Work at Fair Grounds—
As many public-spirited citizens as possibly could be rounded up for the occasion were busy today raking the speedway at the Jackson county fair grounds. For some time a gang of men have been working the track, removing the loose rocks as fast as they worked their way to the surface. In order that the track might possess the proper finish, a "sandpaper" edge was made through the use of hand rakes.

New Dinner Gowns Following Straight and Narrow Lines

SIMPLE SELF-TRIMMED CREPE DE CHINE IN ONE SOLID COLOR—THE TYPICAL DINNER GOWN OF THE HOUR.

AGNES AYERS WEARS A BLACK DOTTED GOWN POLKA-DOTTED WITH BLACK PANSIES.

IN the forthcoming season of splendid evening gowns in silver and gold lace, glittering spangles and luscious velvet, the crepe de chine dinner gown stands out because of its chic simplicity. It is usually of one solid color, self-trimmed and made to follow the straight and narrow way, which leads to That Perfect Gown for which we all long. One of these gowns is shown in the sketch above to the left. It is slightly and tightly draped about the waist and has no trimming, unless one considers as such the self cord bindings along all edges. And, yes, a small—very small—cord rosette over the right hip.

The material is drawn to the right side, from where it trails into a long slender, tapering side train. It is in solid blue. The beads worn with this type of dress are usually pearl, but very often coral, and occasionally clear amber—always with earrings to match the beads. The dinner gown in the photo is a simple thing in black, worn by Agnes Ayers, the Paramount picture star, in "Borderland." It is of black crepe de chine, falling straight from bateau neck-line to the bottom, where it falls into an irregular hem line, slightly raised from the ground on the left side and sloping down into a side train on the right. It is trimmed in self cording and bound with double rows of the cording on all edges. At the right side several cord strings are tied and looped, with ends trailing down to the ground. The gown is made unusual by its polka dotting of small black velvet pansies. These are all-black, without the usual tiny yellow centers—and are tacked through their centers to the gown. This is done all over the whole thing. The sketch to the right shows another crepe de chine dinner dress with side panels that form trains on either side. The top sides of the panels are edged with flowers. The skirt is of a circular cut in front that makes it ripple and swing in an effective manner with each step. This model originally had self flowers, but in the version above they are of golden yellow with a bronzed pink. The dress is coral.

for using it is the same old reason of economy. Crescent has more leavening power, so you can use less. A level teaspoon to the cup of flour is enough. You can use more if you wish as Crescent does not cause bitter taste. A good test is to dissolve a teaspoonful in water. You'll find only the natural, slightly salty taste. At all grocers.
