National Fruit Cleaning Machine

The National Fruit Cleaning Company is putting on the market, a late model fruit cleaning machine, which cleans the apple of spray and dirt but does not bruise it, as has been demonstrated from last year's crop. There were 20 machines used in Hood River valley during the packing season last year and proved very satisfactory, even though they are of the old model. A small amount of fruit is still in some of the ware houses in perfect condition for so long a time, thereby proving to the most skeptical that it does not bruise the fruit or remove the wax or paraffine so necessary to the proper keeping of the apple or other fruit. The fruit is carried by a padded belt between three adjustable spiral brushes revolving in opposite directions, causing the fruit to rotate rapidly while being carried along and brushed. The capacity is 1200 boxes per day and can be increased by increasing the speed slightly. Further information can be had by addressing Miss Elizabeth Reuter, Jacksonville, Oregon. 30-fr-m

FILM STARS' RECIPES

DOROTHY DALTON'S FRENCH TOAST

DOROTHY DALTON is an out-of-door girl and likes to appear in strenuous out-of-door pictures for Paramount, but she has her moments when she is fond of preparing a meal at her country home in California. This is her favorite recipe for French toast.

Take four eggs, one half pint of cream, a little vanilla and a pinch of salt. Beat thoroughly. Dip thick slices of bread in milk and fry in butter. Miss Dalton uses an electric cooker for this purpose.

KEPT UNDER COVER Says It Made A New Person Of Her

Why Presumably Solid Citizen Didn't Make a Will.

Really Seemed That Lawyer Wanted to Know Too Much About Matters Entirely Personal.

"And now," said the lawyer, "we shall take up this matter of your will."

I had long thought of making a will. There was a kind of dignity about the whole affair that gave me a pleasant sense of importance. Besides, the thought that I had something to leave, or at least was conveying such an impression, was quite soothing at the time.

But now that I was face to face with the thing, somehow it seemed quite different. I shuddered mildly. Thomas L. Mason wrote in the New York Sun.

"Perhaps we'd better wait until a little later," I observed. "The fact is, I'm not feeling very well just now."

"In that case," he said rather brusquely, I thought, "there is no time to lose. Let's get at this now. Have you made your rough draft?"

"Do people usually do that?" I asked lamely.

"Oh, yes; it's quite customary. Just jot down, rather fully, your ideas—that is, to whom the disposition of your property should go; it is just as well, also, to make a separate list of your securities, stocks and bonds and real estate of whatever nature."

I was beginning by this time to be thoroughly alarmed. The man might discover at any moment how much I was really worth. Of course, that was his real object. He wanted to probe my secret—strange I had never thought of that.

"I suppose the proper thing to do is to divide it into equal parts," I said, "and then each—"

"Um. You have two children—a boy and a girl."

"Yes, sir. And one wife."

"Well, now, take your children. You might want to leave it to them in trust—say fifty thousand or so when they come of age, and—"

"In bonds?" I suggested feebly.

"In interest-bearing bonds, or possibly first mortgage. I presume, sir," he went on reflectively, "that the bulk of your fortune is already invested in first-class securities?"

"Well, rather!" I chortled joyfully. "And whom would you name as executor?"

"Must I have an executor?"

"Oh, certainly."

I rose to my full height. I crushed him with one eye.

"Then, sir," I replied with all the dignity I could summon, "my course is clear. Considering the present condition of the world, I am going to leave all my money to the government. I shall see the secretary of the treasury about it at once."

"And leave your family destitute?"

"Absolutely destitute. It's the only way. Would I ruin them with wealth? Never! America is the hope of the world. My little pile" (I gestured in the general direction of Wall street), "it is true, is small compared with Rockefeller's—still, just this little addition may save the world. Good morning, sir. I'm glad you brought this matter to my attention. Drop in any time. Good morning."

I bowed him out and then, getting out my trusty savings bank book, sat to figuring how I could, with fair management, pay the next installment on my income tax.

TWO CONVICTS ESCAPE FROM STATE PENITENTIARY

SALEM, Or., Oct. 9.—The first escape from the Oregon state penitentiary since September 8, 1921, was effected Saturday, when William Lovelace and Kid Williams, negro, took "French leave" while engaged in picking prunes on the ranch of Louis Lachmund, five miles north of Salem. The men were under guard, and their escape was discovered within a few minutes after they left the orchard.

Lovelace was received at the penitentiary from Union county on September 28, 1916, to serve an indeterminate term of from one to ten years for a statutory offense. Williams arrived at the penitentiary May 30, 1922, to serve a term of five years for burglary.

Reading the Signs

"You must learn how to handle your man," the young matron was explaining to the engaged girl. "Oh, I won't need to handle Tommy," answered the engaged one. "Oh, but you will," insisted the matron. "They are all alike, and you must learn to read the signs. Now my Dick is about as good as they come, but just the same I keep my eye on him and I know just when he is feeling good and when he is cross or discouraged. When he comes home with his hair standing on end, I know he is feeling good and I can tease him and boss him around and we have a jolly time of it. When he feels good he runs his fingers through his hair and it stands up. That's the high sign. But when he comes in with his hair licked down flat, as if the cat had licked his tongue, I know he doesn't feel well or is out of sorts or blue. Then I tell him to go smoke his pipe while I put dinner on the table. After dinner I coax him out to the movies or put some rollicking records on the phonograph or otherwise entertain him until I get him cheered up, then he is all right again. Oh, you'll have to learn, too, to read the signs."

