TESTS DEATH ENGINE

New Flying Torpedo Would Hold Cities at Its Mercy.

Remarkable Aircraft is Mechanically Controlled and is Said to Be Most Deadly Aerial Weapon Ever Constructed.

New York.—A successful mechanically controlled flying torpedo, destined, it is believed, to revolutionize land and sea warfare, has been developed for the United States army and navy air services. In a secret test the remarkable aircraft, said to be the most important aerial weapon ever constructed, flew over New York city and two Eastern states.

The flying torpedo could easily have wrought great destruction to lower Manhattan had it been loaded at the time, according to war officials at Washington. Experiments with this machine have been carried on for several months in Chesapeake bay, in New Jersey, and Ohio, but under the strictest secrecy, not more than 100 persons in the entire country having knowledge of it.

The aerial torpedo has already made upward of 100 flights, approximately 5,000 miles in the air. Its development, according to the experts, means that coastal fortifications are made obsolete.

Attacking in large numbers, machines of this type will be able to annihilate cities with incendiary explosives and poison gases, without loss of a single life. In actual warfare, the flying torpedoes will be guided through the air to their targets without a soul on board.

In its flight over New York city a few weeks ago, the experimental flying torpedo made an unexpected landing near a small town in eastern Pennsylvania. This landing attracted little attention at the time.

The test flight on that occasion was begun from a landing ground near New York city. After the engine was started, the machine ran a short distance across the field, took the air successfully, and climbed to the predetermined altitude. It then set its course due west, straight into a stiff head wind.

MOST DECORATED U. S. GIRL

Little Paulina Henkel, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Paul Henkel, of New York, is the most decorated young lady in the United States. Aside from the hundreds of medals she has, as testimony of her work during the war, when she personally raised $3,300,000 during the five war loans, she has a score or more of loving cups and trophies presented to her by her hosts of admirers. The photo shows the young lady with some of her medals and decorations.

HIS HOUNDS RIDE IN AUTO

Coyote Hunter in South Dakota Makes Money Killing Animals for Bounty.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Albert Warden of the Wall district of western South Dakota, which is situated in the famous Bad Lands region, which abounds with many coyotes, has adopted a unique and effective method of capturing and killing coyotes, and is making money by killing the animals for the bounty offered for them.

Warden does his coyote hunting on a scientific basis. He makes his raids on the animals in a motortruck, with a cage in the rear for his pack of hounds. He travels around the country in the truck until he locates one or more coyotes. Then he pulls a rope that opens trapdoors in the cage and thus releases his hounds, which instantly take up the chase, soon running down the prey.

By transporting the hounds in the cage they are always fresh and ready for the chase.

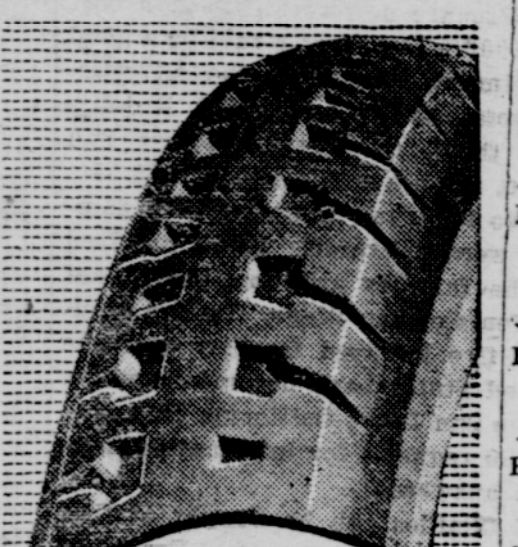

Five Sets of Twins. Weston, Ia.—Mrs. Rose McCombs, wife of a farmer living near here, is the mother of the fifth pair of twins in eight years. All the ten children are well. A sister of Mrs. McCombs, Mrs. Annie Forbes of Sioux City, recently became the mother of her second set of triplets. Another sister of Mrs. McCombs, who lives in Sacramento, Cal., has two pair of twins.
