Found Big Water.

Silas Wright Titus, the "water wizard," is dead. Since boyhood, it is said, that he never failed to find underground water when he went after it. He made water hunting his life work. One of his big jobs was locating the underground water that supplies Brooklyn, N. Y., 10,000,000 gallons a day.

No matter how peculiar a demand rises, up from the people always comes some man intuitively fitted to handle the job. We may be masters of our own destinies, but there's a wonderful system back of it all, distributing human abilities to meet demands. Is life staged, in some respects, in advance?

would be on the list. While the Dead Indian road was not mentioned in this particular part of his talk, it might easily be construed from statements made that this road may also be one of the fortunate ones this season.

Mr. Dater expressed himself as being greatly gratified in the fact that the government has come to the help of local communities in building better roads.

Mr. Dater asked the people to make capital of the tourist business, for it is as much our business who live amid the scenic beauties of the world to be able to care for and show the tourist the points of interest in our section of Oregon as it is for the Californian to capitalize the tourist business brought there by their warm weather. The tourist, he said, is the best advertiser we can possibly have, and that one tourist, well treated, will tell others until we will have a long and continual string of tourists, all well pleased and passing a good word for our section of the country at every hand.

Rev. H. W. Peck, of Los Angeles, was present and gave a short talk. He spoke of how southern California has pulled together until they have gained on and passed San Francisco both as to population and as a tourist center. He also stated that Ashland had a good chance of being a great tourist center if all interests would pull together for the good of the town.

TO CUT AUSTRALIAN ESTATES

Measure Almost Socialistic in Character Is Approved by Most of the Landholders.

Large Australian estates may have to be subdivided, according to the Sydney correspondent of a London paper.

The new South Wales government is reintroducing a large holding subdivision bill, compelling owners to subdivide for closer settlement any land exceeding $100,000 in value. If for instance, the owner of land worth $250,000 refuses to subdivide it the government will compulsorily acquire $150,000 worth and make it available for closer settlement.

The intention is to pay immediate cash or current rates of interest to the owners. The measure, which is approved by most Australian individual landholders, but bitterly opposed by big land companies with headquarters in England, will have the effect of opening for cultivation large areas now utilized as sheep runs. This will afford an opportunity for an increased agricultural population and scope for immigrants.

It is designed to mitigate the existing serious unrest arising out of the inability to provide Australian agriculturalists with land. These people are being driven to the cities to swell the ranks of the unemployed, making dangerous centers of discontent.

Support of Royalty.

At the installation ceremony of King Fetsul of Irak nothing had been left undone in producing the atmosphere necessary for such an occasion in the country of the Caliphs of Baghdad. The throne—or rather the chair of state—was a masterpiece in scarlet, tinsel and gilt. After the ceremony, which, it will be remembered, was an open-air affair, the ritual required that the throne should be removed. A stalwart Ethiopian raised it above his head and bore it away past the assembled multitude. The frame beneath the seat was simple deal, and across the boarding was the legend in stencil of a firm that exports Scotch whisky. It shall be nameless, because the most up-to-date advertisement manager could never have hoped for such a display. It was worth a king's ransom and yet I was free and unsolicited.—Manchester Guardian.

Australia's Water Supply.

Australia's wonderful underground water supply, her artesian basin system, might well rank among her greatest assets. But like other assets, the artesian water supply can be wasted, and Australians are not without concern that in New South Wales there has been a total diminution in the flow of water from 26 selected water bores of something like 21,400,000 gallons a day, or about 25.8 per cent. It is now being recognized that the artesian water must be conserved by the partial closing of the bores, so that only the flow capable of being used will be allowed to issue. The irrigation commission is taking steps to penalize the careless bore owner.—Christian Science Monitor.

asked what could be done. The council was informed that the power lay with the city council exclusively to order the removal of any such nuisance. Thirty days were given the two gentlemen to begin rebuilding, or the buildings must be razed.

AMUSING TO WOMEN TODAY

What Was Considered Proper in Mid-Victorian Days Seems Somewhat Ridiculous Now.

In a book written in mid-Victorian days concerning the proper manners of well-bred women appears the statement that a woman with graying hair is "hardly respectable without a cap," and that the woman of thirty-five who does not don the cap as signal of the fact of her advanced age has something of a "masculine aspect."

Such statements are amusing and sometimes just a little annoying—especially to the woman of thirty-five. She consoles herself with the fact that times have changed enormously since those days and that now so long as a woman is slender enough to wear clothes selected by eighteen-year-old girls she is seldom criticized for wearing them.

But don't delude yourself into thinking that all women of thirty-five in mid-Victorian days donned the cap of old age. Empress Eugenie wasn't married until she was twenty-seven, and she continued to be regarded as one of the most charming and beautiful women in Europe for many years.

It is really no new thing for women of thirty-five, forty or over to retain their youthful charms and change very little their mode of dress or behavior as time goes on. Possibly our present mode of life, our athletics, our style of clothes, tend more to the retaining of youthful appearance and real youthfulness than did conditions of the Nineteenth century.

What Next?

Paris beauty doctors are now specializing in the reforming of women's legs. Two specialists in Rue de la Paix are winning fame by reducing the size of women's ankles and increasing the size of the calf. They have not, as yet, found a way to take the curve out of bowlegs and some of the ladies of society there are hoping almost tearfully that something will develop in this direction.

Jews of New York.

