What Constitutes Advertising
 In order to allay a misunderstanding among some as to what constitutes news and what advertising, we print this very simple rule, which is used by newspapers to differentiate between them: "ALL future events, where an admission charge is made or a collection is taken IS ADVERTISING." This applies to organizations and societies of every kind as well as to individuals.

All reports of such activities after they have occurred is news.
 All coming social or organization meetings of societies where no money contribution is solicited, initiation charged, or collection taken IS NEWS.

WITH BLESSED WOMAN
 Pennsylvania has approximately 60,000 clubwomen.

Talk about petticoat government! Minnesota has three women mayors.

Mother and daughter make up a successful Chicago law firm specializing in corporation law. Seems like we've heard something before about women folks "laying down the law."

A woman's ticket nominated in Altus, Ark., looked like a sure winner until the discovery was made on the eve of election that not a woman on the ticket had paid her poll tax, and under the law none was eligible to hold office. They do better than that in Oregon. Don't have any poll tax we mean.

In support of her petition for divorce a Chicago woman declared that one five-cent package of chewing gum was all that her husband has contributed to her support during a period of several years. That husband was no diplomat. You'd think self-protection from cannibal jawings would have prompted a little more generosity.

BE CAREFUL, CAMPERS!
 According to records of the federal foresters on the 23,072,793 acres of national forest lands in Oregon and Washington, 1206 forest fires occurred during the year 1921. Of this number, 469 fires, or 39 per cent, were started by lightning, which no man could possibly prevent. The next highest number was 434, or 36 per cent of the total, and these were due to careless, thoughtless or ignorant campers, mostly our own people. Frank Branch Riley is now preaching to the east the gospel of the scenic glory of the northwest. The northwest is asking the world to come and see, and come again, but will blackened mountainsides and smoke-covered skies impress the visitors?

 Somebody sent the editor of the Poketown Gazette a few bottles of home brew, relates the Dallas Mirror. The same day he received for publication a wedding announcement and a notice of an auction sale. Here are the results:
 "William Smith and Miss Lucy Anderson were disposed of at public auction at my farm one mile east of town. She wore a beautiful cluster of roses on her breast, and two white calves, before a background of farm implements too numerous to mention in the presence of about 60 guests, including two milch cows, six mules and one bob sled. Reverend Jackson tied the nuptial knot with 200 feet of hay rope and the bridal couple left on one good John Deere gang plow for an extended trip with terms to suit purchasers. They will be home to their friends with one good baby buggy and a few kitchen utensils after ten months from date of sale to responsible parties and some 50 chickens."

SOLOMONITES
 If you want to dress for work, put on a smile.
 "Passing the buck" is the approved jelly-fish method of evading responsibility.
 The only permanent and hopeless failure is that of the man or woman who has made a soul surrender.
 Serious business is a mere trifle to the average editor. It's the trifles that make serious business for him.
 The man who tries whittling himself down to the other fellow's size, pretty soon has nothing to whittle on.
 On the level, girls, what chance do you think Cleopatra would have had of landing Marc Antony if she'd sported "knickers."
 About circus time you'll notice there is not much ballhooning around the big tent. The loudest barkers are always with the side show.
 Census sharks declare that old maids are increasing. Maybe so, but we haven't noticed any marked increase in population hereabouts.
 "Old Statistician" rises to remark that more men have been brought to their knees by a flash of lace, than by all the firearms in Christendom.
 Here's a little advice from Sunset that business men might assimilate to advantage: "Don't make customers of your friends. Make friends of your customers."
 The greatest power of human kind is the ability to lift things into their proper place, but the great trouble with most of us lies in trying to lift ourselves by the boot straps.
 The man who fails generally gives all that is in him until he can't go another foot. The man who wins gives all that is in him until he can't go another foot—and then makes that foot.

SOLUTION OF THE BONUS PROBLEM
 Eliminate the income tax, with its expensive and costly collection and inconvenience.
 Assess the wealth of the nation that was acquired previous to our entry into the world war. This property was protected and preserved by the American soldiers and should justly and rightly bear this war debt. No patriotic American should object to paying his share, which would be in proportion to what he is worth.
 Plan No. 1.—To pay off the national debt in full, assess the accumulated wealth of the nation, estimated at $350,000,000,000; 10 per cent would net $35,000,000,000.
 Plan No. 2.—To pay national debt in ten years, assess this property one per cent annually for ten years; this would net same amount, $35,000,000,000.
 Plan No. 3.—Running over a period of 20 years, assess one-half of one per cent annually, which would net $35,000,000,000.
 Have the national banks loan at a reasonable rate of interest to anyone wishing to borrow on his property or his holdings for a reasonable length of time to meet these assessments—this loan to stand as first trust against his property or holdings.
 By this plan the taxes on real estate could be collected through county or state agencies from tax books and records by state officials. They could collect county, state and federal tax in one collection. Bonds and securities could be collected through corporation officials or officials of banks could collect percentage from money in bank accounts of individuals. Running expenses of the government to be met by a tariff protection.

