MIRACULOUS ESCAPE Photoplay Star Near Death in Runaway - Three Film Players

Seriously Injured as Stagecoach Overturns

GLADYS WALTON HAS

LADYS WALTON, screen star, had a miraculous escape from death when a stage coach she was driving turned turtle at Seven Oaks, Calif., where a Universal company was on loca-tion. Vernon Steele, popular leading man, was badly hurt about the head and hands, and Wilfred North and "Baldy" Belmont so seriously hurt that they were forced to retire from the cast.

The accident occurred while the unit was filming "The Girl Who Ran Wild." an adaptation of Bret Harte's "M'Liss," under the direction of Rupert Julian. This particular scene is one of the big mo-ments of the play and all the players were working under a terrific strain. The horses had been lashed into a wild gallop and were dashing madly over the road, when the front wheel struck a large boulder. The old-fashioned coach crashed over on its side and the frightened horses dragged the vehicle for fifty, feet before they could be stopped. North and Belmont were unconscious when taken from the wreckage and were rushed to a hospital Steele was given treatment at the nome of a rancher and then removed to his hotel.
