RICKENBACKER URGES CANCELLATION OF WAR DEBT

(By International News Service) COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 13.—"No one can live in the house with a corpse, and that is what we are doing," declared Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, American ace of aces, addressing members of the Kiwanis club here. Discussing the topic "Common Sense in Business," Captain Rickenbacker urged cancellation of both the allied and the German debt.

"The Germans, regardless of their bloody past, have the same right to live that we have and as long as they are on earth and are making the effort to rehabilitate themselves, we should, as Americans, see that they have a square chance at it," continued Captain Rickenbacker.

"They are industrious and will help greatly in rebuilding the world if but given a chance. "The present generation has the greatest opportunity of all time to make this a decent world in which to live, and the chance is now open for them to place the United States on a pedestal so high that any attempt to bring us down will prove futile.

"Statesmanship is the power to see where God Almighty is going and then going ahead and removing the stones from his path. That now is our privilege."

CHICAGO HAD BIG DIVORCE YEAR, 1921

(By International News Service) CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Chicago's astounding 1921 divorce record—approximately 8000 divorces granted during the year—does not surprise Gustave ("Gus") Wedemier, circuit court divorce clerk, who has listened to more divorce cases than any man in Chicago. Judges head divorces for three to six months at a time, but Gus—well, Gus is always on the job.

"Big year?" said Gus. "Certainly. But why not? We still have red-blooded people, haven't we? We always have lots of divorces, and I think it will always be so. But, after all, there are thousands of happy families. The percentage of divorces is really small."

Judge Charles A. McDonald, superior court jurist, said it was the same old story all year—drunkenness, cruelty, desertion and infidelity.

"The war, the eighteenth amendment, the depression in business all helped," he said. "Nothing seems to act as a check. Same old story told in the same old way."

BRITAIN'S 1922 ARMY LESS THAN 235,000

(By International News Service) LONDON, Jan. 13.—The British army totals for next year will run below 235,000 men, according to a statement by the war office.

The estimates for the current financial year gave the number of British troops to be on the establishment of the army, exclusive of India, as 201,127, but the present strength is some 10,000 below that figure, and the colonial and native Indian troops, which were shown in the estimates at 84,200, have been reduced by about one-half.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

LIVE LIKE A ROSE.

THE year is coming to a close: The days are falling one by one Like petals of a dying rose. A bloom that still in beauty goes When all her garden days are done.

And what is life? It is a year. However many years it span— In childhood's springtime to appear, To live the summer of a man, And then to feel the autumn here.

And what is death? The final day Of life's short year, a day like these When summer puts her garb away And winter winds begin to play Their wild, tempestuous harmonies.

Live like the rose: The roses bloom Not for themselves but for the earth, Pink lamps that garden walls illumine— A decoration for our mirth, A holy solace for the tomb.

Die like a rose: Its petals fall, But it is sweetness to the end— Oh, it is something, after all, To be a rose beside the wall, Beside the way to be a friend.

RUSSIAN FAMINE AREA IS WIDELY EXTENDED

Intense Suffering Seen on 2,000-Mile Trip Through Steppes and Plains.

The numerical and geographical extent of the great famine cannot be given. There is today and has been as much food available in Samara, for those who have money, as in Baku, on the Caspian sea, 2,000 miles distant. The Russian refugees from Bolshevism in Constantinople are suffering from hunger and lack of clothes almost as much as those Russians in Poltava, and they, in their turn, as much as those in Orenburg.

An Associated Press correspondent completed a journey from Tiflis, Baku, Astrakhan and Samara, and everywhere found intense misery, the most sordid of which was seen in the dreary steppe region between Tiflis (Georgia) and Baku (port of Azerbaijan, on the Caspian sea).

There revolution after revolution for five years has left a trail of destruction and ruined houses and wrecked railway stations which cannot be matched in Russia. Added to the lack of food, is the constant battle with malaria, cholera and typhus.

Begging is rather the exception than the rule everywhere in the famine regions.

In the worst areas there is far more hunger swelling than was seen in Vienna in the winter of 1918. This is the last stage of starvation, and when it comes neither food nor medicine will help.

While there is perfect order in all Russia, on every hand the individual struggle for life, for daily food, is bitter and hard. No one thinks of anyone else. Robbery is limited, as robbers are shot when caught, but trickery in small trading is the rule.

A person invited to a meal will eat twice what good manners would permit. He is laying in a stock of food, building up his body, he figures, for the winter cold. Those with money are hoarding food. In some places peasants refuse to sell bread at any price. They are afraid of the winter famine.

CARROT LOCKED UP

Grew in a Padlock and Was Found So When Digging Time Came.

When a tiny carrot seed began to sprout in the garden of Roger W. Pierce of Somerville, Mass., last spring, it wondered and wondered at the cold and rusty sides of its bedfellow. When the carrot grew old enough to understand what the grownup vegetables were talking about, he found that his bedfellow was a rusty padlock.

"Locks keep folks from taking things that don't belong to them," Grandfather Beet told him.

