What Constitutes Advertising In order to allay a misunderstanding among some as to what constitutes news and what advertising, we print this very simple rule, which is used by newspapers to differentiate between them:

ALL future events, where an admission charge is made or a collection is taken IS ADVERTISING. This applies to organizations and societies of every kind as well as to individuals.

All reports of such activities after they have occurred is news. All coming social or organization meetings of societies where no money contribution is solicited, initiation charged, or collection taken IS NEWS.

SOLOMONITES A FRIEND OR TWO

There's all of pleasure and all of peace, in a friend or two. And all your troubles may find of peace, in a friend or two.

It's in the grip of the clasping hand, on native soil or in alien land, But the world is made—do you understand? Of a friend or two.

Since the coal strike there are more anxious eyes "watching our smoke" than there was during war times.

An exchange says that in its relationship to The Hague conference, international strife is a homing pigeon.

If you want to get a real good look at the man who is always in a position to "do you dirt," look in the mirror.

Curious that even at The Hague, it seems impossible for the nations to bury the hatchet without "everlastingly" bringing the hammer into play.

Ever notice that the guy who is always telling you that "everything comes to the man who waits, is the first to grab, lest anything get by him?"

Lloyd George at the Genoa conference, sent out an S. O. S. calling on the United States to lead. Wonder if he didn't think "lead" when he said "lead"?

A San Francisco newspaper is running a serial on the topic: "Can a man love two women?" The author plays safe, however. He doesn't tell how it's done.

Wonder why so many "swan-like" necks have a tendency to turn to rubber? And again, why do "rough-necks" display the same tendency to such a marked degree?

A well-known prohibitionist declares that if a ban was placed on limburger cheese, there are some folks who would be arrested for carrying it in chunks on their hips.

Now that the former budget chief, Charlie Dawes, has retired to private life, it is possible he may take to writing his memoirs of Washington as it is. "Profanity as a Fine Art," for a title might make it one of the

THE BACHELOR MAID

We can all poke fun at the bachelor girls. With their prim and eccentric ways. Their cats and canaries and corkscrew curls. And the number and length of their days; We can giggle and wink when their backs are turned And make them the butt of our fun, And josh them about the men they have spurned, And the early conquests they won —

But somehow the bachelor maid glides on, and her life seems contented and sweet; she sleeps like a top when the day is done, finds raiment and plenty to eat. Don't offer your driving sympathy nor pity her lonely life; it isn't needed by such as she, save it up for your own dear wife.

Just step to the glass there, you gay old rake, and take a squint at yourself. Did she show poor judgment in failing to take such a contract as you on herself? She took your measure and sized you up, and decided, for better or worse, she would pin her faith to a brindle pup and save the expense of divorce.

You say she is childless? Not so, old boy, see them cluster about her chair; her heart is big with a motherly joy, while she welcomes "her children" there—

And lonely, you say? I reckon not. Her cup is full to the brim, While she glads full many a lonely spot, Full many an eye that is dim. The bachelor maid is the salt of the earth, The queen of her own destiny; The life she leads is the proof of her worth, And she smiles at your weak sympathy.

There is always some balm in Gilead. With the coal strike still in full swing, and a threatened tie-up of railroad traffic, the annual car shortage will probably be postponed.

Jesse Winburn will revel in his element at Sap-and-Salt today. Apparently he brings sunshine into his life from its reflection on the faces of happy kiddies. This would be a much pleasanter world to live in if a whole lot of others took a leaf out of the same book.

Old Sol smiled down with his broadest grin, or whatever it is he does when he tries to cook us alive, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. The temperature arose to 103 here Sunday, which was the hottest day, gauged by the Southern Pacific thermometer.—Dunsmuir News.

WHY A SPECIAL ELECTION?

It begins to look as if the petition for the recall of Sheriff Terrill is likely to have hard s'edding. A petition has been industriously circulated asking the signers to withdraw their names, and it is a noticeable fact that many of the names attached to this last petition are those of men who stand high in the community, and are of various shades of political faith. It is not that they are rushing into the breach in defense of Terrill. In fact there are many names on the petition opposed to the recall, who freely criticize the actions of that official. The animus which apparently lies behind this movement is the fact that with taxes reaching up to a back-breaking pinnacle, it seems foolhardy, to say the least, to call a special election that will add to the tax burden about $4000, when the same purpose could be served, in the opinion of a recall, at the general election in November, without subjecting the county to the additional and seemingly unnecessary expense of a special election.

