Two Bewhiskered Smiles

SOMEBODY coined the phrase "smiling through tears," but it remained for T. Roy Barnes and his dog to demonstrate smiles through whiskers. As the tramp in "The Old Homestead," which has just been filmed by Paramount, Mr. Barnes supplies much of the comedy in the famous old Denman Thompson classic. It is said to be one of the best characterizations he has ever given.

How Was Bruin Killed? By Gun Or By Oratory

With the opening of the hunting season ten days past, stories of bold and fearless hunters and various "bear" stories are beginning to come to light. This, the latest, is credited to the Klamath Falls Herald.

What the Herald wants to know is— Did Jud Short shoot the bear or was it talked to death by the Rev. E. F. Daugherty?

This question was advanced by the Rev. W. S. Bobbitt, of Woodland, Calif., who returned recently from a hunting trip on the headwaters of Cherry creek, together with Mrs. Bobbitt, the Rev. Daugherty, of Los Angeles, and J. H. Sims, of Merrill. Short was their guide.

"Not that I wish to cast any reflections upon my friend's vocal powers," said Bobbitt; "rather to the contrary, in fact. And that's why I wondered."

The bear, it appears, was brought to camp by Short, whose story of having clubbed it to death, aroused the suspicions of the Woodland preacher—suspicions directed against his Los Angeles contemporary.

"I happened to remember," said Bobbitt, "that Daugherty, a few minutes before had been getting the 'Ravings of John McCullough' off his chest. I examined the bear and found no marks except a peculiar condition around the ears. Examining closer, I was amazed to find both ear drums split and the brain muddled. Recalling my own feelings during Daugherty's oratorical spasm I came to the conclusion that the bear was simply talked to death. This is the first case of its kind to come to my attention during many years in the open, and I shall communicate the results of my discovery to the Smithsonian Institution."

Rev. Bobbitt said his admiration for his hunting companion had increased fourfold, and that on a deer hunting trip at Clearlake, he would propose that no guns be carried in order to more thoroughly test the Los Angeles preacher's remarkable powers.

UNIQUE WILL MADE ON BACK OF PHOTO

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Written on the back of a photograph and minus the signatures of witnesses usually required, one of the most unique wills on record has been admitted to probate in the surrogate's court here.

The document disposes of the effects of James Murray, master sergeant of airship school detachment United States army, who was one of the enlisted men killed in the airship Roma—accident at Langley field, last February. The photograph on which the combination will and letter is written, was taken May 14, 1913.

The will was filed for probate by John J. Sammon on behalf of Charles Ellis, whose petition says he knew Murray for 25 years.

A Novel Dress Effect

BY the unusual combination of combs, two strings of pearls and a locket the artists of the Paramount organization have here secured a remarkably effective art creation for Nita Naldi, the new leading woman of the Paramount Stock Company. This is one of the designs created for her in the picturization of "Blood and Sand," in which Rodolph Valentino is starred. Miss Naldi was cast in the role of Dona Sol.

Watch the Man With the Advertising Idea

---he may be the coming brains of your business

Look over the young executives who direct the retail and the manufacturing businesses of New York.

A surprisingly large percentage of them have reached their goals by advocating advertising, by directing the advertising and by making the advertising work.

If yours is a business which doesn't advertise, don't close your ears to the story of your young men. Help them to think it out—listen to their plans and their hopes. Add the counsel of years of experience to the minds of the men who are planning the future of your business.

Did you ever expect that iron could be advertised profitably? Few advertising men did. Did you ever expect to eat trade marked grapefruit? It is an accomplished fact at thousands of breakfasts this morning. Did you ever think the dairymen could profitably use the forces of publicity or that a barber-shop could grow to twenty-five, largely by the power of the written word and an ideal of service.

The coming executives realize that a business exists, in the last analysis, in the minds of its customers, rather than in four walls and a roof, and, perhaps, that is why they are the coming executives.