"Well, if that's the case, I'll get locked up, so that no one will steal me from the ground," replied the young carrot. The result was that it kept right on growing, and went right through the hasp. And when Pierce dug his carrots he found one securely locked up.

MULE IS REPROACHFUL

Walked Back to Barn After Automobile Hit It.

Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Devling of Galeton, Pa., were motoring with a party of friends on the State road, near West Pike, and were bowling along at the pace so good a road invites, when a mule walked out of a barn directly in front of the car.

There was no time to stop, it was impossible to go round, and Devling did the only thing remaining: He struck the mule amidships, as near as he could direct the prow of his boat, and "everybody" skidded down the pavement. The front of the car was smashed, the radiator crumpled, hood and fenders irretrievably bent, and it is estimated that $150 will be needed to repair the car.

No one in the car was hurt. The mule arose, rolled a reproachful gaze at the driver, as much as to say, "How come?" and stalked back into the barn.

Germany Granted Moratorium By Commission

CANNES, France, Jan. 13.—The interallied reparations commission has decided to grant a partial indemnity moratorium to Germany. Under the agreement worked out by the reparations commission, Germany will be called to pay 31 million gold marks every ten days until the new plan is effective.

DON'T SIP MOONSHINE AND QUARREL WITH WIFE

(By International News Service) HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Jan. 13.—Here's a tip for the makers of moonshine liquor and the drinkers of it. Keep on the good side of your wife. Don't let your foot slip after indulging in a drink of the forbidden stuff and pick a quarrel with her.

The reason is given by the arrest of Rex Bennett. The police were called to his house by his wife, who preferred an assault charge against him. Bennett received the policemen in his bedroom. Perched on a roof just outside his bedroom window they found two gallons of moonshine liquor; so they gathered up the liquor and Bennett, took them to headquarters, where the man had to face a charge of having moonshine liquor in his possession.

CALIFORNIA HAS A NEW INDUSTRY

(By International News Service) SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—An act of the legislature has created a new industry in California—toyon ranching. The legislature by law forbade picking of the red berries generally known as California holly.

To provide a supply of the red berries highly prized for Yuletide decorations, ranches have been started for their growth.

The toyon is of the rose family, and blooms from July to August, its berries lasting from November to spring.

The largest known toyon tree stands on Stanford university campus. It is tall as a mature oak and is estimated to be centuries old.

PINE BEETLES INFEST SOUTHERN OREGON FORESTS

tack and kill other trees. According to present plans most of the treatment of the infested timber will be carried on during April and May, 1922.

The beetle against which the fight is to be directed is known as the western pine beetle, which entomologists describe as an insect about one-eighth inch in length and which attacks only the yellow pine of Oregon, Washington and California, Montana and Idaho. The rapidity with which it breeds occasionally gives rise to their occurrence in enormous and destructive numbers, causing heavy annual loss of merchantable timber.

to Famous Players-Lasky was never made public. This was the biggest contract indulged in by Zukor up to that time.

Bought Old Mansion While "Fatty" was getting quickly wealthy, several years ago, he purchased the magnificent West Adams street home of the Miners.

A more Bohemian atmosphere was created with "Fatty's" purchase of the house, for which he is said to have paid almost $100,000. From that time until his arrest, party followed party. The motion picture colony when bored could always find relaxation in "Fatty's" home. Wine and song were always there to charm the boys and girls.

Late in 1920 "Fatty" sailed for France and was greeted there so enthusiastically that he was severely injured. A number of men in a crowd attempted to carry "their hero" on their shoulders, but they did not calculate his avoirdupois carefully enough, and "Fatty" fell to the pavement.

Early last fall came rumors from the east that he was about to be married, but "Fatty" denied this by saying he was still married to Minta Durfee, the actress, and had not desire to commit bigamy. His arrest brought about a reconciliation.

Arbuckle now is "broke." The money for his defense was furnished it is understood, by Joseph M. Schenck, well known producer, who owns Arbuckle's contract. He has declared that he put up the money because he was a friend of the comedian and because he believed in him.

ject a study is made of the soil and plants, selection of seed, fertilizing, attention during the growth of the plant, and the harvesting, the origin of farm animals and their use. Considerable attention is given to fruit growing in regard to the best varieties, propagation, cultivation, diseases, pruning, spraying and harvesting. This is an exceptionally good course for the boys and should be followed up in the higher grades of our local schools the same as domestic science is for the girls.

The eighth grade girls are given instruction in cooking while the boys study commercial geography, with all the other studies remaining practically the same as in the previous grade.

Some twenty pupils will finish the work in Junior high this semester, and be ready to enter high school.

Professor Ira Wilson is the genial and efficient principal and is ably assisted by the following teachers: Miss Beaver, English; Miss Blume, history and geography; Miss Spencer, grammar and arithmetic; Miss Reed, art, penmanship and science; Miss Morehouse, history and arithmetic; Miss Allen, grammar; Miss Abraham, domestic science; Miss Carver, physical training for the girls; Miss Marsters, music, and Miss Ruh, biology in the lower grades.
