TT IS so many months since Americans have taken trips for pleasure that we must brush up a little on cumstances from those of pleasure travel that as far as the small points of manners go it was an entirely different proposition.

Under ordinary circumstances the woman ocean voyager has a good many attle; W. W. Dodson, W. H. However, these letters need not be long, as surely no one would expect you to miss all the pleasure of being on deck during the first of your voyage in order that you might dwell at great length on your appreciation of their generosity.

The question is sometimes asked whether it is in good form to use the stationery such as is provided by the ocean lines, or whether it is not better to use one's own stationery. Good form seems to sanction the use of the ship's stationery, and it is surely more interesting to those who received letters to have them on this paper.

Suppose you know no one on shipboard. Must you therefore keep to other passengers? Certainly not. It is quite good form for you to begin with a courteous good morning addressed to those whom you meet at cups of flour. table or whom you pass every day seated next to you on deck and to resent any such friendliness on the

A chamois kept especially for the purpose will hasten the drying and the top must not be folded until it is thoroughly dry. The upholstery, if of cloth, is best cleaned by sponging with water containing a little salt and alcohol. "In cleaning the body, be sure to remove the nozzle of the hose and flow the water over every part of the body. This will serve to wash off most of the dust and also loosen the mud. In cases where the car is very dirty it is best to do this and then let it stand for a few minutes, before going over it again with the hose. Then take a soft sponge and follow the hose over the body. If certain portions are grease spotted these should be washed separately with pure water and castile soap, but except in this one instance
