Big Savings For The Thrifty Housewife

Few homes indeed do not feel the need of economy. The necessity of making every penny count touches the purse of every housewife. It is doubtful if there is a single article employed as a food or in the preparation of food that demands more buying wisdom than Baking Powder. Upon its quality depends the success and economy of the bakings themselves.

Calumet Baking Powder enables the housewife to make three worth while savings. She saves when she buys it—it is moderate in price. She saves when she uses it—she uses only half as much as is required of most other powders. She saves materials it is used with—it never permits bake-day failure. Any woman can use Calumet with absolute certainty of best results—delicious, tasty bakings that are pure and wholesome.

True home economy of time, material and effort is completely handled in Reliable Recipes, the 76-page Cook Book and Household Hints. A copy is yours FREE—for the asking. Address Home Economics Dept. Calumet Baking Powder Co., 4100 Fillmore St., Chicago, Ill.—Adv.

HARD TO TAME MISSOURI RIVER

Army Engineers Engaged in Keeping It From Swallowing Farm Land.

ONCE GREAT TRADE ARTERY

Before the Coming of the Railroads Steamers Plowed Its Waters as Far as Fort Benton, Mont.—Need Special Boats.

Kansas City, Mo.—Taming the Missouri river, outlaw among American rivers, is the task of the United States army river engineers, whose headquarters are here. Their sector is the Missouri river, from Fort Benton, Mont., to a point opposite Alton, Ill., where the Missouri, with a roar and a rush, joins the Mississippi and thereafter sweeps with some degrees of calmness to the Gulf of Mexico.

The task of the river engineers is to coerce the Missouri river into "staying out," and to coax it out of its long-time custom of changing its channel whenever the whim moves it. This may sound like an exaggeration, but to anyone who has spent a day on the river with the army engineers, and has seen the Missouri eating away at a cornfield with wicked energy, swallowing up earth, corn, weeds, fences and trees, it seems sometimes as if the river actually had a personality, and an outlaw one, at that.

Other Ruinous Operations.

And while carrying away farm land from one bank, somewhere else it is equally busy, piling up sand, mud and driftwood, making land out of what was river a few days before. Then, too, the river has a habit of occasionally clogging its own channel, building sandbars so long and so high that it must needs become broad and shallow in order to continue its restless course.

It is a constant struggle, but it is not a hopeless one, and the engineers point with a measure of justified pride to those places along the stream where they have built dikes, which resulted in the making of land; to the concave bends where revetments have stopped the river from cutting its bank. Given a dike on one side and a revetment on the other, and constant diligence, so that small breaks may be repaired before they become serious, the river engineers say they can keep the stream fairly well anchored.

Once Great Trade Artery.

Fifty years ago, before the coming of the railroads, the Missouri was the great western artery of commerce, and steamboats plowed its waters as far as Fort Benton, Mont. Knowing how difficult it always is for the railroads to handle great wheat harvests, one wonders why it is not possible for the river to handle some of this traffic.

The engineer quietly tells you that it is possible; then he goes on and explains the two general reasons why it is not being done. One is that there is now very little money for improving and keeping up the river. The other reason is that many mistakes have been made in the type of tow-boats used.

Special Boats Needed.

Boats designed for any other river in the world but the Missouri have been used and, because of the shifting depths of the river, have failed. With all its disadvantages, there is a good deal to be said, according to the engineers, for the old paddle-wheel steamer, side-wheeler or stern-wheeler, that draws little or no water, which condition is ideal for service on the Missouri.

The river is navigable, say the engineers, and with sufficient time and patience it can be made manageable.

"A great game if you don't weaken," one says to Major Wilkes, in charge of the river work, and his aids.

"You can't weaken," they assure you. "You just keep after it, for the river itself never weakens."

JILTS FIANCE AND ELOPES

Girl Runs Away With Another Man on Eve of Her Marriage in Iowa.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Mrs. S. A. Stephenson of Boone, Ia., walked into the office of Rush D. Damouth in this city and in a voice choked with emotion informed him that her daughter, Marie, who was to have been married to him in a few days, had married Harold Wellin, wealthy business man of Boone.

Miss Stephenson left home to attend a pre-nuptial party and returned at midnight to announce her wedding, and ask for her trousseau. She received her clothes, but her husband was not permitted to enter the house.

Damouth had furnished a fine home in this city for his expected bride and many social functions had been given in her honor. She and Damouth had been engaged three years. She, her husband and the man she jilted are graduates of the state university. Both men made distinguished records overseas.

Coffin "Ad" at Grade Crossing. Council Bluffs, Ia.—Recently a sign was erected near several dangerous railroad crossings near the city, reading, "Danger, Go Slow." An enterprising undertaker has posted his advertisement under each sign.
