"SATURDAY NIGHT"—A CECIL DE MILLE PRODUCTION AT THE VINING

Cecil B. De Mille henceforth can direct his players in death-defying stunts with absolute knowledge of what is required after a personal experience in filming one of the scenes from "Saturday Night," the latest De Mille-Paramount production, which will be seen at the Vining theater tonight and tomorrow and Thursday.

In this picturization of Jeanie McPherson's story, two characters are trapped on a railway trestle a hundred feet from the ground. Abandoning their automobile, the pair swing below the ties as the motor is crushed and tossed to the gulch below by the passing train.

In rehearsing this scene, Mr. De Mille joined Leatrice Joy and Jack Mower on the trestle. All three were unaware of the approach of a train. The rehearsal suddenly became real life.

Miss Joy and Mr. Mower, being nearer the end of the trestle, reached the bank, but the director was unable to make it. Following the directions in his own scenario, he hastily swung himself out on a string-piece of the bridge and clung there as the train flashed by. Although entirely unintentional, the experience proved of value in directing the subsequent scenes in which the actors duplicated Mr. De Mille's emergency action before the cameras.

REPUBLICANS

Shall Oregon continue to hold the pre-eminence that is now hers?

Shall she forge ahead as a leader in the Republican party?

Answer "Yes!"---Vote X 13 for Ralph E. Williams for

Republican National Committeeman

In the presidential election of 1916, when there was dissension and division everywhere Oregon was the only state west of the Missouri river to go Republican. Harmony!

Progressives and Republicans united in giving credit for this remarkable achievement to Ralph E. Williams, national committeeman since 1908.

In recognition of this and other services, Ralph Williams was elected vice-chairman, the second highest honor within the power of the Republican National Committee to bestow. It is a position of influence to be reached only by years of faithful and intelligent service.

Ralph Williams is the first committeeman representative from any western state to be elected to the vice-chairmanship.

Ralph Williams is a veteran of the national organization. He stands at the head with the leaders. A new man would, of custom and necessity, stand at the foot with the followers.

Republican leaders, in Congress and out, are Ralph Williams' friends. This friendship means much to Oregon and the Northwest. Without ostentation Ralph Williams enlists the aid of these leaders for the things the Northwest needs from the national government.

Keep Oregon to the front--Don't let her slump
