FORD PLANS TO REVOLUTIONIZE INDUSTRY

$12,000 RAISED IN DAY'S WORK FOR HOTEL BONUS

GREATER HOTEL COMMITTEE REPORTS ON WORK FOR $30,000 HOTEL BONUS AT NOON LUNCHEON AT THE ASHLAND.

FEW REFUSALS RECEIVED; SUCCESSFUL FINISH EXPECTED WITHIN FEW DAYS; FORUM LUNCHEON NEXT TUESDAY.

Twelve thousand dollars from twenty subscribers was the result of less than a day's work by the greater hotel committee, which believes that the proposed $30,000 bonus can be raised if everybody does their part. Very few refusals were received by the solicitors, who feel that it is possible to bring the campaign to a successful finish in a very few days. An open forum luncheon will be held Tuesday noon at Hotel Ashland to thoroughly discuss the hotel situation in Ashland. The committee feels that the importance of this meeting cannot be overestimated, since it may prove the turning point of the project so auspiciously begun. Everyone who has the matter at heart is urged to be present. The following members of the hotel committee lunched together today at Hotel Ashland: V. O. N. Smith, H. G. and Henry Anders, M. C. Reid, L. F. Ferguson, A. C. Ninninger, J. W. McCoy, T. H. Simpson, J. H. Fuller, W. H. McNair, G. F. Billings, and E. E. Phipps.

INTEREST INTENSE

AT TRIGONIA WELL
MEDFORD, Or., Nov. 17.—The carload of casing for the Trigonía well arrived Sunday night. Through the courtesy of Mr. Montgomery and the Southern Pacific officials in Portland, this car made a quick trip from Indiana. The excellent showing of oil at this well has attracted the attention of oil men all over the country. Several very large operators are awaiting the future developments at the Trigonía well, and it now looks as though other drilling operations will soon be under way. It is expected to have the casing set by Friday night. With the water shut off there should be a remarkable showing of oil. It is understood that visitors are welcome at the well.

Manila Ship Sunk In Heavy Sea; 58 Los

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 17.—Fifty-eight lives are believed to have been lost as the result of the inter-island steamer Marialusia sinking just outside Manila bay today. There were 130 passengers and members of the crew aboard when the ship sank. The steamer Kai Maru picked up the survivors who said that the second of two huge waves which struck the vessel caused her to overturn. One lifeboat that the crew managed to launch was swamped. No Americans were aboard.

First Snow of the Season

Ashland people awoke this morning to find the mountains surrounding the city covered with a white mantle of snow, which reached down to the higher portions of town, barely covering the ground. During the day the lower slopes of Grizzly were denuded by the ardent sunshine, but the forests on the other side of the city still look like Christmas.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—President Harding today sent a letter to the house of representatives asking that it accept a compromise rate of forty per cent maximum surtax on individual incomes and incorporate it in the next tax bill.

Exhibits Placed In Southern Or. Pioneer Bldg.

The exhibit case in the Southern Oregon Pioneer society building on Mill street now boasts of a set of elk horns, an old stirrup taken from General Canby's saddle, and a blue print of the bronze tablet on the cement road marker recently erected by the Daughters of the American Revolution, Ashland and Medford chapters, near Phoenix. The stirrup, used by General Canby in the Mocolo Indian war of 1872, and the elk horns, were donated to the society by Aunt Lib Smith, old-time resident of Ashland and Southern Oregon, now living on Pioneer avenue. The elk was killed by Lloyd Sands, a Civil War veteran, near the "Hole in the Ground" mine in Josephine county, in 1876. The blue print was given by the Ashland chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. All the exhibits were placed in the building yesterday by Mrs. Emil Peil.

HOUSE VOTES TO FIX MAXIMUM SURTAX ON INCOMES AT 50 PER CENT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—Overriding the wishes of President Harding, the house voted to fix the maximum surtax on incomes at 50 per cent in the pending tax revision bill. The vote was 201 to 173. Under a mandate given by the house in its vote, the house conferees are obliged to accept the senate amendment fixing the surtax at 50 per cent. The house originally fixed the maximum at 32 per cent.

PLAN EARLY SALE CHRISTMAS SEALS BY HEALTH ASSOC.

The State Health association is preparing for their annual sale of Christmas seals next month, according to Mrs. Fred Engle, member of the Ashland committee. This work will be handled through the Red Cross and the public schools. The proceeds go to support the work of the State Tuberculosis association. If each person in the state would buy a nickel's worth of seals the full quota would be sold. Because many will buy none at all, state local workers, others must buy much more than this amount, else the very important work of caring for consumptives and preventing the spread of the Great White Plague will be hindered.

Ashland and Jackson county lead the state in health work and are pioneers in the movement, the first county nurse being employed here, and the first baby clinic held in Ashland, says Miss Marie Fallidine, Jackson county's tireless worker in the cause of health. The baby clinic at the Winter Fair a year ago was considered a great success.

