NEW ORLEANS OF LONG AGO

Pleasant Picture of Beautiful Southern City in the Days Before the Civil War.

New Orleans at that period was filled with gay, animated, French-speaking throngs, says the Yale Review, telling of the long ago in the Crescent city. Slaves were as numerous as they had been in the old home. The shop windows on Royal and Chartres streets had nothing to fear in comparison with the glittering streets of Saint Pierre. Fashions, luxuries, bonbons, liqueurs, books, pictures and jewelry were displayed with the same sure confidence of purchasers here as there.

What is called today the "Vieux Carre" was then the city. It was compactly built with solid brick houses, whose iron-railed balconies with their garlands of filigree work extended over the banquet; whose courtyards with great gates, then as now wide open, showed the luxuriant tropical foliage of their secluded garden—the lounging place of the gayly turbaned women and the well-dressed servant men of the establishment. Fresh meats, fresh vegetables and fruits were cried every morning in musical patois. At night the theaters, the opera and public halls kept the city awake and alive with their gayety, while children fell asleep behind the battened windows to the pretty tinkle of the ice cream cart that busily threaded its way in and out of every thoroughfare.

WANTED TO CHEER UP RIVAL

Rossini's List of His Alliments Designed to Comfort Composer Whom He Knew Disliked Him.

When thinking of celebrated musicians who loved a joke, the name of Rossini naturally occurs to us, for he was as fond of one as of his table. Here is an instance. Walking one day with a friend in Paris he met Meyerbeer, who was his only formidable rival at the time, though the two were always courteous to one another. The German, hat in hand, enquired most anxiously after the Italian's health. "Alas," said Rossini, "I am suffering from complete loss of appetite, and when I manage to eat I cannot digest. My lumbago gives me no peace, my heart is weak, and I have difficulty in breathing. My sight is failing, and my memory is going." Meyerbeer expressed himself as deeply grieved, and hoped that when next he had the good fortune of meeting "his dear friend," he might hear a better account of his health, and wished him good-day. When he had gone, Rossini's companion asked him why he had told so many fibs, for he appeared to be in the best of health. "So I am," said he, "but the old man looked so unhappy that I felt impelled to say something to cheer him."—London Times.

Parallel of John Smith Story.

A parallel for the story of Capt. John Smith of Virginia, and Pocahontas, the daughter of the Indian chief, Powhatan, comes from Maoriiland. About 1830 Billy Bundy, a Sydney whaler, who afterwards took part in the defense of Ngamotu, on the Taranaki coast, against the Waikato hordes, was captured by hostile Maoris. They tied him to a post while they prepared to turn him into a meal, and the oven was just hot enough when the chief's daughter rushed forward and threw her mat over him. This made him "tapu," and his life was saved. But there is a marked difference in the cases of Smith and Bundy. The Indians didn't propose to eat Smith, and Bundy married the girl, an act for which Smith lacked the courage.

The Life in Arizona.

A lot of these here Easterners and Big Town folks stop at Salome—not because they are crazy over the town—but they have to have gas for their machines—and after giving the town the once over (it doesn't take two looks to see it all), some of them remark: "Lord, what a place to live." I often wonder what they mean. While they are doing this, some Old Timer whose entire wardrobe never did consist of more than a three-piece suit—pants, shoes and shirt—will stick his head up over the greasewood and sage brush and after taking a quick squint (even one makes him blush) at the latest ladies' styles, exclaims to his burro: "My God, did you see that?"—Salome (Ariz.) Sun.

Oldest House in Scotland.

Dunrobin Castle, can be claimed, according to the London Daily Express as the oldest inhabited house in North Britain, having been erected by a thane of Sutherland in the Eleventh century. Much of the present mansion is modern, a feature being the creation of complete suites named after notable members or connections of the Sutherland family. One set is named the Cromarty rooms, because in 1746 the earl of Cromarty, a reckless Jacobite leader, was there captured and only saved from being beheaded on Tower hill by the efforts of his wife, the clever "Bonnie Belle" Gordon.

Business is Picking Up.

"Rastus, said the judge, sternly, 'you are found guilty of having stolen two chickens from Mr. Robinson's coop last week. The fine will be $5.'" Smiling complacently, Rastus approached the clerk of the court and laid a $10-bill on the desk. "Yassuh, Judge," he said, "so Ah gives you 10 bucks which will pay you up to and includin' nex' Sattidy night."—American Legion Weekly.

