In Ancient Times It Was Not a Marriage, as That Term Is Understood Today.

"Wedding" is now synonymous with "marrying," but this is a comparatively late development. Originally the two words stood for distinct things. Signal for Bucket Brigade.

Visitors in Philadelphia are often puzzled as to the significance of the 199-4 marks of some old craft. But the plaque that bears a tree does not represent the family tree of some old Quaker line, nor does the one which sports an object that looks like a churn with a hose attachment signify that the old red brick structure was once a dairy. They are the marks of old insurance companies. They date back to the days when each insurance company had its own bucket brigade for the protection of its policy holders. When the house caught fire it must be saved, if saved it was, by the company which had branded the structure as being under its protection.

First Jews in Virginia. Jews first settled in the South in Richmond, Va., more than 130 years ago. In 1791 the first synagogue was established there. In the same year the members purchased a plot of land as a burial ground to be used for the Jewish residents of Richmond, and Jews were buried there until 1816.

For a long time the congregation prospered. But in 1840 a change occurred in the fortunes of the synagogue. It was in that year that a large influx of German Jews came to America. They worshiped according to the German ritual. A number of its members left the original synagogue to establish another congregation. The then new congregation, Beth Ahaba, is still in existence. The name of the original congregation was Beth Shalome.

Lantern for New Year.

As the new year sweeps round the world from the one hundred and eightieth meridian of longitude, it gets a bright if silent welcome from the little village of Weldon, near Kettering, in Northamptonshire. There on the tower of the carish church stands a lantern 15 feet high. Erected about 200 years ago, the lantern was lighted on winter nights to guide travelers through the dark forest of Rockingham. The railway and improved roads have abolished the forest dangers, and now the lantern is lighted only once a year, on New Year's eve, to welcome in the New Year.