Henry's Dinner Missing

Henry A. Roberts, former state statistician, is looking for a negro with a strong arm. Roberts knows he has a strong arm because he carried a two-bushel market basket of groceries from Roberts' automobile recently. The basket contained 24 pounds of flour, 20 pounds of sugar, eggs, butter and trimmings to serve a wonderful Sunday dinner, which Roberts didn't enjoy. Not least among the contents was a nice fat chicken. Roberts told the police he expects the fellow to make a return visit to his car, and he told them he doesn't wish any interference when he finds him.—Indianapolis News.

Iceland and the Phones

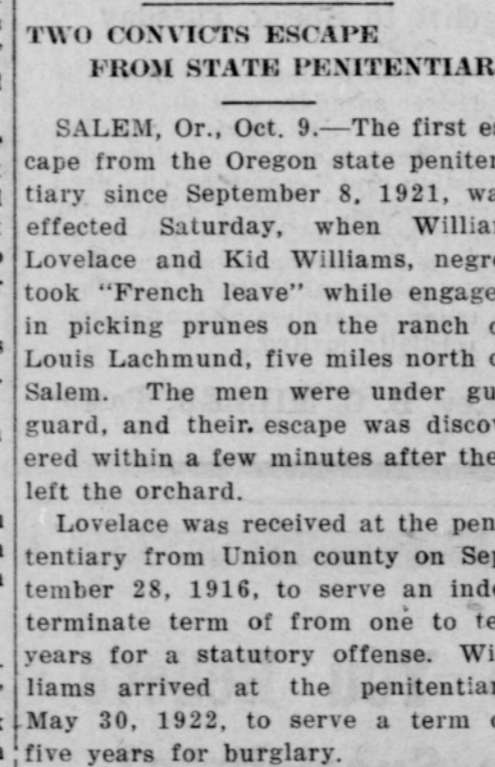

Those who are accustomed to think of Iceland merely as a bleak land of perpetual snow and ice may be surprised to learn that from the standpoint of telephone development it is well up in the list. The actual number of telephones, which is about 2,300, may seem small, but the total population is under 100,000, and on the basis of number of telephones per 100 population Iceland holds a good rank. With its 24 telephones for every 100 people Iceland comes ahead of Great Britain, which has 2.1, France, which has only 1.2 telephones for every 100 people.

Rivals for Rubber

The radio manufacturers and the makers of briar pipes are rivals for the vulcanized rubber which is on the market and the extreme activity in radio circles has put a crimp in the pipe business. Deliveries of the rubber bits to the pipe manufacturers are from 16 to 18 weeks overdue. It is said that $500,000 annually is a conservative estimate of the amount spent for pipe bits.

THE GOOD THINGS OF AUTUMN

are many, but among the numberless blessings of peace and prosperity there is nothing so essential to the world's welfare as good, nutritious bread—the kind that tastes good, looks as good as it tastes, and proves its goodness by bringing health and vigor to all who eat it. Such bread is the kind made by LITHIA BAKERY

Gorilla Very Closely Resembles the Animal for Which Scientists Have Been Vainly Seeking.

The gorilla has no foe but man. No flesh-eating animal in his territory is large enough to harm him. The gorilla is a vegetarian, so he kills no animals for food, and he has not progressed sufficiently along the paths of man to abuse a sport. He lives in unity with the elephants, buffalo and all the wild creatures in his neighborhood, and in the Mikeno region (in Africa) the natives drive their cattle in to the gorilla's mountains in the dry season of the year without molestation. Altogether, then, as the gorilla has no enemies, he has no need to fashion himself a bed out of harm's way, writes Carl E. Akley in the World's Work. All the gorilla beds I saw were on the ground. They consisted of a pile of leaves, about what the long arms of a gorilla could pull together without moving. I saw no signs of their occupying these hastily constructed sleeping places more than once.

The gorilla makes no abode, has no clothes, uses no tools, unless grasping a stick may indicate the beginnings of such an idea. It is still before the dawn of intelligence with him. Yet scientists tell me that he has the palate and muscles that enable man to talk. In spite of Mr. Garner the gorilla cannot talk, but no one knows how near to it he is, perhaps a very long way. Of course, a parrot can be taught to talk, but a parrot has no brains to speak of, so that his talking is of no significance. But recent studies of the brain of Jehu Daniel seem to place his brain about on a par with that of a two-year-old child. Now a two-year-old child can both talk and think. If the gorilla with his child's brain could learn to use his voice even like a parrot, we should have come very near to having a contemporaneous "missing link." This, of course, is a very unlikely thing to happen, and it is not necessary, for science can make deductions from the gorilla's brain, muscle, habits, etc., which will enable us to understand more of the gorilla's significance or evolution without such a spectacular event as his acquiring speech. I mention such a thing merely as an unsentimental way of trying to dramatize the importance of the study of the gorilla.

Of course, it does not follow that because the gorilla's palate and muscles are like man's he will be able to talk or pass out of the barking or roaring phase. The gorilla has what might be called "roaring pouches" that extend down the side of his neck. It is an interesting fact that the evidence of these same pouches on man, although they are nearly atrophied from long disuse.

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Jackson County. Dan Collier, plaintiff, vs. Ollie Collier, defendant.

To Ollie Collier, the above named defendant:

In the name of the State of Oregon, you are hereby required to appear in the above entitled court and cause any answer the complaint of the plaintiff filed therein against you, within six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons.

And you will hereby take notice that if you fail to so appear and answer for want thereof, plaintiff will take a decree of the court against you as follows: That the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant be forever dissolved, and defendant be forever divorced from and for such other and further relief as to the court may seem meet and proper in the premises.

This summons is published in the Ashland Tidings, weekly edition, once each week for a period of six consecutive weeks, and seven times thereunder and by virtue of an order duly made, rendered and entered by the Hon. F. M. Calkins, Judge, under date of September 23rd, 1922. Date of first publication of this summons is October 2nd, 1922.
