THRIFT IS A DUTY

The third annual observance of National Thrift Week, which began Tuesday, the anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birth, should be more earnest than its two predecessors, because the economic situation today is of a character to emphasize the value of thrift. The thrifty man who, during the period of prosperity did not spend all of his income, but laid aside such of it as was not necessary for his immediate happiness and comfort, occupies a fortunate position today in contrast with his fellow worker who failed to save.

The benefit of saving has been brought home recently to thousands who previously had given it little thought, and they will be in a receptive mood for the lessons which the civic organizations, the banks and insurance companies are to teach in connection with Thrift Week.

Thrift does not simply mean putting money in the savings bank. It calls for protecting one's dependents through life insurance, and in making oneself independent of the landlord by owning a home. Special days have been designated for the consideration of such things as these. During the war thrift was urged for patriotic reasons. Practice of it today is no less patriotic, because to do that which makes for a greater America is patriotism of the highest sort, and those countries which had the thriftiest inhabitants have always been the greatest.

 Bronze medal—McAllister, aged 15, schoolboy, saved George A. Walters aged 12, schoolboy, from drowning, Pine River, Minn., July 26, 1919. While swimming in deep water in Sand lake, 120 feet from the bank, George became frightened and lost control of himself. He called for help, and McAllister waded 260 feet and swam 80 feet to him. He reached George as he was about to sink for the third time, and George immediately got his arm across McAllister's back and attempted to climb upon him. McAllister purposely sank and pushed George from him. He then took hold of George under the arm and swam with him 30 feet to wadable water, submerging himself three times during the swim to rest momentarily on the bottom.

Fatty Fears To Lose Love of Children

SAN FRANCISCO.—"It's not prison I'm afraid of. It's not the loss of fame or fortune. It is the loss of regard; the loss of affection; the fact that the kids may think I'm guilty, that hurts me."

Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle, on trial for a second time, charged with taking the life of Virginia Rappe, was speaking.

Smoking a cigarette in the corridor outside the court room, he talked for the first time since his arrest.

"I'm innocent," Arbuckle began slowly. "All I ask is a square deal," he went on.

"All I want is for the public to withhold its judgment until the jury of twelve men and women has decided whether or not I am guilty."

Suffered Much, He Says

"I have suffered the tortures of hell since I was arrested. The thought that some people might have believed I was guilty of causing the death of that poor girl is torment."

"Bound by silence in the past I had to face the accusation night and day without answer, for the sole reason that all the evidence in the case and purported statement of witnesses were purposely twisted and turned so as to injure me, and my attorneys were certain that the same would happen to anything I might say."

Fatty hesitated, his cigarette crunched beneath his feet, and started rolling another.

"Why, the women and children of the world were my audience," he went on.

"I made them laugh. I made them happy. They liked 'Fatty' of the films."

Not Afraid of Prison

"No, it isn't the prison I'm afraid of. It's not loss of fame or fortune. It is loss of regard, loss of affection—the fact that the kids of the world may think I am guilty; that hurts me."

"In my heart I feel that the American people are fair and that after a full hearing has been had in this case, I am not going to lose their esteem."

"I'm a victim of circumstances. If I were not, I doubt if I would be where I am now. Nothing I ever got in life came to me without a struggle. My life as a kid was a hard one. I fought for everything I got. There was no gold spoon in my mouth when I was born."

"When success came to me it was like a dream. And if there was one real reward in it—yes, a reward greater than the money and the fame it brought me—that was the knowledge that I brushed away the cares of millions of people and made them forget their troubles and laugh."

"Why, whosoever I would go, the children would follow me and call me by name. It was good to have their love and regard that way. It was worth more than all the money I made. And I know in my heart that I never consciously did

BREAD PUDDINGS

The humble bread pudding is, perhaps the most familiar of all hot desserts. However, it is not always a popular favorite, and, sad to say, not always palatable, because too much bread is used in its making. The bread in a bread pudding is used merely to hold the other ingredients together and to supply a background for flavors, not as a means of using a quantity of dry bread. A well-made bread pudding is a very palatable dessert and is capable of an almost endless number of variations.

Remember, a pudding of this kind forms a hearty, substantial dessert and is also easily digested. The following rules, if carefully adhered to, will enable anyone to make a delicate, smooth pudding. Always soak the bread in water, scald the milk, add other ingredients, and bake the pudding slowly. The bread must be soaked in water to produce lightness and delicacy. The milk is scalded because scalded milk makes the pudding smoother than raw milk.

