What Constitutes Advertising
 In order to allay a misunderstanding among some as to what constitutes news and what advertising, we print this very simple rule, which is used by newspapers to differentiate between them: "ALL future events, where an admission charge is made or a collection is taken IS ADVERTISING." This applies to organizations and societies of every kind as well as to individuals.

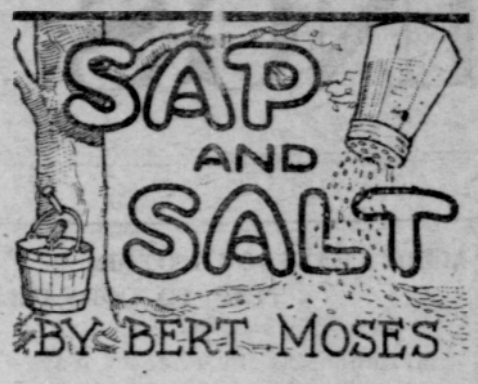

All reports of such activities after they have occurred is news.
 All coming social or organization meetings of societies where no money contribution is solicited, initiation charged, or collection taken IS NEWS.

SOLOMONITES
 Notice that the citizens who can never find time to vote are the ones who do the most fault-finding after election.

The developments in the industrial turmoil as they are unfolded day by day, tend to confirm the opinion that compulsory arbitration is the only practical solution of the ever-recurring differences between capital and labor.

never help any nation, no matter what the outcome. Seems to us that he is about the best qualified authority in the world on that subject.
 At the present writing, the most ardent advocates of the abandonment of primary elections, are to be found in Indiana, Pennsylvania and Idaho. Seems like we have a recollection that the "old guard" was recently handed pretty stiff jolts in those particular regions.

President Harding says the coal mines must be opened, if it has to be done at the point of federal bayonets. Something radically wrong when such action is necessary to protect the public from itself. The coal miners and the rail workers form a very considerable portion of the public.

The injunction that was to stop the recall election, according to the Mail Tribune, is still in pickle and will probably be taken from the brine early next week. Meantime, the ballots for the election are being printed, and all the necessary arrangements have been completed for the election to be held on Saturday, July 29. That's only nine days away, and it is not likely any judge could be found who would be willing to throw a monkey wrench into the machinery in the form of an injunction at this late date. That the matter will be finally threshed out in the courts, there is little doubt.

and in all probability, should the election result in the recall of the sheriff, an effort would be made to invalidate the election.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

Respect for Law

Editor of Tidings:
 President Harding made clear his standing on prohibition at his recent visit to his home town, Marion, Ohio, when he said: "The eighteenth amendment denies to a small minority a fancied sense of personal liberty, but the amendment is the will of the great majority of the American people, and must be sustained by the government and public opinion, else contempt of law will undermine our very foundations."

We temperance forces of Jackson county are alive to this very peril expressed in that last line of President Harding, and we like that verb "must be sustained," and when men to whom we have committed that sacred duty have betrayed their trust, it is not only our right but our duty to take his office from him and give it to another. The recall election July 29 is a challenge to Jackson county patriotic citizens to cast such an overwhelming vote for the upholding of law that bootleggers will know that the people have still a voice in government. The constitution "must be sustained."

One of the gravest perils to our government is the lack of interest on the part of voters, as evidenced in the spring primaries. Thousands, yes, several millions of voters did not care enough about our country's interest to take a few minutes' time to go to the polls.

If we had failed to help in war time, we would have been "slackers." If we fail in peace time are we any better?

At a time in ancient Israel when there was need of everyone to his post to fight the national foe, and a woman had led the tribes to victory and the song was sung of the battles won in the name of God and country, this sentence occurs: "Cursed be Meroz, because they came not to the help of the Lord." The curse that shall come upon America if we fail to uphold law, is plain to be seen in the quite near future. But the song goes on, "In the tribe of Reuben there were great searching of hearts." It is time right now to do some heart searching and think in terms of decency, safety, morals and honor. Be sure the bootleggers will vote; will the Christian people do so?

Rhythmic Philosophy

By Dick Posey

THERE, LITTLE GIRL, DON'T CRY!

You have my sympathy, little girl,
 The men don't like your clothes,
 Nor your hair combed over your pretty ears, poke fun at your powdered nose; they say you should dress more modestly, now that you're all grown up—
 But you're just as sweet as your grandma was
 When she covered her wishbone up.
 They get all sobby and full of tears
 As they talk of the good old days
 When your grandma swayed the hearts of men with her winning and winsome ways; how she built her dresses up to her chin and down below her knees—
 But you're all right, girly, I vote for you strong,
 Just dress as you ding dang please.

I remember, your grandma wore a train
 And she swept the sidewalk clean,
 And the men stood back and they groused and growled as they always have, I wear, but she went right on in her own sweet way, just as you do, my dear,
 As she mopped up measles and typhoid germs
 And scattered them everywhere.

When she put on bustles and big hoop skirts
 The men folks jeered and mocked;
 And when she banged her beautiful hair, strong, virile men were shocked, but they kept on falling in love with her, as with you, my dear, today—
 They may grouch and grumble and jeer and mock,
 But they fall for you, anyway.

