"If I Could Only Get Up That Gas"

I KNOW I WOULD FEEL BETTER How often have you felt that way? How often have you wished for something to give you genuine and lasting relief from gas? Don't buy any ordinary dyspepsia tablets for temporary results. Go to a first class drug store and ask for a bottle of genuine Baalmann's Gas Tablets. Take three tablets an hour before meals and again three after eating—then watch. Now comes a surprise. No more gas, no more smothered feeling, no difficult breathing, no bloating. Remember, Baalmann's Gas Tablets are not only for the relief, but also for the prevention of gas. Most people with gas suffer from nervous dyspepsia—not common indigestion. Baalmann's Gas Tablets in the famous yellow package, price one dollar, are sold by Elhart's Drug Store and other reliable druggists. J. Baalmann, chemist, San Francisco.

SIGNS OF MODES FOR THE SEASON

Frocks Will Have Fullness; Be Longer; Will Have Decorative Sleeves.

LOOSE SHORT COAT FAVORED

French Have Adopted the Style and Americans are Following—New Woolen Fabric Good Substitute for Silk.

Frocks this spring will have fullness. They will have a little added length, but not an accentuated amount, asserts a fashion writer in the New York Times. There will be sleeves as decorative as any part of a pagant and drapings in every style allied with fabrics to defy the imagination. The pure essence of smartness will be there, while the actual spring creations, in their newest American and Parisian interpretations, await release to the public.

Length of skirts seems to be a fairly well-disputed point. Fashion people insist loudly that skirts shall be long. The fashion people and the fashion models wear long skirts, but the American women are doing nothing of the sort. Perhaps they will come around with a wild rush to dress as they are bidden, but as yet they have shown no disposition in that direction. Their only feeling for longer skirts is when they wear loosely hanging panels which bob about so saucily in the breeze that one can scarcely distinguish whether they are long or not.

Still, the fact remains that the newer spring models making their appearance have somewhat longer skirts, though not nearly so long as might have been suspected.

We have the loose, short coat for spring. This is something entirely new, for it has sleeves that often are made kimono-fashion. The French have adopted this style, and we are following, even though we are prone to consider the suit as something which must have tightly-fitted sleeves with armholes that are as defined and stitched and shaped as any tailored man's garment—and sometimes more so. The little, loose coat will be one of the spring features, and while some times it will have a skirt to match, more often it will be combined with a skirt of some other material and some contrasting color. The coat will be patterned or striped and the skirt will be plain, or the combination will be reversed and the skirt will carry the pattern, while the coat will be plain.

With or Without Wraps.

Street dresses for spring—those that can be worn with or without wraps to cover them—are perhaps the most interesting of all the new dresses. They really form the foundation-note for many costume suits, as they are called, for it is a simple matter to select a wrap or a top coat that carries out the scheme of the dress, once the costume has been given some distinction of design. Letting models show things which he considers to be the most interesting designs for wear during the coming season. They have all of the features which make the new frocks popular, and they are made from the materials which will be most used for spring.

A dress with a simulated jacket is made of dark blue wool velours, in an extremely light weight. Its edges are braided closely, so that the little addition to the bodice suggests a jacket. The sleeves are made puffed and full, and are gathered into tightly fitted and flaring cuffs, which represent features of the newer type of spring dresses.

This dress shows one of those clever usages of panels, making the skirt look surprisingly long at some angles and at others as short as the shortest of them have ever been. The rounding line taken by the panels at their lower ends adds a portion of charm to the skirt which could not possibly be gained by a straightly cut off line posed at that point.

The waistline for this frock is placed at a normal point, and it repeats the succession of rows of braiding used to trim the jacket so effectively. Then, this trimming motif is carried again into the sleeves, where it not only runs around the oddly shaped cuffs, but faces detached strips of the material that hang away from the sleeves from the elbows to the cuffs.

Sleeves—always sleeves—sleeves in varying widths and varying styles, are the salient features of the frocks which are notable for spring.

Trimmed With Ribbon Rosettes. A winsome dress is trimmed with a series of ribbon rosettes applied to a heavy crepe. The crepe is one of the brownish, goldfish tones, that can stand by itself for coloring, except for the fact that the rosettes are made of a succession of pleated and fringed ribbons in dull reds, and greens and browns.

