Crater Lake The Beautiful "Sea of Silence"

(The Volt)

The question is here put to you regarding loss of your identity or residence, "Have you seen Crater Lake?"

Crater Lake is an astonishing creation of nature situated in the field of Copco operations, and if you are an American citizen, you are one of the numerous owners of this amazing body of water, for it is part and parcel of a national park.

If you are planning an extended motor trip for this summer, or even a brief vacation away from the scene you know so well and love—to get away for a couple of weeks—consider Crater Lake. Your personal representative, Uncle Sam, invites you to inspect results of his activities on your behalf, while you have been busy with other affairs.

But that is just one little reason why you should consider Crater Lake. The big reason is Crater Lake itself.

"The lake?" wrote Joaquin Miller, in Sunset Magazine, "The Sea of Silence? Ah, yes, I had forgotten—so much else; besides, I should like to let it alone, say nothing. It took such hold on my heart, so unlike Yosemite, Yellowstone, Grand Canyon, when first seen, that I love it almost like one of my own family. But fancy a sea of sapphire set around by a compact circle of the great grizzly rock of Yosemite. It does not seem so sublime at first, but the more it is in your eye. It is great, great; but it takes you days to see how great. It lies 2000 feet under your feet, and as it reflects its walls so perfectly that you can not tell the walls from the reflection in the intensely blue water, you have a continuous, unbroken circular wall of 24 miles to contemplate at a glance, all of which lies 2000 feet and seems to lie 4000 feet below. Yet so bright, so intensely blue is the lake, that it seems at times, from some points of view, to lift right in your face."

You may not be impressed greatly by the foregoing word picture; you must admit, however, that the late "Bard of the Sierras" was game; he did not dodge the issue by saying: "The lake? Ah, yes, it beggars description. Words utterly fail," etc. But when once you have gazed down on those waters of sapphire and indigo blue, you will realize how futile is the effort of the writer, painter or camera man to produce anything that thrills one as one is thrilled by a first hand view of Crater Lake.

Looking down for the first time on this mystic body of water, one is caught up in a swirl of emotions; for the moment neither you nor it seems a part of this earth. Startled, you look down at your feet, to the rocks you stand on, and to close-by firs, for reassurance; and perhaps you heave a sigh of relief when your glance back to the lodge finds it in its accustomed setting.

The aboriginal inhabitants of the region, the Modoc and Klamath Indians, it seems, experienced this same feeling, or one akin to it, long ago, even as the white visitor does today. It was beyond their understanding, and it frightened them. It filled them with awe, and they had no wish to be awed. So they classified it as "bad medicine" and tabooed the lake.

The Volt can confidently prescribe Crater Lake as good medicine. In the opinion of critical judges of natural beauty, like Joaquin Miller, who traveled far and wide, to see what he could see, Crater Lake is one of the most beautiful spots in America. The lake itself is not all; as the bard heretofore quoted observed, there is "so much else."

The Volt will forego any attempt to set forth the wonders of the Crater Lake national park. Instead it refers its readers to the literature on this subject issued by the department of the interior, obtainable through the National Park service, Washington, D. C., the chambers of commerce at either Ashland, Medford or Klamath Falls, from the railroad offices, and from the American Automobile association.

Ashland, Medford and Klamath Falls are gateways to Crater Lake. The majority of visitors to this national park, whether traveling by train and auto stage, or in their own machines, start from one city and return by way of the other, thus covering new country and viewing new scenery throughout the entire trip.

FIRE GUARD KNOCKED OUT BY LIGHTNING BOLT WALKER, Calif., June 15.—During a thunderstorm last week, lightning struck a tree close to the looking station on the Siskiyou mountain, putting the telephone out of service for a while and knocking William Fisher, the fire guard, unconscious for a little while.

FORMER ASHLAND NEWSPAPER MAN DIES IN COLORADO

Many Ashland residents will be grieved to learn of the death at Granada, Colo., May 31, of T. F. Kershaw, formerly of this city. For a number of years, dating from about 1905, Mr. Kershaw was city editor of the Tidings. He was very highly esteemed in business, social and church circles here, generally recognized as a man of splendid character and ability.

The following details are from the Granada, Colo., Leader of June 2: T. F. Kershaw, former editor of the Granada Leader, a highly respected citizen of the town, died at his home in Granada, Wednesday, night, May 31, 1922. Mr. Kershaw was forced to discontinue all business activities last January on account of a leakage in his heart and in the hopes that complete rest would improve this condition, but he has grown steadily worse and passed away at 9 o'clock Wednesday night.

Theodore P. Kershaw was born in Centerville, Michigan, March 29, 1861. His father, a minister of the Gospel, moved with his family to New York and New Jersey and later back to Michigan. When 16 years old he entered the newspaper business in which he continued most of his active life. In early life Mr. Kershaw joined the Presbyterian church and has always been a consistent supporter and an active worker in the church wherever he lived. His especial interest was the Sunday school, being superintendent of Sunday schools in Ashland, Portland and Newport, Or., Salinas, Calif., and at Granada.

RATES ON BERRIES WILL BE INVESTIGATED

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Senator McNary today replied to messages from W. H. Paulhamus, of Puyallup, Wash., president of the Berry Growers' association, and Robert Paulus, manager of the Oregon Growers co-operative association at Salem, protesting against the continued high rates on berries, that after a conference with interstate commissions, he believes the whole subject will be investigated.

RUSSIA AND FINLAND SIGN A PEACE TREATY

MOSCOW, June 14.—Russia and Finland have signed a treaty of peace treaty to prevent further outbreaks of fighting along the Russo-Finnish frontier. Russia simultaneously served a warning that if the Finnish troops made any more raids, Russia would regard it as a cause for war. Under the treaty, a neutral zone is established, and Finland is required to withdraw her troops from the boundary.
