To Undergo Operation—

George Brookmiller, who has been in the Dunsuir Southern Pacific company hospital for ten days, has been taken to the company's hospital at San Francisco to undergo an operation. His little daughter, Edith, is quite ill with the "grip" at her home on Liberty street.

Cartridge Shakers—

In W. H. Hodgkinson's jewelry window there is displayed a salt and pepper shaker made to represent loaded cartridges, with "Ashland, Or.," engraved thereon. Instead of holes, there are tapering slits, which the contents do not easily clog. Neither are they readily upset. One customer last year bought eight sets of these shakers, which serve as souvenirs of the war and of our home town. Cut glass ware at prewar prices, reconstructed pearls and agate jewelry—one piece of which resembles Crater Lake—are other interesting reminders of the holiday season seen in this window.

POSTOFFICE THANKS TIDINGS FOR NEWS PUBLICITY OF DEPT.

Ashland, Or., November 27, 1921. Ashland Tidings: Gentlemen:

Postmaster General Will H. Hays directs me to extend to the press his sincere appreciation for the large amount of space and prominence given the National house number and receptacle census day publicity.

Personally I wish to also extend to the Ashland Tidings my appreciation for the numerous times in which the paper has given publicity to postal information of practical value to the patrons of this office on the occasions when the information was timely. Also for the cordial manner in which this service was performed, the reporters actually "hounding" the office for the opportunity to gather this information.

Respectfully yours,
E. J. KAISER,
Postmaster.

ASHLAND WOMAN DESCRIBES VISIT TO STATE PRISON

Some interesting sidelights on conditions at the state prison and insane asylum at Salem are given by Mrs. O. H. Barnhill, former Ashland resident now teaching in the Central school, Corvallis, who describes her recent visit to these institutions, in company with a Corvallis woman.

"Inside the prison walls," says Mrs. Barnhill, "there are beautiful spacious lawns, rose-bordered walks, flower beds filled with colorful blooms, and everywhere perfect order. Inside the building there are vines, flowers and ferns, with immaculate cleanliness and perfect order. Entering a cell, we found a dainty white bed, with white sheets, pillow cases and spread, and a little table. On the wall hung a picture of the Virgin, with this verse, 'Thou, Lord, seest me,' together with pictures painted by the inmate, a fine-looking ashamed man of about thirty-five. He is a short story writer, convicted of forgery.

"The dining hall is spacious and clean, with flowers all about, but the dishes are common and heavy and no taste is shown in the arrangement of things. In the kitchen are immense kettles four feet deep, used for cooking soup and vegetables. One man was making pies, of which he had about fifty setting on the clean floor, ready for filling.

"In the chapel, where religious services are held and moving pictures shown, there is a piano and curtains and walls decorated entirely by prisoners. In the library there are many books and more flowers.

"In another room we saw the death chamber where Dr. Brumfield is locked, awaiting his doom.

"A convict from Kansas told us that the penitentiary was the best home he had ever known, and that he intended to stay there as long as he could. The prison guards all have square, firm jaws and expressionless faces.

"The insane hospital buildings are set upon a little hill and are surrounded by smoothly-clipped lawns, sprinkled with pretty flower beds and rose-edged walks. Everywhere there are big old elms, whose branches are filled with singing birds and scampering squirrels. Over all hung a soft, bright sky, and all nature seemed to smile. But inside the hospital walls everything is different: no songs or smiles, but an oppressive silence and gloom.

"Again we found immaculate cleanliness. The mattresses and bedding was being aired in the sunlight. The patients were in the hallways, but did not seem to notice us, standing or sitting in vacant attitudes, apparently busy with their thoughts or hobbies. Their expressionless faces and the stillness everywhere is pathetic and oppressive.

"In the chapel the stage was being prepared for Sunday services. The different denominations take turns in conducting the exercises. One of the 200 nurses was asked if she wasn't glad that Brumfield hadn't been brought there, instead of to the penitentiary. She said it would have made no particular difference, as the murderers and would-be suicides they had were, as a rule, better behaved than other patients, although they required constant watching."

B. Street Fire Destroys Auto And Building

Fire practically destroyed the garage building on B street, between Fourth and Fifth, owned by Mrs. M. A. Barron, and an Essex touring car belonging to Edward Wakefield. The latter was insured for $900, but there was no insurance on the building. Firemen state that the fire was caused by the explosion of a gas torch used by Mr. Wakefield while repairing his car, setting fire to the oil-soaked floor and the tar-papered walls of the building.

Mr. Wakefield gave the alarm and, before he could turn around—as he put it—the fire wagon, accompanied by a Tidings representative, was on the spot and a powerful stream of water was playing on the flames, which were quickly extinguished. W. F. Loomis was unscrewing the hydrant at the corner of Fourth and B streets when the firemen arrived, and a large crowd of people soon filled the street in front of the burning building. The latter was originally built for a blacksmith shop, and later was used for a garage, but recently had been utilized only for storing two autos, the second car having been removed only a few days ago.

3,000 REDS ARE KILLED FIGHTING WITH UKRANIANS

POSTOFFICE ASKS COOPERATION OF XMAS SHOPPERS

Third Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover, under whose department comes the division of classification, has issued the following information for the patrons of the postal service governing the Christmas rush:

Postmasters should impress upon their patrons the necessity of cooperating with the postal service to the fullest possible extent in preparing and mailing their Christmas parcels, in order that the heavy holiday mails may be handled expeditiously and satisfactorily, and in this connection should emphasize that the careful observance of the following simple conditions by mailers is of the utmost importance in accomplishing the end desired.

Prepay postage fully on all parcels; also prepay fully the internal-revenue stamp tax on parcels subject to 25 cents or more postage.

Address parcels fully and plainly. Place name and address of sender on all matter.

Pack articles carefully and wrap them securely, but do not seal them, as sealed parcels are subject to postage at the letter rate.

Mail parcels early; they may be marked, "Do not open until Christmas."

Insure valuable parcels.

Written inscriptions such as "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With Best Wishes," and numbers, names or letters for purposes of description, are permissible additions to fourth class (parcel post) mail. Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions not of a personal nature. Other written additions subjects parcels to letter postage. Communications prepaid at first-class rate may be sent with parcels prepaid at fourth-class rates, provided they are placed in envelopes securely attached to outside of parcels. See article 54, page 15 of the July, 1921 Postal Guide.
