CHRISTMAS GREETING

"If wishes were horses then beggars might ride."
So sang Mother Goose in her well-known rhyme
But if wishes meant blessings, this glad Christmastide
Should bring to you joys past all telling of mine.
That giving is better than wishing I know,
And a "will for the deed" never paid a debt due
But when one is bankrupt in all save "good will,"
Be sure the "good will" may be honest and true.
So I wish for my dear ones their wishes fulfilled;
That of every good thing their share may be best;
Kind hearts love them truly, till all hearts are stilled
In the dreamless, untroubled, and infinite rest.
Can friendship do better? Could love ask for more?
I know nothing better, think nothing can be.
If you do, ask St. Nick when he stops at your door,
And say it was "specially ordered" by me.
—ANNA HUSTED SOUTHWORTH.

Task of Time.

"I thought I'd make my Christmas gifts,
and s'prise them all, you see;
I love to sew!" said little Juliet.
"But I guess I'll have to hurry, 'cause
tomorrow's Christmas day,
And I haven't got my needle threaded
yet!"
—St. Nicholas

Clothes of Character

We speak of the superiority of our clothes without reservation—without hesitation—because of the magnificent tailoring effects that is found in every garment we make. Pains-taking care down to the last essential—deliberate tidiness of detail—full responsibility for every seam and stitch—that is what well-dressed men and women expect in our clothes, and we never disappoint them.
