QUOTATIONS HOARY WITH AGE

Many of the Most Familiar Sayings Have Been in Use for Five Hundred Years.

"All's well that ends well," you say, and you are quoting from a book of tales a little matter of 500 years old; i. e., the "Gesta Romanorum," first printed about 1473.

To Geoffrey Chaucer, "well of English undefiled," who was born in 1328, we owe a multitude of our most frequently used proverbs, including "Many a small maketh a great," "Of two evils choose the lesser," "All is not gold that glitters," "Out of sight, out of mind," "Man proposes and God disposes."

Between Chaucer's time and the day of Shakespeare some of our most familiar sayings were born. "Look ere ye leap," "Strike while the iron is hot," "Never look a gift horse in the mouth," "Beggars should be no choosers," "You can bring a horse to water," etc.; "A new broom sweeps clean," "Small pitchers have wide ears," "One swallow maketh not a summer," "It's an ill wind blows no one good," "Enough is as good as a feast," "What's bred in the bone," etc.; "Comparisons are odious." These are a few that came to light later than Chaucer, but before Shakespeare was born in 1564.

If you haven't read faithfully from the Bard of Avon you may not be aware that the following proverbs are found in his works: "Familiarity breeds contempt," "What's mine is yours," etc.; "Every why hath a wherefor," "It is a wise father knoweth his own child," "Good wine needs no bush," "Married in haste, repent at leisure," "Give the devil his due," "All the world's a stage," "Some are born great, some achieve greatness," etc.

CHINA REAL LAND OF CASTE

Conditions There Declared by Travelers to Outclass Even Those Existing in East India.

Chinamen have more caste even than the East Indians. They say you never find one Chinaman in a low condition of life but you will find him employing another Chinaman in a still lower condition. The small Chinese farmer employs a servant, to whom he is lord and master. This menial is compelled to serve him in any capacity that may be required. For instance, when the small Chinese farmer takes a pig to market he does not do it as the Irishman does, by driving the pig along the road. No, he first kills the pig, or makes his "chred man" do it, then the pig is carefully packed on one side of a single wheeled vehicle something like a wheelbarrow. The weight of the proprietor may just balance that of the pig, but if it is greater, then a few boulders are added to even things up. The whole apparatus is then wheeled along the road by the hired man, the Chinese proprietor meanwhile placidly smoking his pipe.

He Paid the Note.
A certain shiftless character had borrowed some money at the bank after having been secured by a hard-working man. Notice was sent; no response. A second notice was sent, but no response. And a third with similar results. Whereupon the guarantor was told to come in and take up the note. Seeing the maker of the note on the street, he asked: "Didn't you know that note was due?"

Getting an affirmative reply, he further asked: "Why didn't you take it up?" This time the shiftless one made reply: "Didn't you expect to pay it?" "No!" "Well, what did you sign it for if you didn't expect to pay it?"

There was no recourse from this question, that's the way it usually stacks up, so the guarantor took up the note and credited the sum to experience.—Farm Life.

How Fruit Worm Gets Into Apple.
Did you ever find a worm away in the core of an apple when there wasn't any sign of a hole on the outside to show where it got in? Well, in the spring, says the Ave Maria, when the trees are all in blossom and look their loveliest, a little moth slipped out of its chrysalis and flew among the blossoms. Then, when the petals of the flowers had fallen, the moth laid an egg in the upturned cup made by the five points of the calyx. In a short time the tiny egg hatched into a small worm, and the little worm bored its way into the apple that was just forming; and there it grew with the apple meanwhile feeding on it. When the apple falls to the ground, the worm gets out and finds its way into the tree, where it spins a cocoon, from which another moth is hatched the next spring, and so on. The birds search for these fruit worms in the bark of the trees.

A Genial Heckler.
"I was driving along a rough country road the other day," said Lloyd George during an electioneering tour, "and at the foot of a steep hill I saw the signboard, 'Please Slacken the Reins Going Up the Hill.' While reading this it occurred to me that it might be well for people generally to be as kind and considerate in their treatment of their minister as they are of their horses, especially when the load is heavy and the road is steep."

There was a burst of applause from the audience which appreciated the point of the premier's illustration, but the inevitable wag was present, and he piped up, "Why not try a flivver, George?"

START CAMPAIGN TO BOOST BUILDING ACTIVITIES HERE

Local Firms Join National Housing Movement; Intensive Construction Planned Under Slogan "Build with the Birds."