REGULATION FOR STAGES

The accident down the canyon last week in which three persons lost their lives when the Pickwick stage was wrecked makes one wonder whether the accident would have been avoided if stage lines were as thoroughly regulated by law in regard to safety requirements as railroads are.

Passenger carrying stages should be required by law to exercise every precaution for the safety of passengers. If such legal requirements are good for trains, why not also for stages? Stages are affected by law somewhat, but probably not to the extent that railroads are. Stages, on account of the large number of individuals engaged in the business, need to be more firmly regulated than the railroads in regard to safety for passengers. The fact that so many reckless drivers are turned loose on the highways with automobiles makes the risk greater for stages, although that is no fault of the stages.

It might help some if all drivers of stages were made to pass a state examination as to their qualifications.—Dunsmuir News.

The government of Georgia will erect a wireless telegraph station that will communicate with the principal cities of the rest of Europe and four radio telephone stations for inter-city service.

THIS IS THE MONTH

To pick berries. To hunt the shade. To can all you can. To wonder where all the weeds come from.

To clean out all the weeds and bushes along the roadway. To put down eggs in water glass. The prices will soon go up.

To give a little special thought to the real meaning of the Fourth. To sell all the broody hens. Hens wanting to sit out of season are wasters.

To scratch at chiggers. There is no real remedy except a warm salt bath.

To wean the spring pigs. Feed warm milk for a few days, gradually changing to skim milk and shorts.

To keep plenty of fresh water before the stock and poultry. In hot weather terrible suffering can be caused by just a few hours of neglect.

To fight the worms and insects that insist upon getting a square meal for nothing. The spray pump is the best thing to discourage their appetites.—Farm Life.

"OVER THE BORDER" AT THE VINING THEATRE

To we "stay at homes," who live our sedate lives within the borders of civilization, romance always exists in those new lands where man is just gaining a foothold. There was a day when the west, that section west of the Mississippi, was the storied land of America. There existed the Indian, the frontiersman, the buffalo and the cowpuncher. There was excitement, adventure and a life worth living.

But civilization following close on the trail of the pioneer, drove romance further westward, and today, Alaska and the Canadian wilds are considered the last frontier, the last home of romance and adventure.

Such is the unusual setting of "Over the Border," which is to be presented at the Vining tomorrow and Monday.

LADIES' AUXILIARY OK K.K.K. INCORPORATE AT CAPITAL SALEM, July 8.—The Ladies of the Invisible Empire, the women's auxiliary of the Ku Klux Klan has filed articles of incorporation for Oregon.

The articles of incorporation explain the objects and purposes of the organization as being "to develop the physical and mental capacity of its members and others; to promote better acquaintance and closer association between its members; to promote and preserve the American free public school system; to preserve the purity and supremacy of the white race and to unite in one inseparable bond the Protestant women of the world."

SECOND BROOD CODLING MOTH SPRAY The second brood of codling moth is beginning to emerge. This brood will string along for several weeks. Apples should be sprayed between the 10th and 15th of July, following with another application in two or three weeks.

In old blocks of Bartlett pears where worms have been bad, these pears should be sprayed between the 10th and 15th and again about August 1st. The pear orchards where worms have not been so bad, and where one application will control, this should be made from July 17th to 22nd. This application will probably be all that is necessary in Bartlett pears in most of the orchard districts.

A casein spreader of a pound to 200 gallons may be beneficial at this time. There is going to be a lot of damage from codling moth, and the spraying for the second brood should be very thoroughly applied.

Use from four to six pounds of dry arsenate of lead, and eight to 12 pounds of paste, to 200 gallon tank. By measuring the required amount of lead out in different pails and soaking in water over night, the efficiency for spreading qualities will be increased very materially. Examine bands that are on the trees every four or five days and kill all the worms that you find under the bands. This is very important and will give results.