A large number of infants were carefully examined and measured by physicians and nurses, and this data forwarded to headquarters in Portland, where each child was scored and advice regarding care of the child sent to its mother. On account of the cold weather which usually prevails in December and the difficulty of comfortably heating the Armory, the baby clinic was held this year in September. In addition to a county nurse, Ashland and Medford have a special school nurse, Miss Margaret Van Scoyoc, who devotes all her time to the children of these two cities.

The state health association is represented in Ashland by Mesdames H. T. Elmore, Fred Engle, C. F. Tilton, Hal McNair, and Bertha Denton and Prof. G. A. Briscoe. They assist the county and city nurses in health work and aim to promote in every other way possible the physical wellbeing of the people of Ashland.

China Will Plead Full Case Before Delegates

Early Idea of World Disarmament Developed In 1912 By M. C. Reid

EDITOR'S NOTE: M. C. Reid, Chautauqua lecturer, well known locally and member of the committee promoting the $30,000 bonus for a modern hotel in Ashland, came into prominence in Portland in 1912 when he published a newspaper promoting an idea of world disarmament similar to the plan approved now in session at Washington, D. C. In reply to a request for information by Miss Ida Tarbell, well-known woman writer, Mr. Reid has prepared the following article to clarify his work, which, at that time, met with disapproval.

Today I received the following letter from Miss Ida Tarbell, who is without question the most noted woman writer in the United States today, a student of world affairs and regarded by many as an authority upon the subject of political economy.

Hotel Powhatan, Washington, D. C., November 8, 1921.

Mr. Reid, care of Ellison & White, Portland, Oregon.

Dear Mr. Reid: When you were one of my "bosses" on the Coast two years ago you told me of your experience in trying to persuade Oregon to a League of Nations. I remember you told me you put a good deal of matter into newspapers and that you went out at your own expense and hired halls and gave lectures. Now, I have referred frequently in talking to that experience. I have some writing on hand which I should like very much to use it as an illustration and I should like from you a full, free and as humorous account of what you did, as you can make it. In talking about it I have often called attention to the point that when you were doing this (and I don't know the date, be sure you put that in, and also send me copies of the little paper you published) that you were spending your own money and when I was talking I was being paid. You see the point—that the present interest in some kind of an association of nations has come about from sacrifices such as you made.

I hope you will think it worth while to give me the information I want.

I hope you are very well and that your work, whatever it may be, is going fine.

Sincerely yours,

Ida M. Tarbell.

In answering Miss Tarbell's letter, I lay no claim whatever to having originated the idea of a world conference for universal peace. I just happened to be one who did the least among a large number of scattered people who tried to bring the idea to the attention of the people of my own section of the country, and in any case it was a very small section at that. My interest and activity in the matter amounts to about this: Nearly every relative I had was in the Civil war of '61; my father served the full term of four years and was an honored member of the G. A. R. My mother had three brothers, two of whom were captains in the Union army, and one a captain in the southern army. Many years after the war closed my father and relatives would get together and tell war stories by day and night. They gloried in it and seemed in common with others to regard war as a great institution. I did not agree with them, although I was only a very small boy. I wondered then why it had to be, and I am wondering still.

In August of 1912 I thought I had a plan that would captivate the people just as fast as I could reach them and I decided to do some preliminary work which I hoped would soon take on a national scope. It was this: To form what I called an International Peace Tribunal, comprised of representatives chosen from every civilized nation of the world. These representatives would be chosen in any manner that suited their own people best, and their duty would be to organize themselves into a functioning body with a president, vice president, secretary and committee as desired, and sit as an international court before which every trouble, disagreement or dispute between nations should be brought for settlement. Just as our courts settle matters between individuals, so would this body settle disputes between nations.

The plan further provided for the disarming of nations, retaining only enough of a standing army and navy to police the nations of the world and to enforce the decrees of the court.

I do not claim to be the originator of this plan. I only claim to have made a feeble, staggering effort to help put the plan into action in the following way: I started a little four-page paper in Portland which was wholly devoted to this idea. Nobody subscribed for it, and nobody would advertise in it on account of the fact, as they said, that it was devoted to a fool's errand and contained nothing but rot and nonsense. I was given a great deal of free advice by well-meaning people to the effect that I was rapidly losing my influence with business people, and had better go back to my office and

Haz Kik

You have heard the common saying, "He is biting off his nose to spite his face." Well, one of the most efficient methods to accomplish that is for a local merchant to quit trading with other local merchants on account of a personal spite and carry their money to neighboring towns, instead of spending it at home. That is "small town stuff." The kind that keeps the local town always small. A town never grows greater than the people who compose it. Small town people never build big towns. Small town methods never result in large town prosperity. Don't be a small town fellow. Don't deal in small town stuff. Have as many personal grudges as you like—sometimes a fellow can't help feeling that way—but don't demonstrate it in methods that must result in shrinking your town instead of expanding it. By Ashland trade is Ashland made. There is no other way. Don't "bite off your nose to spite your face." It hurts.

PREMIER BRIAND WILL RETURN TO FRANCE IN WEEK

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—China is to get an opportunity to fully present her case to the jury of world power delegates here, it was decided at a meeting of the heads of delegations here today.

