STATE BANK AT THE DALLES CLOSES DOORS

THE DALLES, Or., Feb. 23.—French and Company's state bank, one of the oldest in eastern Oregon, failed to open its doors this morning. This bank was considered one of the most conservative in the state, and the closing came as a great surprise to all.

The state bank examiner, however, announced that the bank was in a sound condition and probably would be re-opened in a few days following a complete reorganization.

TROUBLE CLOUDS HOVER OVER THE SOFT COAL FIELD

leaving the Pennsylvania fields for work elsewhere.

The unrest among the miners, members of the United Mine Workers of America, is reflected even among the non-union miners of the western Pennsylvania field. Smarting under repeated cuts in pay scores of miners are leaving the non-union fields in Cambria and Somerset counties, with the result that many of these mines are shutting down. Strikes also are reported at a number of these operations.

The suggestion of co-operative mining—that is, mines operated jointly by the miners' and railroaders' unions—has caused much talk in this field.

"The coal miners of western Pennsylvania do not want to strike; they are bending every effort to bring about a peaceful settlement of the present controversy and will insist upon arbitration as long as possible," according to President John Brophy, head of district No. 2, United Mine Workers of America, and one of the best authorities on mining conditions of the state.

Ready for Action But Mr. Brophy adds that, unable to obtain a "square deal" from the operators, the miners are ready to throw their full force back of any action the United Mine Workers may decide to take.

In an interview with International News Service, Mr. Brophy said: "Just what the next month will bring forth in the western Pennsylvania mining field is difficult to say just now.

"Here we have a field employing in normal times, something close to 50,000 miners. Many of these men are working on part time—few of them are working full time—and there are possibly from 10,000 to 12,000 of these men idle, due to the general depression in business.

"The families of these men are suffering along with those of the thousands of others of unemployed throughout the country, and winter is on. We have left no stone unturned to better conditions. Under direction of our district, a short time ago, I wrote to President Harding and to members of congress urging that an investigation be made into conditions in this field and offering to lend all aid."

Finances Are Short That the miners' union, while it is said to be less sound financially than in the days before the war, is in a position to finance a long fight against the operators, is the statement of some union leaders, but Mr. Brophy refused to discuss this phase of the situation. "All that I can say," said the president of district No. 2, "is that we are ready, much as we shall regret to enter a strike, to meet any emergency.

"Some of the operators in this district," Mr. Brophy said, "already have demonstrated that they are anxious to avoid a strike as we are. The Central Coal association of Altoona, for instance, has made overtures to the miners for a conference, with a view of reaching an agreement upon a new scale. The Bituminous Operators' association, however, has not as yet asked for a conference nor given any intimation as to how they are going to stand on our demands, and we have made no overtures to them."

Mr. Brophy emphasized the importance of the district convention, which will be held in Dubois, Pa.

Strike Vote Forecast The delegates to the national convention will report to the district convention the sentiment of the national body, and the district unions will then act upon this report.

More conservative leaders of the miners insist that the controversy over the wage scale, working conditions, living conditions and other issues will be amicably settled and express the view that should the freight rate, rail pay and other questions be adjusted the coming spring will see a boom in the mining industry.

The proposed alliance of the union miners with the powerful brotherhoods of railroad workers has hit

RHODES FAMILY ALWAYS HAPPY, SAYS WITNESSES

yesterday afternoon by the grandparents. In this testimony discrepancies were noted. Mrs. Alice Moorcroft, sister of Ed

Rhodes and the first person in the house after Mrs. Rhodes had given the alarm following the tragedy, testified that Mrs. Rhodes was rather hysterical and that all was excitement about the house when she arrived. She said she noticed the package of salts open on the table with a small spoon in it.

The Rhodes family, she said, had always appeared happy. This characterization of the family was corroborated by Glen Roundtree, who said he was the second person to reach the house. Roundtree said he took charge of the package and kept it in his possession until he turned it over to the authorities. He said that Dr. J. M. Sleicher, the first physician to reach the house, took a sample of the salts from the package. Both the contents of the package and the sample taken by the doctor have been analyzed and found to contain strychnine.

"Trouble"

Behind your telephone service is the "plant"—a complicated mechanical equipment of poles, cables, wires, switchboards, instruments, etc., carefully adjusted and absolutely dependent on perfect construction and maintenance.

The "plant" is constantly subject to accident and outside interference. Storms, fires, the carelessness of workmen, the pranks of children, concealed defects of material—all play their part.

The telephone company maintains a skilled force whose sole duty is to quickly restore service interrupted from any cause. Your lines are constantly watched and tested.

In the case of trouble we are generally the first to know it, but a notification to our Complaint Department when there is anything wrong will be appreciated.