A lively activity this spring in building in Ashland is indicated by the interest which is being taken locally in a movement for more and better houses, sponsored by a number of local business men. For several years building has been below normal, but the low price to which most building material has dropped and the abundance of labor available for construction purposes makes it probable that with the added stimulus of this "Build with the Birds" campaign, which starts in the Tidings Monday, there will be a building boom such as this community has not experienced in years.

It is really to the interest of the entire community that as many new houses be built this spring as are needed and that they be as attractive and well designed as it is possible to make them. There is nothing which so marks a city as a desirable place to live and rear a family as to be known as a city of attractive homes.

A healthy revival of building at this time would add materially to the prosperity of almost every line of business in this city. Whenever people build homes they immediately begin to need all the other things that go with it, and to make up the comforts of home life, and there is scarcely a commercial enterprise in the community that is not called in to service.

This campaign is simply a part of a very general movement all over the country to promote building with a view to relieving the house shortage, which has seriously affected living conditions in many localities. Many people who have been expecting to build and were financially able to do so have been holding off until prices of material and labor became more reasonable. Men who are familiar with conditions believe that most of the adjustments have been completed and that prices have reached a stage where there can be no object in longer delaying.

The local dealers in building and home furnishing materials are lending their hearty support to this campaign and will be glad to assist with suggestions or advise with anyone who is considering building this spring. They have taken "Build with the Birds" as the slogan and are urging that wherever possible people make their plans early for their building or repairing this spring.

Ashland Wins Both Games

At the high school gymnasium last night both the boys and girls teams won from Medford in hard-fought contests. The boys won by a 37 to 29 score, although it took an extra five minutes play to decide, as the end of the regular period found the score tied, 27 to 27. The Ashland girls kept the lead during most of the game and won 26 to 21.

there are few peaks, even of greater height, that offer the same thrills. From the government fire station at the summit, may be seen 28 lakes, the tops of the Cascade range, the Rogue River valley and the Crater Lake mountains, besides all the surrounding peaks.

During the last seven years the number of visitors to Lake of the Woods has doubled each year. Now, with the new road completed, many tourists visiting Crater Lake will return to the highway by way of Lake of the Woods.

the retiring members of the board of the Chamber of Commerce, who are all heartily in favor of a new tourist hotel and sanitarium.

It will be noted that the gentlemen, who signed the above, 37 in number out of a membership of 313, are all close friends of the men who are seeking re-election as directors of the Chamber of Commerce. Those signatures were obtained yesterday after three men had canvassed the city in a house-to-house canvass. Its preamble shows clearly the animus behind this so-called resolution. It is Bert Greer whom they are after. They want his "number" and consider any means legitimate that will achieve the object. In the same envelope was another document, containing a bitter attack on Greer and a threat that another newspaper will be launched here for the purpose of putting Greer out of business. Being

Seventh National Meeting Of Y. W. C. A. April 20-27

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 9.—The seventh national biennial convention of the Young Women's Christian association will be held at Oaklawn Park, Hot Springs, Arkansas, from April 20 to April 27. Aside from business, the purpose of the meeting is to study the place of the organization in the community of today, particularly as to its responsibility to women and girls. In addition to this a series of addresses will be given on "Internationalism" in its various phases by speakers of international reputation.

The convention will be formally opened on the evening of April 20. Mrs. Frederick Paist, of Philadelphia, president of the convention, who will preside pro tem, will give the opening address. Mrs. Paist was elected to the presidency of the national association at the Cleveland convention. She has been actively interested in the Y. W. C. A. since her undergraduate days at Leland Stanford university, where she was president of the college association.

In that circular the statement is made that after election—remember after election—if it can be made clear that the men who compose the directorate stand in the way of getting a hotel and sanitarium for Ashland, they would tender their resignations at once. That is buncombe, so patent that he who runs may read. They want "vindication." They promised if they were chosen at the primary they would consider they had been vindicated, and would resign. Did they do it? Not much. They want re-election for the sole purpose of wreaking their personal venom on Greer. Having disposed of him and again dominating the Chamber of Commerce, they will set about getting the hotel and sanitarium in their own good time, with probably the same results as attended their previous endeavor along the same line.

Use your intelligence Mr. Voter. Do not let the issue be befogged by these personalities. Do not let the interests of Ashland suffer because of petty jealousy. Trust these things aside and cast your vote where you believe the best interests of the community will be served, irrespective of whether it pleases friend or foe.