HANG ON TO WAR STAMPS
 HOLD THEM 'TILL DUE

WASHINGTON, April 22.—"Keep your war savings stamps," is what Lew Wallace Jr., director of savings, treasury department, says to the people who hold such government securities. "Do not allow these savings to pass into the hands of speculators and suffer a loss," he added. "Hold them until they are due and the government will pay their full face value, and the purchasers will get all that the government intended they should receive when they invested their money. When cashing their stamps the people should invest them in the new treasury savings certificates which have taken the place of the war savings stamps as government securities sold in small amounts."

MRS. HUBERT WORK

W. L. McCLAUGHRY DIES IN CABIN ON HUMBUG

YREKA, April 21. — Douglas Young, a resident of the Humbug section, brought word of the discovery of the dead body of William L. McLaughry in his cabin across the gulch from the Eliza mine on Humbug creek.
 Mr. Young reported that he went to the cabin of the deceased with some food, as he had been doing for some time, and on Sunday afternoon found the man dead in his bed. Deputy Alois Turner visited the scene Monday and with a jury determined that death was from natural causes—heart trouble and indigestion being chiefly active.

THE X RAY

THE general public has little idea of the progress made in medical and surgical science during the past five or ten years. There is still a long way to go; but the advances made have placed the diagnosis and organic location of disease beyond the stage of experiment.

The science and art of X-ray diagnosis and treatment is now only 25 years old; during which time it has been developed by physicists, electric engineers, photographic chemists, and physicians.

During the first 15 years progress was slow and the knowledge gained was limited, by reason of imperfect equipment. During these 15 years the application of X-rays was restricted to the location of bullets, or the diagnosis of fractures or other diseases of bones. The interpretation of such pictures was relatively easy, and a physician with a small X-ray machine in his office was the only specialist.

The American invention of X-ray machines, such as the "interrupterless transformers" and "thermionic tubes" prepared the way for great advances. The medical use of X-rays has been, during the past ten years, expanded to the diagnosis of All diseases which produce deformity in either the bones or the organs of the body.

Today, a roentgenologist can examine the lungs, the bowels, the kidneys, and even the brain; so that diagnosis and treatment are now placed beyond the stage of guesswork, and are based upon exact knowledge.

It will be readily seen that a physician or a surgeon cannot devote time enough to the medical and surgical application of X-ray science to become proficient in it, and also in his own work. To fill this need a new specialist has arisen in this new branch of medicine, which is so intricate as to demand the entire time and study of the one engaged in it—the "roentgenologist"—the X-ray specialist. The X-ray specialist has a ground work of medical science elaborated by years of training in his special line of work.

The public is not benefited by X-ray pictures. Their health problems are concerned only with the interpretation of the results of an X-ray examination by a specialist in that work. The work of the roentgenologist forms only a part (though an important part) of the whole examination and diagnosis.

X-ray equipment may be purchased by anyone with the means to buy it; but possession of such equipment does not imply ability as a roentgen specialist, or the knowledge needed to make X-ray examinations which are of value to the patient, any more than the possession of a high-powered racing car would make a man a successful racing driver; even though he were expert in the mechanical knowledge of automobiles.

Grave danger attaches to X-ray work done by the unskilled. Inadequate machinery may be purchased, and the representation made that it is adequate and that the possessor has the skill to use it to advantage.

There are many so-called X-ray laboratories elsewhere in this region; but they cannot and should not be expected to furnish material aid to the patients.

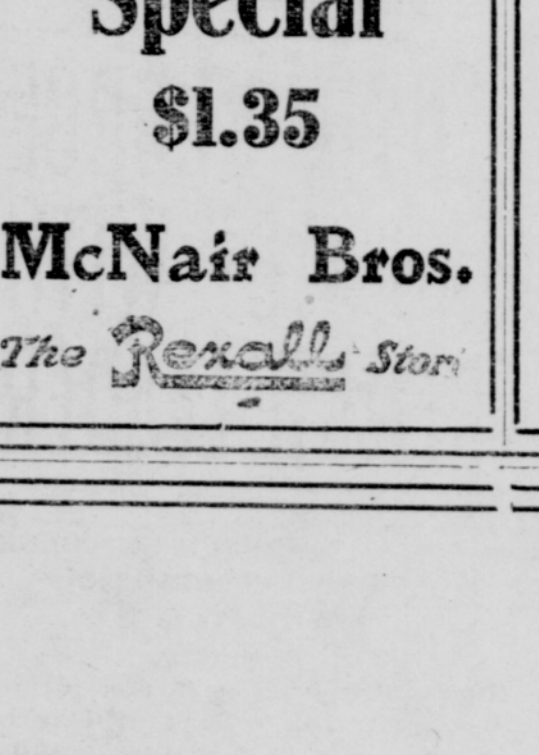

Between Portland, Oregon, and Sacramento, California, there are only two places where competent X-ray service, furnished by an X-ray specialist skilled by years of training and with adequate equipment, can be had. These are at the Sanitarium in Ashland and at the Sacred Heart Hospital in Medford. Dr. Lincoln Kallan is the roentgenologist in both places.
