Oil Shale Exhibited

C. C. Bond, of the pool room on North Main street, is exhibiting some oil shale taken from the Colonel Munday well yesterday, in the shape of a core from the new diamond drill recently placed in the hole. The shale has a strong odor of oil, seemingly saturated with it, and is said by geologists to be genuine oil shale. The well is now at about the 1200 foot level.

Returned Home

Mr. and Mrs. Jona Barrett and son, of Telsat, who have been spending the winter visiting Mr. Barrett's parents in Canada, have returned home.

Change of Date

The Boy Scouts of troop two will meet on Friday evening, January 27 instead of Monday, on account of the absence of the scoutmaster.

Week End Guests

Mrs. Helver Morgan and son, of Dunsmuir, and Mrs. Vivian Henderson, his sister, of Yreka, were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Osker at their home at 83 Morion street. Mrs. Morgan came over to consult an ear specialist in regard to trouble her son has been having with his ear. Mr. Morgan, who is an accountant for the Southern Pacific company at Dunsmuir, came over Sunday morning and spent the day visiting and returned home with the family in the evening.

ORDER SEED CORN NOW

Because of early frosts last fall much seed corn was injured, and farmers expecting to grow that crop should obtain their seed at once to be sure of getting good seed, according to a Oregon Agricultural college bulletin. In selecting ears from home grown supplies, take those that are well matured, sound and medium rough. Avoid loose and discolored ears and those having shredded shanks, as these may be diseased.

Terms of New Naval Agreement

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—The new naval treaty, according to its preamble, is based upon a desire for "maintenance of general peace" and for reduction of armament competition.

The preamble says: "The United States of America, the British empire, France, Italy, Japan, desiring to contribute to the maintenance of the general peace and to reduce the burden of competition in armaments."

"After received, with a view to accomplish these purposes, to conclude a treaty to limit their respective naval armaments and to that end appointed as their plenipotentiaries, who having communicated to each other their respective full powers, found to be in good and due form, have agreed as follows:"

Then follows the treaty proper divided into three chapters. The first contains 20 articles.

Divided into Four Parts

The second is divided into four parts—capital ships to be retained, rules for scrapping, replacement and definitions. Chapter three with miscellaneous provisions contains the articles relative to common action in case of desired modification of the treaty and in case of a power becoming involved in war.

The article dealing with capital ships tonnage is number four in chapter one, and reads: "The total capital ship replacement tonnage of each of the contracting powers shall not exceed in standard displacement for the United States 525,000 tons (533,400 metric tons); for the British empire, 525,000 tons (533,400 metric tons); for France 175,000 tons (177,800 metric tons); for Italy 175,000 tons (177,800 metric tons); for Japan 315,000 tons (320,940 metric tons)."

Article 10 Temporarily Omitted Article 10, providing for limitation of Pacific fortifications and naval bases, is omitted temporarily waiting upon Japan's answer as to its acceptability.

Article 24, the last of the series, makes positive the ratification of the treaty shall follow American constitutional methods and calls for deposit of ratification as soon as possible. It says: "The present treaty shall be ratified by the contracting powers in accordance with their respective constitutional methods and shall take effect on the date of the deposit of all the ratifications, which shall take place at Washington as soon as possible. The government of the United States will transmit to the other contracting powers a certified copy of the process verbal on the deposit of ratifications."

The present treaty, in English and French, shall remain deposited in the archives of the government of the United States and duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that government to the other contracting powers.

Scrapping Program Detailed How the great naval powers will scrap the proudest of their fighting ships has been charted with exacting detail in an annex to the treaty. Definite provisions also have been made for replacements. The chart obtained shows America must scrap 31 vessels when the treaty is effective; Great Britain 22, as well as abandoning her building program; Japan 18, as well as abandoning her projected building program.

After the first big batch of ships is scrapped this year, America scraps no more until 1934, but Britain must scrap four more in 1925, and begin anew on scrapping in 1934, while Japan after her first scrapping does none until 1934.

Italy, France, Replace Early The Pennsylvania, New Mexico and Tennessee, America's largest ships actually in service, will remain until 1937, 1939 and 1940, respectively, while two of the most modern ships, the Colorado and the Washington, which are to be completed this year, will go to the junk pile in 1924.

Among the better known of the British ships, the following go to the scrap heaps thus: King George V, 1925; Elizabeth, 1935; Royal Sovereign, 1936; Renown, 1940; First Hood, 1941.

