Men Now Shave Eyebrows. The "Charley Chaplin eyebrow" is the newest thing in masculine tonsorial freakery. It consists of having each eyebrow shaved half of its distance from the ears toward the center of the forehead. The effect is singularly bizarre, two tufts of hair, one over each eye and blending in size with a tuft of hair reposing in the center of the upper lip. Some of the cut omit the mustache entirely, and strut Fifth avenue clean shaven except for their shortened eyebrows. What next? Philadelphia Public Ledger.