Pudding Is Baked Slowly for Reason

The pudding is baked slowly in order that the eggs and milk will not curdle as they might if baked in too hot an oven. The bread should be soaked in the cold water to cover for 20 minutes or more. Then press out all the water and crumble the bread into small pieces. Scald the milk and add salt, sugar, shortening, the well-beaten eggs and flavoring. Pour the mixture over the bread and stir well. Pour all into a well-greased pudding dish, and bake about 40 minutes in a slow oven for a medium-sized pudding. If the dish containing the pudding is placed in a pan of hot water and baked, there will be less danger of too much heat. All custard mixtures are better baked in this manner. The mixture will appear thin, but will thicken sufficiently when baked.

If a very thick pudding is desired more eggs may be added, or a teaspoon of cornstarch may be mixed to a thin paste with cold milk and added to the scalded milk. Use this quantity of cornstarch for each pint or two cups of milk. More bread will also thicken the pudding, but it will not be so delicate. A standard foundation for bread pudding is one slice of bread cut one and one-half inches thick, or one cup of coarse bread crumbs; two cups of milk, one tablespoon of butter, a quarter teaspoon of salt, three-quarters of a cup of sugar, two eggs and one teaspoon of vanilla. This foundation may be varied in many appetizing ways.

anything to forfeit the love those kids held for me.

Bewails "Gossipy"

"Guilty? The law says a man is not guilty until he is proved so. But, my friend, let a man once be arrested and charged with a crime; let his name go broadcast in those first cruel stories, regardless of the fact, and he is branded guilty."

He stopped again.

"Don't worry so," urged Minta Durfee, maybe a little chidingly.

"I have suffered," the big comedian went on, speaking softly.

"All I ask in repayment of the wrong done me, is that the world which once loved me, now withhold its judgment a little while and give me a chance to prove before another jury that I am innocent."

SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE TONIGHT AT PRES. CHURCH

D. E. Millard. At 7:30 George M. Mordoff will talk on adult Bible class work, which will be followed by a song. Mrs. Clara Essen will deliver an address on the "Price of Preparation" at 8, followed by Miss Georgia Parker, who will speak on "Workers Together." It is hoped that all of those attending may be able to go away feeling that they have been greatly benefitted by the meeting.

FERTILIZER ORDERS DUE

Prices on fertilizers should be obtained at once so that orders may be placed without delay, says a bulletin from Oregon Agricultural college experiment station. Land plaster should be applied as soon as the first warm weather comes. Other fertilizers may be applied after plowing, but as soon afterwards as possible in order to allow the materials to go into solution in time to be effective for the first crop. Quantity orders of limestone will be necessary if the state plant is to continue in operation, and the price will depend largely, it is said, on the volume of output.

God's Kingdom Imminent

"Millions Now Living Will Never Die"

Six thousand years of human history is in the past and despite the boasts of modern civilization that we are slowly evolving to a better state, mankind has just emerged from the most diabolical war of all time. The natural consequence is a lowering of moral and physical standards the world over. Instead of the prophesied "spiritual uplift" and prosperity, the aftermath of the war is a world-wide crime wave, famine, pestilence, social and political disorder and unrest. What is the remedy? What hope is there for a better day? Are the dark clouds of trouble surrounding the world the harbingers of a colossal universal disaster, or will Divine intervention save the race?

In this thrilling and comforting lecture, the speaker will produce evidence that the Kingdom of God is already in process of establishment and that there are millions of people who will never go into the tomb. This Kingdom is not a far-off, mysterious something which has nothing to do with practical human affairs, but is a literal government in the earth which will solve every problem which confronts the world and satisfy the desire of every living creature.

Lyric Theatre
Wednesday, Jan. 25
 at 7:30 P. M.

Mr. MacMillan has just returned from an eight months' tour of Great Britain, France, Belgium, Germany and Scandinavia. He is a very close observer and student and has a fund of intensely interesting information concerning conditions in Europe, Canada, and the United States, which greatly strengthens his contention that the old "world" (the old order of things) has ended and that the new "world" is being ushered in.

This lecture has comforted multitudes bereaved by the world war, epidemics and attending sorrows. So great has been the demand that it has been amplified and published in book form, including 500 Scriptural proof texts. Those unable to hear the lecture may have a copy by sending 25 cents to 475 Iowa Street, Ashland.
