MEDFORD BANK BLDG. IMPROVED

Work was begun yesterday on the Medford National Bank building. Several alterations and improvements are planned, which, when completed, will provide that well-known financial institution with much more commodious quarters and every facility for modern making to cope with its large business growth.

When the work is completed, its appearance will add much to that section of the business district. Only the ground floor will be changed, and the improvements include the excavation of a large section of the basement. Beeser Brothers of Seattle are the architects and contractors, and it is probable that they will let out much of the work by sub-contract.

The groom is in the employ of the Southern Pacific and after a short time Mr. and Mrs. Specht expect to make their home at Hornbrook, Calif., where Mr. Specht is employed as a fireman in the helper service.

THINK DROPS

Going some. From the time Mowatt resigned as secretary to two weeks ago the Chamber of Commerce had gone down in membership from 528 to 72. What do you think of that?

All told, in the past two weeks the Chamber of Commerce had gained nearly two hundred and fifty active members. Who said it did not pay to fight?

With the money all these new members have paid into the Chamber of Commerce the past two weeks, Secretary Fuller should put up many very scrumptious feeds in the immediate future.

Why in the deuce didn't ALL the legal voters of the club register a vote yesterday? What are you afraid of, anyway? Don't you know that big things can not be accomplished by dodging around?

PUBLIC FORUM

Editor Tidings: In the Chamber of Commerce primary election there were a total of 237 members entitled to vote, of which Mr. Carter got 100 votes, or forty-two and two-tenths per cent of the total membership entitled to vote. There were actually cast 173 votes, of which Mr. Carter received 100, or fifty-five and six-tenths of the votes actually cast—a majority of five and six-tenths per cent, a very small margin at best, and an exceedingly small margin when it is considered that those who were entitled to vote were largely those who had stuck with the club through thick and thin, while, from the time Mr. Mowatt resigned and Mr. Fuller was employed as secretary, the club membership declined from 528 active members down to 72 active members. When this campaign started, the club had 72 members who avowedly stood for Carter, McCoy and Smith domination. Prior to a week ago last Monday night, when the club acted on all new members, qualifying them for a vote, which new members, together with members who had ceased to pay dues on account of dissatisfaction with the policy of the club as dominated by the bankers, amounted in round numbers to 165, the full original club membership, amounting to 72, could be counted on as staunch supporters of the banker domination and their policies. Therefore, it at once appears that out of the 165 new members, the bankers succeeded in getting only 28. Last night other new members were voted into the club, besides a number of old dissatisfied members paying up their dues, making a total of some one hundred members who will be entitled to vote in this last election who were not qualified to vote in the election yesterday.

Then, when you consider that Mr. Homes, head of the "anti" slate ticket received 121 votes to Carter's 100, McCoy's 98 and Smith's 99, it can readily be seen what may be expected to happen in the election next Monday, if all qualified members vote. The "anti" slate ticket will be elected by at least 100 majority.

Deal Now Pending For Mining Claim

A deal is now pending for the sale of a mining claim located some one or two miles west of Ashland, whereby property which has shown good indications in a mining way will be taken in charge by capitalists who will start to work the prospect in the very near future if the deal is successfully closed.

A mining engineer has made an examination of the property and has expressed the opinion that this property is capable of yielding one carload of good ore every two weeks. This would employ 60 or 70 men continuously.

The men who are backing this proposition are not local men, and it is not possible to give their names at the present time.

In connection with the foregoing, the following statement taken from the Oregon Mining Journal of May 5, 1906, may be of interest to people in the mining industry:

"Last week one of the leading geologists and mining experts of the United States was visiting Ashland, exploring the surrounding mineral country and examining some mining claims in the interest of one of the largest mining capitalists of America.

"In looking over the many mineral specimens in the mining office of C. W. Evans, he remarked that the mineral showing, formations and indications in the vicinity of Ashland was one of the best in the west and predicted mining operation on a scale as large as any in the country would eventually be conducted in the mountains about Ashland. He requested his name not be mentioned as it would hamper him in his work. He further stated that in the Tonopah, Goldfield, etc., mining districts, the values were principally found on the surface, owing to the formation of the 'country rock' of that section, but around Ashland the greater values will be found in the lower depths and the indications are that they will be fully as rich, if not richer than the south Nevada ore bodies. A mine near Ashland containing $10 ore is preferable to a south Nevada mine containing $100 ore."