The hat, too, has been cleverly made of a series of the same rosettes set around the brim of a closely fitting turban. And then rows of ribbon, set on straight, around the waistline and sleeves, end at one side of the waist in a fringed series of tags dangling over the skirt where it is draped at that point.

This dress shows one of the longer waistline which, from all that can be learned about the coming fashions, is something likely to remain with us for at least another season. This is cheerful news for the long, slim figures, which can so well stand the line; but for the shorter women there is every chance they will find the normal waistline and, in some instances, a line that is higher still, the fashion for them.

More and more is the fact disclosed that one places one's waistline, and the rest of the lines of one's costume, for the matter of that, exactly where one wishes, for the fashion of individuality grows upon the population as time goes on. More and more women are willing to take the courageous step which stamps them as persons with their very own style of dressing.

The newer woolen fabrics for spring are something to be wondered at and loved, for they are woven in so soft and pliable a manner that, from a distance, one cannot tell them from silken materials. The Rodier kasha cloth has made a distinct sensation, for it is being used right and left for the making of street dresses, two-piece costumes and suits of various sorts. Its chief attribute is that, while it is as soft as any woolen material coming from the looms in many a long year, it is shown in many and vivid colorings, so that any taste and any style of garment can be successfully carried out with this material as a foundation.

Kasha Cloth is Popular. For all the dresses which used to feature serge, kasha cloth is now used, for it is only a refined and beautified serge, with all the surface of a wool velours and all of the foundation weave of a serge, to give it firmness and solidity of texture.

Then silks have taken a very strong place in the designing and making of clothes for the street which are always the first dresses to be considered for spring. Silks have such strength of texture that they serve excellently for all sorts of frocks for which woolen materials have usually been employed.

It takes a long while to turn the mind in the direction of accepting silk as a material for street dresses—especially if one expects them to amount to anything after they have been given any amount of wear. However, such is the perfection of heavy silk as it is woven today that it can fairly stand alongside the heavier materials and compete with them, on an equal basis.

for all the honors of giving steady wear, of providing an economical medium of dressing, and so on, through all the necessary attributes of any material which attempts to take an honored place among those sponsored by American women for any sort of seasonal wear.

Of course, for afternoon or evening wear silks have always been accepted, but this new venture is something that will be welcomed once women come to realize the many advantages that can be gained by wearing a material that is so light and comfortable and easy to wear.

Favored for Various Garments.

Capes of silk, and wrapping coats of silk, and short coats of silk, all come within the new range of this material. Some of the most picturesque of the modern garments have been made from the new and sumptuous weaves of crepe silks lately put upon the market. One expects to find them clinging and drooping of line, and is surprised to see them with quite an up-standing manner of their own, not usually attributed to anything with a silken weave for its texture. The enhanced beauty of these silk outer things is that they can be lined with other and different colored silks, taking on an added charm thereby. Somehow one silk backed against another silk is more charming.

"Build with the Birds."

No Disappointments Millions of housewives use Calumet Baking Powder because of its dependability—because when they place their baking in the oven, they know it will "turn out" all right. They are confident of results because they know that no matter what they bake—pies, cakes, biscuits, muffins—the results will be the same—light, perfectly raised, wholesome foods.

CALUMET BAKING POWDER never disappoints. Don't prepare bakings with expensive ingredients and then have them spoiled because of an inferior leavener. Have the same assurance that the majority of other housewives have. A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 ounces. Some baking powders come in 12 ounce instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

FIRST LITTLE EVA NOW 73 YEARS OLD Mrs. Cornelia Howard McDonald, of Troy, N. Y., the Little Eva of the original "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company, recently celebrated her 73d birthday. She received a telegram of congratulation from the newest Little Eva, Gareth Hughes.

Mr. Hughes is appearing in a screen version of Thomas Beer's Saturday Evening Post story, "Little Eva Ascends," showing at the Vining theater tonight only. He plays the role of a boy whose mother is a barnstorming actress. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is in the barnstormer's repertoire, and the boy is forced to play Little Eva, even when he is 16 and his voice is changed.

"You certainly started something when you started playing Little Eva," said Mr. Hughes in his wire to Mrs. McDonald. "There is hardly a child of the theater who has not followed in your footsteps. I like to think of the changes in the theater since your acting days, the differences made by the developments in electricity for lighting productions, the changes in travel with modern railroads, and so forth. And you have lived to see all of these developments, including the swift growth of motion pictures themselves and the transportation off films by airplane. But acting is acting and probably no better today
