ASK INJUNCTION TO STOP RECALL OF THE SHERIFF

JUDGE CALKINS SETS HEARING ON APPLICATION FOR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Sponsors for Recall Proceedings Against Sheriff Terrill Are Cited To Appear and Show Cause Why Order Should Not Issue.

A complaint was filed in the Jackson county circuit court about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, asking that an injunction be granted against the recall petition as filed several days ago with County Clerk Chauncey Florey.

The complaint was signed: "C. E. Terrill, W. C. Daley and any other who may desire to join in this action." Upon being presented with the complaint, Judge Calkins set the return date for Wednesday, July 26, at 9:30 a. m., at which time arguments will be heard on the application.

Sheriff Terrill, by the nature of the action is automatically disqualified from serving in the case, the county coroner serving all papers. County Coroner Perl, acting in that capacity served summonses on John J. Hogstratt, W. Judson Oldfield, Chauncey Florey, D. M. Lowe, Geo. Iverton, Clay Walker, Howard Hill, Thomas E. Goodie, R. L. Ray, and W. D. Hughes to appear in the circuit court on next Wednesday and show cause why the injunction should not be granted.

Sheriff Terrill has engaged quite an array of legal advisors, having retained Briggs & Briggs of Ashland, Judge Watson of Gold Hill, Reames & Reames, Newberry & Newberry, G. M. Roberts, Porter J. Neff and B. F. Lindas, of Medford. There have been general conferences of these legal advisors, and together they have formed what they believe to be a complaint which will hold through all the courts. It is their intention, if they fail to receive a favorable decision in the circuit court to carry the case to the supreme court of the state.

TALL CORN GROWS IN ASHLAND GARDEN

Many people are dubious about corn growing in this section, and some are bold enough to make statements to the effect that the ground is not good enough to raise anything of that kind, but S. A. Hawks, 128 Factory street, is an enthusiastic Ashland booster, and in an effort to substantiate the statement that anything can be grown in Ashland, he planted some corn on May 5th this year, and saw that it had plenty of water at all times. Today he sent a stalk of the corn to the Tidings office measuring eight and one-half feet in height, out in full tassel and with good hearty shoots started for an ear of corn.

HALL-OLCOTT RECOUNT CASE IS ARGUED

SALEM, Or., July 20.—Two legal points—whether a voter may register in one precinct and cast his ballot in another, and whether a voter may change his party registration on election day—is being argued before Judges Percy Kelly and George Bingham in the Marion county circuit court by attorneys representing Charles Hall, primary election candidate who was defeated for the republican gubernatorial nomination, and Governor Ben W. Olcott, contestee.

Attorneys for the governor filed a motion yesterday contending that these points be eliminated from Hall's complaint demanding a recount of votes. The election laws expressly recognize the right of an elector to change his registration from one party to another on election day. Olcott's attorneys declared in their arguments.

Declaring they could furnish the names of 1000 persons voting the republican ticket in the primaries, who had registered previously as democrats and independents, attorneys for Hall attacked the motion to strike out the two disputed points in the complaint, holding that Olcott's only recourse was to file an answer to the petition.

JOHN Q. ADAMS ELECTED CAPTAIN LOCAL COMPANY

At an election, held at the Ashland armory last Monday evening at 8 o'clock, under the supervision of Major Schur, United States property and disbursing officer of Oregon, First Lieutenant J. Q. Adams was unanimously elected captain of the Ashland company, to succeed Captain William M. Briggs, whose resignation was announced some time ago.

Lieutenant Adams, with his energy and knowledge of military affairs will doubtless be able to do big things for the local organization. He is a crack rifle shot, and has been in attendance at some of the national rifle matches—last year representing the state of Oregon at Camp Perry, Ohio.

Adams is considered one of the best posted men in the coast artillery corps of Oregon, with a record of many years satisfactory and efficient service back of him. The Ashland company is certainly lucky to have a man of his caliber to put at the head of the organization.

The national guard company brings into Ashland thousands of dollars every year, with a minimum outgo, and certainly is an asset that should be encouraged and backed up by every resident of this city, and it is hoped that Captain Adams will be given loyal support from his fellow townsmen.

Captain Adams, in an interview today, stated that he was not yet ready to announce the new appointments to fill the vacancies in the company, but will do so shortly.
