WOMAN HOLDS OFFICE 60 YEARS, THEN QUILTS

Serves as Postmistress or Assistant Since 1862 in Pennsylvania Town.

Postmistress or assistant nearly 60 years at Center Bridge, a little village in Pennsylvania, Mrs. Jacob W. Bowly has resigned because of failing health. There being no applicants for the vacancy, the government has closed the office and made arrangements for its patrons to get postal service through the postoffice at Stockton.

Mrs. Bowly's connection with the Center Bridge postoffice began about 1862, when her husband was appointed postmaster and she became his assistant. The office was in their country store at the Pennsylvania end of the Delaware river bridge.

He was postmaster until President Cleveland's first term and a few years later was restored to the office. When he died about 25 years ago his wife was made postmistress.

When she sent her resignation to the Postoffice department recently efforts were made to have Mrs. Bowly reconsider it, but she announced that the condition of her health would not permit her to keep up the work. Officials say her long service sets a record for women in the postal service.

WILL HELP TO REBUILD RUSSIA

Trained American Workers to Be Sent to Restore Industries.

SEE CHANGE TO HELP TRADE

Dozen Groups of Men Headed by Experts, Equipped With Latest Machinery, Being Organized for Service in Soviet Russia—Most of the Workers Are Russian Immigrants Who Have Become Skilled in Their Several Lines in the United States.

More than a dozen groups of workmen trained in American industries, headed by experts and fully equipped with the latest machinery, are preparing to leave soon to aid in the industrial rehabilitation of Soviet Russia.

The Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, which is organizing these units, announced that it already has sent to Russia clothing workers, machinists, builders, and tool and die workers. Most of these workers were Russian immigrants who had become skilled here.

The society, an organization of Russians, has its central bureau in New York, headed by Fedor P. Wilga. It claims a membership of 10,000 throughout the United States and Canada and publishes a semi-monthly technical magazine to acquaint its members with modern methods of production in America and their application in Soviet Russia.

Not Soviet Agents.

Officials of the society claim that the aim of their organization is to "bring the people of the United States and Soviet Russia into closer relations for the mutual benefit of the two countries."

The society denied it was acting as agents for Soviet Russia and declared that its activities were absolutely non-political and confined strictly to organizing technical forces.

"We are not soliciting members, nor do we encourage them to go to Soviet Russia at present," said a statement issued by the society.

"Only those brave and energetic workers who, regardless of conditions at present existing in Soviet Russia, are willing and ready to go there as soon as possible to help build the Russian republic are accepted as members of units that we are organizing to be sent to Soviet Russia."

Send Trained Men.

"We are organizing our units in such a way that upon their arrival in Soviet Russia they will be able to run on their own initiative, under their own supervision, all kinds of factories, shops, mines and farms."

The society said that the following units, fully equipped with the latest machinery, will leave in the near future for Russia: Two units of shoemaking workers, two units of clothing workers, three units of construction workers, one unit of foundry workers of chilled cast-iron wheels for railway cars and locomotives, several groups of electrical and acetylene welders, automobile and tractor units, five agricultural groups fully equipped with tractors and all modern power machinery and several others.

"All of these units sent to Russia, being disseminated in various parts of that vast country," said the society, "will serve as pioneers for American trade in mechanics, tools and certain raw materials obtainable in the United States and Canada."

INVENTS "WEIGHT MOTOR"

Illinois Man Perfects Machine That Perils Present Motive Power.

Gasoline and waterpower would largely follow the horse into decline as means of motive power, if the invention of a Springfield (Ill.) man, A. T. Markwood, contains all the qualities he claims for it.

First actual test of his "weight motor" has been set for this month, when a commissioner from the United States patent office comes here, he reports.

Weight of iron balls supplies the force in the invention, upon which Mr. Markwood says he has worked twenty-five years.

Sixteen balls of 138 pounds each equip the model he has prepared for the demonstration. Two of these units, he claims, would suffice to provide all the electricity produced by the Springfield (Ill.) Electric company's light and power plant.

The idea finds similarity in the overshot water-wheel. Iron balls replace the water fall, forcing around huge iron spokes. Sufficient energy is generated by the fall of one ball to lift several spent balls back to the elevated track, and thus the motor continues, he says.

Eventually, Mr. Markwood declares, there will be small replicas of his huge model in many homes. Small iron balls, the size of a croquet ball, will equip a generator the size of a phonograph, and the electricity therefrom will light houses, run washing machines, provide heat, and recharge the family automobile, he proclaims.

Motor Cars Cut Chuchgoing In Half.

Church attendance is being cut 50 per cent, the crime rate is being raised, and many narrow streets made death traps by automobiles, according to John F. Boyer, a justice of the peace of Chicago.

DEAD DOG AS MISSILE

Woman Charges Husband With Assault With Carcass.

Henry Mallett of Bound Brook, N. J., charged with assault by Mrs. Mallett, who told a jury Mallett bit her with a dead dog, was discharged after trial in Somerset County court. Mrs. Mallett caused her husband's arrest, charging he had belabored her with the carcass of a fox terrier which had been run over and killed by an automobile. The wife testified that Mallett became enraged because he thought she had let the dog out.

Neighbors called to testify gave conflicting evidence. One swore there was blood on Mrs. Mallett's face after the quarrel over the fox terrier. Another testified the plaintiff's nose was red, but he could not swear there was blood on it.

LOG USED AS LIQUOR CARRIER

Prohibition Agents Discover a New Way of Smuggling Booze.

Two halves of an eight-foot cedar log, tossed by a storm at Tampa, Fla., on a suburban beach, have revealed to prohibition agents another trick employed by coast runners in smuggling liquor into the state. The log was from a wrecked boat coming from Cuba with a cargo of logs consigned to a local cigar box factory. Four carefully carved cavities secreted four five-gallon demijohns of whiskey in one log. Countersunk bolts held the halves together, so that the complete log loaded with booze was in every respect similar to a fresh one just cut from the forest.