Calumet Baking Powder advertisement featuring an illustration of a baby and a can of powder. Text: 'Goes Farther. A can of Calumet Baking Powder will make more pies, cakes, biscuits, muffins, etc. than a can of most other brands. It lasts longer—goes farther because it contains more than the ordinary leavening strength—therefore you use less. When a recipe calls for two teaspoons of baking powder, use two level teaspoons of Calumet, the results will always be the same—perfectly raised bakings—remember this when you buy baking powder and don't forget that Calumet is the economic buy because it goes farther. A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.'

MADE DOG CARRY KITTENS Mother Cat Had No Compunction at All in Making Friend Do All the Work.

An English lady, says a contributor to the Cornhill Magazine, having received a kitten and a puppy as gifts, determined to bring them up together. She put them into the same bed, fed them from the same saucer, and they became fast friends.

In time the kitten arrived at maturity. She presented the world with little ones and chose for their nursery a remote and quiet room in the house. But in a few days she evidently decided that there was a better place for them in a room on the floor above. Instead of removing the kittens herself, she trotted off to her friend the dog and got him to follow her to the spot where the kittens were lying. When he had looked at them she started off to the upper room, and he followed her; but, seeing that he was to speak—"empty-handed," she doubled back and returned to the kittens; and eventually, after two or three more false starts, he understood her and, picking up one of the kittens in his mouth, followed her up the stairs to the new place. That was as far as his understanding went, and she had to conduct him back to the other kittens and repeat the whole performance again and again until in the end he had removed them all, and she was happy in her new quarters. But it was not the ideal spot after all; she was happy there only for a day. Again she summoned the dog, and he moved all the kittens again, but more readily than at first. Again the cat became dissatisfied, and the dog moved the kittens again. From first to last there were so many removals that the lady lost count of their number.

PLANTS GET OWN MOISTURE

Ingenious Device That Will Assuredly Be Welcomed by All Absent-Minded Husbands.

Stay-at-home husbands are prone to forget to water the flowers that adorn the sitting room, even though specially charged to do so by absent wives. They will doubtless welcome a device just invented by a Frenchman, M. Pinson, which enables plants literally to water themselves and to do so with efficiency, taking neither too much nor too little to drink. This device, which obtained a gold medal in France, consists of a flower pot of the usual shape, but having a double wall. The description runs, according to the Literary Digest:

The space between the two walls constitutes a reservoir of water. Into this there extends two to four curved tubes, according to the shape of the pot. Each of these tubes contains a wick. The lower end of the tube dips into the reservoir of water while the other end is bent so as to dip beneath the surface of the soil in the inner pot. Consequently we really have a set of siphons which are set in action by the capillary attraction which causes the water to rise in the wick. Thus there is a gentle but steady flow of moisture to the plant. In order to adapt the apparatus to the needs of any individual plant it is only necessary to remove the inner pot after the end of 24 hours and note whether the outer pot still holds any water. If so, the plant is oversupplied, since the excess of water has been drawn by gravity to the bottom of the inner pot and escaped through the hole in the center into the outer pot.

Piston clearances 4/1000 of an inch when cold 1/1000 of an inch under fire An automobile engine having a 4" bore will have when cold a clearance between its pistons and cylinders of approximately 4/1000 of an inch. When the same engine has been heated to operating temperature, this clearance will have decreased 75%, or to 1/1000 of an inch. Likewise, a main crankshaft bearing having a clearance of about 1 1/2/1000 of an inch when cold, will show a decrease in this clearance at operating temperature to less than 1/2/1000 of an inch. All oils lose viscosity, that is, they become lighter in body when subjected to the heat of engine operation. An analysis of Zerolene shows that the differences in its body at the various engine temperatures, from cold to operating temperature, follow in close relation the decrease in bearing clearances. The right body at all operating temperatures For this reason Zerolene oils have at all engine temperatures exactly the required body to splash and flow freely into the fast-moving, small-clearance bearings to provide an adequate film of lubricant. Because of their "oiliness," Zerolene oils cling to bearing surfaces, and at the same time offer in themselves a minimum of resistance to the engine power going to the driving wheels. For this reason they give perfect lubrication and permit the development of the maximum power, speed and gasoline mileage of the car.