SAVINGS IN WAR BUREAU CLAIMED BY REPUBLICANS

surplus property, the inevitable aftermath of the war. The total cost value of supplies declared surplus since March 4, 1921, was $303,376,799. Directions were also given for the disposal of much property originally set aside for educational and vocational training under the program of 1919. The greater part of this property declared surplus has been disposed of at prices arrived at by means of competitive sealed bids, and friends of the administration assert that the receipts from these sales average remarkably high considering the handicap of market conditions and lack of suitability for public consumption which is characteristic of much of this war material. Motor vehicles to the number of 12,680 and costing approximately $22,212,674 were transferred to the department of agriculture, and 220 motor vehicles, costing approximately $550,000, were transferred to the United States Veterans' bureau to be used for vocational training purposes.

HYATT RESERVOIR AND EAST DITCH THIS YEAR

reserve, which gives assurance that the timber covering will be protected.

It is proposed to construct a dam, 43 feet in maximum height across Keene creek, and form a reservoir having a storage capacity of 16,000 acre feet, covering 900 acres. The dam as planned will be an earth fill, 20 feet wide at the top and 775 feet long. A concrete spillway will be located on the west end. The reinforced concrete outlet conduit, through the embankment, will be provided with a suitable concrete gate tower and controlling works. Test pits show that sufficient earth and clay for the dam embankment can be obtained within a maximum distance of 3200 feet from the dam site. The estimated cost of the Hyatt Prairie reservoir is $163,600.

The east lateral will divert from Emigrant creek at an elevation of about 2100 feet, and be so located that when the Emigrant creek dam is constructed, diversion will be direct from the dam at an elevation of 2104 feet. The canal will follow along the north end and east bank of Emigrant creek, crossing Walker creek with a 34-inch wood stave siphon. From this point the canal will follow close to the toe of the steep hillside and covers most of the desirable irrigable area lying east of Bear creek.

The canal will have a capacity of 50 second feet at the intake, gradually decreasing as the land is watered to 10 second feet at the end. The estimated cost of excavating the 97,000 cubic feet of canal is $160,000.

Bids for the canal excavation and the building of the Hyatt dam will be opened on the fourteenth of this month. Six large contracting outfits have gone over the proposition. It is expected that work will commence at once. At least 200 men will be employed which will relieve the unemployment situation in the vicinity. Practically 90 per cent of the land in the project which it is proposed to irrigate, is already worked. A large portion of the area is planted to orchard and is in a high state of cultivation. Other leading crops are alfalfa and grain. Very little of this land has ever produced what it might on account of the shortage of moisture during the late summer months. If the land is fully developed under irrigation, it should be capable of producing five and six tons of alfalfa per acre or good yields of grain or cultivated crops for general or dairy farming. Irrigation will have a tendency to stimulate trucking and other intensive farming. The productive value of the land should be more than doubled by irrigation as compared with the possibilities by rainfall farming. Irrigation generally makes it possible to practice a more intensive and diversified ranching system.

The dairy industry has not been extensively developed on account of the shortage of green feed. This and other types of intensive livestock farming could be greatly increased after irrigation is provided. The climate of the district is moderate. High winds or severe storms are practically unknown, and the thermometer rarely goes down to zero or above 100. The summer nights are cool and pleasant, the winters mild. The average length of time free from killing frosts in Ashland for the past 12 years was 186 days. The average number of clear days for the same period was 150, and partly cloudy about 100 days.

There is absolutely no reason why the products being shipped into the valley should not be raised locally in sufficient quantities. The soil and the climate conditions are very favorable, and with water for irrigation, the yields can be doubled. Irrigation, therefore, becomes the key to soil improvement and increased production and the profit on these lands.

ALBERS DAIRY FEED

DOES NOT COST AS MUCH AS MILL RUN HAS SUPERIOR FEEDING VALUES

Notice the analysis in comparison

An actual chemical analysis shows:

Table with 4 columns: Feed Name, Protein, Fat, Fibre. Rows: Albers Dairy Feed (13.9%, 4.5%, 16%), Wheat Mill-Run (12%, 2%, 15%)

Protein is the essential factor in determining values of feeding stuffs. Protein makes milk. Reckon fat as energy values. Fibre is waste. Therefore buy protein and fat.

A moderate amount of fibre is necessary to give bulk or keep the meals apart.

Albers Dairy Feed is palatable because it contains molasses, with mill-run, oat by-products and coconut meal. The mixture in Albers Dairy Feed supplies the variety needed by the dairy cow. It is better than mill-run at the same price.

We offer it at less.
