Motion Picture May Be Shown in Court as 'Exhibit A' in Life Insurance Law Suit

LOS ANGELES courts will decide if the insurance protection carried by Roy Stewart is to be suspended while he is engaged in a particularly hazardous picture. Attorneys for the five companies underwriting the star's risk, allege that his work in "The Radio King," is a violation of his policy. It is pointed out that he is constantly working with high voltage electricity and incurring risk to life and limb. While not denying that his work is unusually hazardous in "The Radio King," attorneys for Stewart and for the Universal Film Manufacturing Company argue that he is entitled to protection under his policy regardless of the hazard. It is set forth in the brief that "The Radio King" is a chapter play based upon science and particularly the radio and that electrical experiments of a dangerous nature are conducted. In proof of this a portion of the film will be shown in the courtroom if necessary.

Drama League Honors Charles Kenyon, Film and Script Authority

Signal honor for Charles Kenyon, one of the supervisors of the scenario department at Universal City, and proof that he will rank permanently as one of the greatest dramatic writers of America, is contained in a letter sent him from Marjorie A. Best, chairman of the Drama League of America. The letter is an announcement that "Kindling," the chief play in Kenyon's list of brilliant dramatic works, has been chosen by the Drama League as one of five representing the best American plays of all times. The judgment was made at the request of M. Gemier, director-general of the Paris Odeon, who will stage the plays most typical of the highest products of the American theatre. Kenyon's efforts as a screen writer have met with the same striking success that in the field of the drama gave him the highest rank as a playwright. Because of such work as "Kindling," he is recognized as an international authority on the drama, and Universal executives believe that his influence on the screen will bear this same distinction.

Universal to Make Screen Versions of Four "Best Sellers"

Four stories of dramatic quality have been purchased by Universal in the past few days. "Laramie Lad" is a short story by Ralph Cummins which appeared in a popular magazine. It presents all the essentials of a good vehicle for "Hoot" Gibson. A. P. Younger is preparing the scenario. The picture will be released under the title "The Lone Hand."

George Randolph Chester, the famous novelist who is acting as a scenario supervisor at Universal City, will prepare the continuity of a story which has been purchased for Gladys Walton's use. It is "The Lavender Bath Lady," an original yarn by Shannon Fife.

Chester previously prepared two of Miss Walton's vehicles "Top O' The Morning," Anne Caldwell's play, and "The Girl Who Ran Wild," an adaptation of Bret Hart's classic "M'Liss." George Hull collaborated with Chester in the latter.

Another story for Miss Walton's use which has just been bought is "Sawdust," a Red Book magazine short story by that brilliant writer, Courtney Riley Cooper. Doris Schroeder is writing the scenario. "One Wonderful Night" has been purchased and is being prepared for Herbert Rawlinson's use by Arthur Statler.

Austrian Army Officer Laundry Wagon Driver

Albert De Conti Cadassamare was driving a laundry wagon in Los Angeles when he read a want ad for a man who had been an officer of the Austrian army. He qualified and is now doing research work for Erich von Stroheim at Universal City in preparation for the filming of "Merry Go Round." He drove the laundry wagon as a means to eat with reasonable regularity. Now von Stroheim keeps him so busy that he eats only occasionally. He was a machine gun officer with the Second Cavalry Division of the Austrian army when he was captured by the Russians in 1916.