After a two hour session behind closed doors, the committee officially announced that a "general discussion" of Chinese questions would occupy the first place in consideration of the Far East problems.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—No further session of the "big nine" on the Far Eastern questions will be held for two days because of the illness of Baron Shidehara, Japanese member of the committee, it was announced today.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—Premier Briand will remain only one week longer as the head of the French delegation here, it was learned authoritatively in French diplomatic circles this morning. The next open session of the conference, according to information received from the French delegation, will be held Monday, when Briand will embrace the opportunity to speak of France's position on the land armament and other questions.

MEDFORD CLINIC TO FIGHT WHITE PLAGUE SATURDAY

Beginning at 9 o'clock Saturday morning a free medical clinic will be held at the Sacred Heart hospital, in Medford, for the purpose of examining and advising anyone having tuberculosis in any stage of the disease. The clinic will be held under the joint auspices of the Jackson County Medical association, State Tuberculosis association, and the county Public Health association. Dr. Pierce will be the examining physician, having held similar clinics in other parts of the state for the Tuberculosis society.

Miss Marie Fallidine, county nurse, is taking an active interest in the clinic, which will be preceded by a free lecture by Dr. Pierce, illustrated with stereopticon views, in Medford this week. Miss Fallidine regrets that it was not possible to arouse interest in the clinic by previous campaign.

"In other Oregon counties," Miss Fallidine says, "many people who never suspected such a thing were found infected with tubercular germs. In addition to the importance of discovering such cases, not only for their own protection and possible cure, but for the sake of others, it is deemed very essential to impress upon tubercular sufferers and others with whom they are associated with, the very contagious nature of the White Plague. Dr. Pierce seeks to show how very important it is that tubercular patients should be carefully isolated from even the other members of their own family, and on no account should be permitted to mingle with other people in schools or similar places. Most cases of infection are the result of carelessness in this respect.

Appeal Made For Red Cross Subscriptions

Mrs. Emil Peil, director for the Red Cross Roll Call, reported this morning that $749.17 had been raised in membership subscriptions received up to today. Accompanying her report of the new members, Mrs. Peil made the following statement:

"The districts are so large that it makes it impractical for the solicitors to cover the territory the second time, consequently many good friends of the Red Cross are not given the opportunity to enroll or renew their membership, as they cannot always be at home. A number have called up, saying they have been overlooked. Will everybody kindly enroll and leave their dollar at either of the following places: Rose Bros., Library, The Salvage Tent, or McNair Bros. All Red Cross material may be found at McNair Brothers drug store.

PROJECT TO GIVE MILLION MEN JOBS IN SOUTH

ASKS GOVERNMENT TO SELL MUSCLE SHOALS, TENNESSEE RIVER; PROPOSES OBJECT LESSON IN WATERPOWER USE

PLANS FERTILIZATION OF ENTIRE COTTON BELT; PREDICTS BIG CHANGE IN FARM LIFE; 'NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITIES'

By ALLAN L. BENSON
(Copyright by I. N. S. Service)

ABOARD TRAIN, Enroute from Detroit to Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—Henry Ford has just given an interview in which he said: "If the government will sell its Muscle Shoals project, I'll put the south on the map. I'll give employment to a million men in the south. I'll establish industries that will have a beneficial effect not only upon the south but upon the whole country, and I will extract from the air nitrates that will be sufficient in quantity to fertilize the entire cotton belt.

"If the government will let me go to work at Muscle Shoals, I'll build a great aluminum plant there, in which aluminum will not only be extracted, but manufactured into machinery parts. I'll establish plants in which cotton can be spun and woven into cloth. I will put to work every horsepower that I can wring out of Muscle Shoals, no matter how many plants it may take to consume it.

"I'll give the whole nation a lesson not only in the use of water-power, but in modern agriculture. The country is full of unused water power that should be harnessed and put to work. It is time we awakened to the neglected opportunities our country presents."

Ford said that the farmers' day is just about to come and predicted that they would, in the near future, live in villages and in houses with all modern conveniences, driving to their farms in automobiles.

The automobile manufacturer declared that he is not interested in the Muscle Shoals project because he wants to make money, but because he wants "a chance to work." He plans to show the whole country what can be done with one of the many water power possibilities now going to waste.

The Muscle Shoals project is in Northern Alabama on the Tennessee river. Henry Ford has at previous times made offers for the purchase of the project which were acceptable to the government.

Post Office Boosts Thrift Stamp Sales

The post office department took advantage of its Thanksgiving day announcement by boosting the government postal savings deposit and treasury savings securities. A fine, large Thanksgiving day lithograph was posted in the Ashland post office this morning with the following words over the fac simile signature of Will H. Hays, postmaster general: "Thanksgiving day three hundred years ago was celebrated by the valiant Pilgrims amid hardships and suffering. Today we live in a land of comfort, of independence, and of opportunity for all. With gratitude we acknowledge the rich rewards of industry, frugality and thrift. The United States government, through the post office department, offers you postal savings for the deposit of your money, and United States treasury savings securities for investment."