So you're just as sweet as your grandma was,
 And she was winsome and true;
 You would look like sin if you dressed like her, and she wouldn't have dressed like you, but her heart was clean, and her soul was white, and her fair name stands undimmed—
 It is not the cut of your gown, my dear,
 But the way that your soul is trimmed.

PERFORMANCE PROVES SAVAGE TIRES Are BUILT TO EXCEL NEAR EL PASO, TEXAS

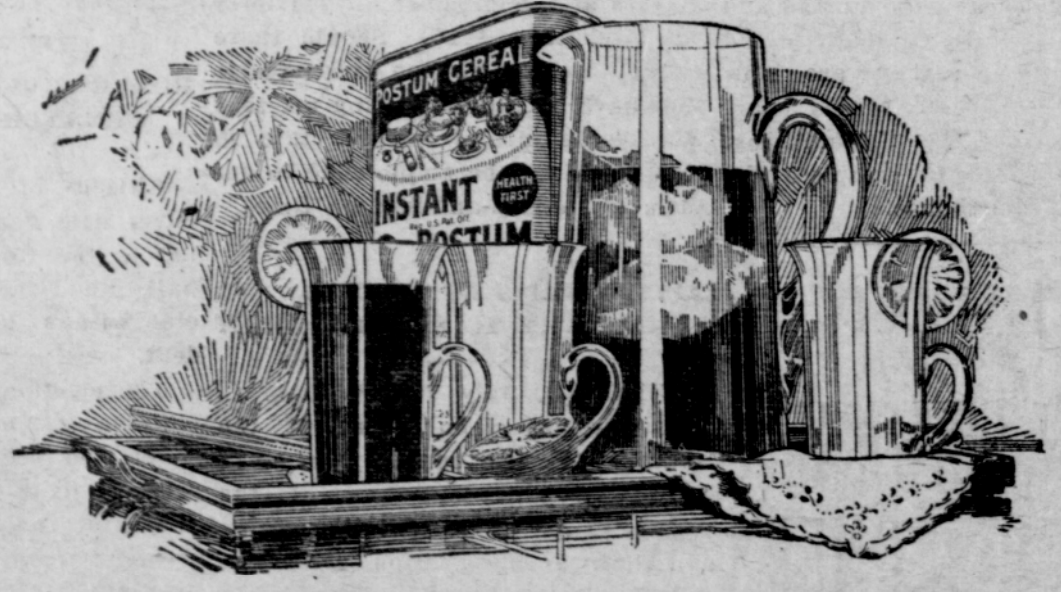

It is generally admitted that the roads in Southwestern Texas and New Mexico give the rubber equipment on an automobile unusually severe wear. Where roads are unpaved, the crushed rock and gravel surfacing in this territory makes a road difficult to cope with. The tread of a tire, to give most nearly perfect service, must be soft enough to prevent "cutting" and "chipping," yet so tough that it prevents undue wear—a rare combination.
 How successfully we have overcome these local road conditions may be judged from the following performance data taken from our general office files showing the remarkably consistent service Savage tires are giving in this territory.
City Commercial Service
 A local concern, operating a fleet of cars and trucks in general hauling service, finds Savage tires are giving greater mileage under all conditions than any other make they have used. In this service Savage tires have been in continuous operation for the past twelve months, delivering 12,000 miles to date, and the tread is only half worn. According to the operators, other makes of tires are completely worn out if they last to deliver this mileage.
 The sixteen casings originally purchased from us by another local concern, operating in the upper and lower valleys, have been used continuously for the past year on White Trucks. These tires have averaged 16,000 miles to date—a most remarkable record. Other tires used previously in the same manner gave but very low mileage.
On Territorial Runs
 An El Paso company, covering the New Mexico and Arizona territory, is using Savage "D" Type fabric tires. In this unusually severe territory the best mileage received from other fabric tires has been 6000 miles. Our "D" Types are averaging 9000 miles—a 50% greater mileage than the highest previously received.
 Over 100 cords on a fleet of cars used by the salesman of a company covering West Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and parts of Mexico, are also delivering 50% greater mileage than any other tire used by this company under similar conditions.
Unusual Service
 In patrol work on a heavily loaded truck, off the beaten track and hitting across lots, Savage Tires are standing up under real abuse—rendering far better service for their operator than any other tire previously used.
 Seventeen constructional features used in the building of the Savage Cord account to a great extent for the remarkable performance of that tire in this and other territories.
 Almost any tire will give satisfactory service under ideal conditions. Some makes will even render satisfactory service under certain adverse conditions. Certain makes of tires will perform best on long drives over pavements, other makes will show to better advantage on dirt highways—and so it goes.
 Our object has been to build Savage Tires to perform equally well under every condition—on the short haul of the heavily laden commercial car, on the heated roads of the sandy desert, over mud and stones of the land of forests or the broad dirt highways of the plains.
 That we have accomplished our purpose is evident from the results users of Savage Tires are getting—everywhere.