France and Italy start replacing in 1927 before the end of the naval holiday. Italy is chartered for a 45,000 ton ship—the largest in the world, for 1932, this extra tonnage to be offset by a 25,000 ton ship in 1933, but it is believed there is an error in compilation there.

our support to keep these schools up to the high standard already attained. He further states that private donations are responsible for many of the advantages that California schools enjoy and that this is the greatest opportunity of the generation for people to lend assistance to the state of Oregon by making donations for the maintenance of these higher schools and for professorships in them. He expressed the hope that the state college and university would be made a part of our public school system and the tax to cover these institutions levied the same as for our regular school system.

He closed his address by stating that the Chamber of Commerce must touch every interest in the community and that there must be mutual good will and co-operation between all interest for the betterment of the community.

THE FRIENDLY PATH

By WALTER I. ROBINSON.

THE sun cannot shine constantly. There always will be some rainy days.

A person who would throw away his umbrella or his raincoat every time the clouds disappeared would be considered a lunatic.

One meal will not satisfy our stomachs the remainder of our lives. We must eat every so often if we wish to live and avoid hunger. No one would think of eating everything he had if he didn't expect to get another meal within a reasonable time.

These assertions may seem but primary lessons on the importance of vision. Yet many of nature are could study them with benefit. Experience already has taught quite a few that looking ahead is essential to happiness and comfort.

Wages and incomes during the last few years have been higher than ever before. Luxury buying and extravagance in pleasure seeking have gone along together. Many thought they had struck a "well of gold" that never would go dry.

But the inevitable has happened. Those who demanded exorbitant profits and those who forced high wages and who, in both instances, spent as fast as they received, are beginning to see the folly of their ways. In many cases the fruit has an extremely bitter taste.

A little vision in the beginning would have prevented cries of distress. Some may find it too late to benefit from their lesson since they are sliding down the precipice. These will have many difficulties in climbing back over the jagged rocks.

Few there are who cannot still make a start in the road of thrift and fairness which is the sure way to prepare if "rainy days" should come. (Copyright.)

SOUTHERN PACIFIC EMPLOYEES MAY BUY STOCK IN CO.

holders—and the present proposal is intended to make it easy for employees to buy Southern Pacific stock in the open market. The company of course, cannot control the future market price of the stock or the amount it will be able to pay in dividends, as earnings largely decide that.

"Here is the plan. Any employee may apply for the purchase of from one to fifteen shares of stock, according to his ability to pay for it. If after having begun the purchase of a less number than fifteen shares, an employee desires to buy additional shares to the limit of fifteen, that can be arranged for him. After having completed any specified purchase the employee may then begin to buy additional shares, but under no circumstance may an employee be buying under this plan a total of more than 15 shares at any one time, but he is not limited to the total number he may finally purchase. To take advantage of this plan, the employee should make application on the regular forms provided by the company through his immediate employing officer, by whom such application will be sent without delay through the proper channels to the controller of the company at New York. The controller will then arrange for the treasurer to purchase at once the designated number of shares at the market price on the New York stock exchange, and the employee will be sent a statement as to the cost. No charge is made for this service. The stock will be paid for by the employee at the rate of $5 a month on each share until the purchase is completed, such payments to be deducted from his wages once a month. However, the employee has the privilege of paying off in lump sum the unpaid balance on his stock at any time. The company will charge the employee 6 per cent interest on the cost of the stock purchased for his account, but will credit him with dividends paid on the shares held for him. Dividends have been paid regularly since June 30, 1907, at the rate of $1.50 a quarter, or $6 a share annually. At the market price of the stock when this is written—about $81.50—this rate of dividends gives a return of not quite 7 1/2 per cent on the investment. Thus dividends will more than offset charges made for interest.

"The dividends are payable to the stockholders according to record of the company at the close of business on the last day of the second month preceding the month in which the dividend is payable. For example, a stockholder to receive the dividend payment on April 1, 1922, must be owner of the stock at the close of business on the last day of February, 1922, and be so shown on the books. Any stock purchased and transferred on the books of the company between the last day of February and the first day of April will not be entitled to receive dividend payment on April 1, but will receive dividend payment due July 1. Failure to pay three successive installments by an employee who remains in the service will terminate that employee's right to complete the purchase. In such a case the stock purchased for his account will be sold at the market price and the resulting balance paid to the employee in cash.

"In the event of permanent disability or death of an employee before his stock is fully paid for, the employee or his estate may complete the purchase in monthly installments or lump sum and receive the stock, or may receive the number of shares then fully paid for and any fractional part left over in cash. The company reserves the right to amend or withdraw this stock purchasing plan at any time provided, however, that any such amendment or withdrawal shall not apply to stock purchases already made for account of employees. The stock purchasing plan is available to all employees, including officers of the Southern Pacific company and all proprietary companies whose lines form a part of the Southern Pacific transportation system."