There are 1,600,000 Jews in Greater New York—nearly 30 per cent of the entire population, observes Foreign Language Information Service. This number equals the total population of Philadelphia, or Detroit and Cleveland put together, or Buffalo, San Francisco and Pittsburgh combined and twice the population of Boston. The 1,600,000 are distributed as follows: East side of Manhattan, 33,000; Harlem, 232,000; Bronx, 311,000; Williamsburgh, 203,000; Brownsville, 191,000; East New York, 108,000; Borough park, 66,000; Queens, 23,000; Richmond, 5,000, and scattered, 127,000. This population supports 12 Jewish theaters, 5,000 grocery and delicatessen stores, 300 stationery, cigar and candy stores, 2,400 meat shops, 800 drug stores, 700 shoe stores, 275 hardware stores, 250 paint shops, 240 furniture stores and 150 electrical dealers.

Law-Abiding Bootlegger.

The philosophy of the modern bootlegger is illustrated in a story now going the rounds in Washington—a story which has carried an appeal to some of the highest officials of the government.

It seems that a "regular customer" called up his own particular bootlegger a night or two ago and asked him what he had in stock.

"Well," replied the B. L., "I have some Scotch, some rye, some bourbon, a little gin and a little vermouth."

"Have you any absinthe?" inquired the customer.

"H—ll, no, man," came back in an astonished voice, "it's against the law to sell absinthe."

OF INTEREST TO ALL IRISH

In Region Adjacent to French City of Cannes St. Patrick Received Religious Training.

"For true appropriateness Cannes might better be chosen for a discussion of Irish affairs than for an attempt to solve European financial problems," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society, in regard to the French Mediterranean winter resort, meeting place of the allied supreme council. "Cannes has its tie with Ireland," the bulletin goes on to explain, "because it was in a monastery on one of two little islands just off the Cannes shore that St. Patrick received the religious training which fired him with missionary zeal and led to his conversion of the Irish."

"St. Honorat founded, in 410, on the smaller of the two islands which bears his name, the monastery in which St. Patrick studied. It was one of the fountains of learning and missionary effort during the Middle Ages. According to a legend, the island was infested by snakes and St. Honorat miraculously drove them out—an example which his follower, St. Patrick, is supposed to have put to good use in Erin."

In spite of its many letters Cannes is properly pronounced as a single syllable, like the English verb "can," says the bulletin.

Ask Much of Inventor.

The helicopter, a machine capable of vertical flight, with which British inventors have already attained partial success, has caused plans to be made by the government for a $200,000 competition open to the world for a further improved design. The conditions, which if met would make the helicopter practical and revolutionize the science of flying are: It must be capable of rising to a height of 2,000 feet under its own power, carrying one man and one hour's fuel supply. It must be able to remain stationary over a ground object for a half hour in a wind up to 20 miles an hour. It must be able to land safely in any wind up to 20 miles an hour without horizontal motion, and with the engine cut off, and must be able to maintain horizontal flight at a height of 2,000 feet at a speed of not less than 60 miles an hour.

A Lost Art With Him.

Warren G. Sayre of Wahash, an attorney and formerly a state representative, sent a letter several weeks ago to the county clerk of Boone county, asking for information concerning a divorce suit. The letter was written on plain paper in longhand and sent in a plain envelope. Finally the following letter was received from the clerk: "Dear Sir: I have submitted your letter to every officer of this courthouse and we cannot read a word of it. We cannot even read your signature, so I am cutting it and the address off your letter and pasting it on the envelope carrying this letter, hoping that the post office employees are sufficiently familiar with your way of writing to assure the delivery of the letter."—Indianapolis News.

More Electric Lights.

During 1921 the increase in residential electric lighting customers in the United States was 1,001,700, according to a survey just completed of reports from electric light and power companies throughout the country. This brings the total number of residential lighting customers up to 8,467,600 or more than double the number in 1915, when only 4,006,300 families had electric lights in their homes.

Irish Settled in Iceland.

It was only in 1918 that the long constitutional controversy between Iceland and the Danish government resulted in the recognition of that island as a free and sovereign state in association with Denmark, under one and the same king, and once more "the hermit of the Atlantic," as it has been called, is free to pursue its way in accord with those early days when colonists from Norway and Ireland established a commonwealth which lasted more than four centuries.

The Irish of the Twelfth century were not the first of their race to find a home in Iceland, for the first settlers were anchorites from Ireland who found in these remote attitudes a place to exercise their vocation.—Christian Science Monitor.

"How weak and poor beside the love that we express Now seems beside the vast, sweet, unexpressed, And slight the deeds we did, to those undone, And small the service spent in treasures won, And undeserved the praise for, word and deed, That should have overflowed the simple need."

A little cooked chicken left from a previous dinner will make a most tasty dish of Chicken Timbale. — To one cupful of ground chicken, add one egg white beaten stiff, two tablespoonfuls of minced parsley, one teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of cayenne. Line timbale molds with buttered paper, fill with the chicken mixture and cook twenty minutes in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven. Unmold on a hot plate, add two tablespoonfuls of fresh cooked peas and pour over a mushroom sauce.

WHAT CAUSES GAS ON THE STOMACH?

It is caused by fermenting, sour, waste matter in the intestines. This old, foul matter should be thoroughly cleaned out with simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-ika. This acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels, removing old accumulated matter, you never thought was in your system. Adler-ika relieves ANY CASE gas on the stomach.
