the anxious aftermath. I hope for that understanding which will emphasize the guarantees of peace and for commitments to less burdens and a better order which will tranquilize the world.
