To Take Moving Pictures of Mars

This famous reflecting telescope lens, the only one of its kind in the world, which was made in Greenville, Pa., twenty years ago by Rev. John Peate, a retired Methodist minister, will soon be put to a practical use when an attempt will be made to take motion pictures of Mars. The lens, which is 62 inches in diameter, is now at American University, Washington.

Watching Rome Fall

NERO fiddled when Rome burned, but this Visigoth stood and directed the plunder when the city fell before his rushing hosts. The role is played by Thomas Meighan in a tremendous spectacle made a part of "Manslaughter" by Cecil B. DeMille in his newest Paramount production. It is said to be one of the biggest scenes ever attempted in motion pictures.

Hotel Built on Gold Mine.
Eight years ago a new hotel was constructed in Helena, Mont., on Main street which occupies the site of Las Chance gulch, where the placer miners worked in the sixties and extracted something like $30,000,000. The contractor who excavated for the foundation hauled the ground away, washed it in sluice-boxes and made a tidy sum of money. It happened that the old-time placer miners didn't work the ground thoroughly. There are large areas of so-called placer ground in various parts of Western Montana which contain gold and which, according to report, might be profitable if dredged on a large scale.—Chester C. Davis, commissioner of agriculture of Montana, in Adventure Magazine.

IDENTITY OF MAN FOUND AT PENDLETON UNSOLVED

PENDLETON, Or., Aug. 28.—Walter Scott, local ranch hand, now in the employ of Lawrence Hagan, yesterday met the people who had identified him as the dead man still being held by Deputy Coroner J. F. Brady, for identification. When he met the people who believed him dead, the surprise was great, and now it is believed that is reason to doubt if the dead man was ever in Pendleton. Most of the people who viewed the body in the morgue and declared that they had seen the man in Pendleton, think that it was Walter Scott that they had seen.

The identity of the murdered man is still a mystery.
