Peculiar Old English Belief.

An odd custom which brought the key and the Bible together was one that used to prevail in England up to within the latter quarter of the last century. It was called "Key and Bible," and was used for the detection of thieves. A key was placed over an open Bible at the words, "Whither thou goest, I will go" (Ruth 1:16) and the fingers of the person being held, so as to form a cross, the text was repeated. The names of suspected persons were then pronounced in succession, and when the name of the thief was uttered, the key was supposed to jump and dance about. An instance of this method of thief-finding was brought before the magistrates at the borough petty sessions at Ludlow as late as January, 1879.

America's Youngest Woman Explorer Returns

Gertrude Emerson, Noted Editor, Visits Buried Cities in Asia

"Miss Marco Polo"—the title earned in the Orient by adventurous Gertrude Emerson, associate editor of "Asia," for her indomitable explorations—is safe on American soil again, to the infinite relief of her friends.

For this intrepid small person, who is just five feet tall and only weighs ninety-six pounds, went all around the world during the last two years, absolutely alone, on a still hunt for picture and story material for her magazine.

People Courteous Everywhere Wherever she went, people were solicitous for her safety, but she waved warnings aside and blithely kept on with her exploring. She hunted tigers in Indo-China, and crocodiles in India; she traveled by elephant, camel, sampan, horseback, motor, aeroplane and ocean liner over so many thousands of miles that she lost count of them herself.

She visited Angkor, a buried city of Cambodia, rediscovered by the French in 1910, where only one hundred persons had ever been since. She explored the famous bat caves of the Philippines and took dangerous motor trips across Indian country that was infested with fanatical insurgents. She was the only passenger on a cargo boat, going from Port Said to Constantinople, which two months before had been held up by the Turks with resultant large death rate. "But I wasn't scared," she offers casually. "An American woman can go anywhere and do it, if not in person at least by way of pencil or pen."

American Music Heard 'Round The World.

"For instance, there was the zippy little waltz 'Three O'clock in the Morning' to which I danced American dances in Yokohama, Paris, Bangkok and London. Dorothy Terris, an American girl, wrote the words to that, and now it's an international tune, played not only by foreign dance orchestras, but by the natives themselves on their own peculiar instruments.

"The ship's orchestra played it on my way over from London and when I got home, a phonograph in a near-by apartment greeted me with the familiar

"It's three o'clock in the morning. We've danced the whole night through. And daylight will soon be dawning. Just one more waltz with you."

"It was hard for me to realize that I was really at home again."

A BUSINESS COUPE FOR BUSINESS MEN

This car represents a new and important achievement in commercial transportation.

For the first time in motor car history, business men are enabled to buy a closed car, the body of which is built throughout of steel.

The advantages of this all-steel construction—reserved until now to open cars—are particularly marked in a coupe built to weather the wear and tear of hard commercial usage.

Immediately you will be impressed with the beauty and lightness of this coupe. Time will convince you of its unusual stamina. The doors snap neatly shut. Body squeaks are eliminated. Dodge Brothers enamel is baked on the surface of the steel—a permanent lustrous finish, impervious to wear.

The interior is roomy and thoughtfully equipped with every appointment necessary to the owner's comfort and all-weather protection.

Business houses that equip their salesmen with motor cars have been quick to recognize in this coupe a very unusual investment.
