Every Woman

—that bakes with Calumet—and there are millions of them—has learned three important baking facts.

First; that she never has any failures, which means no loss of time and material.

Second; that her bakings are always pure and wholesome, which goes a long way toward perfect health.

Third; that the greater than usual leavening strength of Calumet stands for economy because she uses less.

CHARLES LOOMIS REFUTES RUMOR ABOUT CANDIDACY

STATEMENT BY CHARLES L. LOOMIS

In order to settle some misunderstandings and misgivings in regard to my candidacy for mayor, I desire to make the following statement, and will ask the Tidings to print it as an advertisement:

I am charged by some factions as being the candidate of Jesse Winburn, and by others as being the candidate of Mr. Greer, and others as being the candidate of Mr. Dill and Mr. Johnson.

I desire here to state that I am not the candidate of any of them. Unless I can be the candidate of the people, regardless of factions and individuals, then I miss my desire. The citizens of Ashland need to be brought together in harmonious work for the upbuilding of the town.

It seems to me to be one of Ashland's paramount needs, and I shall strive for that end. I absolutely refuse to be the candidate of any individual or faction. If I am elected, one citizen shall have as much influence in guiding my administration as another, regardless as to what faction they may adhere.

To successfully deliver the sort of administration I hope to give Ashland, I will need the support of all the people, and if elected, I shall certainly expect that and shall try to conduct the affairs of the city in such manner as to justify it.

It is said that my candidacy was launched at a Jesse Winburn banquet, and, therefore, I am a Jesse Winburn candidate, and will be directed in my administration by him. I think a fair explanation of how I came to become a candidate is due at this time.

The day that my name was first mentioned as a candidate for mayor, I had responded to a telephone invitation to attend a dinner at the Ashland hotel, given by Jesse Winburn for the purpose of getting some 50 citizens together to endorse and insist on the candidacy of Dr. R. L. Burdick for the office of mayor.

I attended that dinner in good faith to urge Burdick's candidacy. Dr. Burdick was present and absolutely declined to allow his name to be used as a candidate, whereupon Mr. Greer, without my knowledge and without consulting me in regard to it, proposed my name as a candidate. His suggestion was a great surprise to me, because, up to that time, I had not considered the matter at all.

After his suggestion, a petition asking me to become a candidate was circulated, and I was informed that it had been signed by every person at the tables, in number about 50, of as fine citizens as Ashland possesses. A few days after that, the railroad boys, among whom I count many very dear friends, organized a Loomis-for-Mayor club, without any suggestion from me, and pledged their unqualified support to my candidacy.

In the meantime, many friends and neighbors, from every walk of life and every part of the city, called on me and urged me to accept the candidacy. I considered the matter for some time before I decided to stand as a candidate. I tried to view it from all angles. I took into consideration my physical infirmity and my mental capacity. I love Ashland and feel that a more progressive administration of her affairs would redound to her great good.

So, after considering the matter from every angle, I decided to accept the place with full confidence both in my mental and physical ability to fill it efficiently, if elected.

So, I stand today as a candidate of no man or set of men. I feel grateful for the hearty support I am getting from all of the above named gentlemen. I do not think any one of them has the desire to dictate to me, if I am elected. None of them have ever indicated any such desire.

I am making the campaign without a pledge to any of them, nor shall I make any pledges to anybody, except to every citizen, that if you have confidence enough in me to elect me mayor, I shall appreciate the great honor and the good will indicated by your support and pledge myself to give the city my best attention and the best that is in me for a better, more economical and efficient government, with the prayer that the Great Architect of the destinies of nations and cities may give me the good judgment to administer the affairs of the city in a manner that will be a pride to citizens and of great good to the city we all love and want to see developed to greater proportions, and made even a better place in which to live and rear our families.

REEFS LIKE FLOWER GARDENS

Variety of Color Where Living Corals Abound Described as Wonderful and Beautiful.

The traveler among the islands of the tropics finds few more curiously interesting sights than the coral reefs that surround them, remarks a writer in the Washington Star.

Among these curious inhabitants of the tropical waters is, for instance, the caput medusae, an animal that bears a remarkable resemblance to a plant, and whose remote ancestors in the most ancient oceans of the earth contrived to prolong the existence of their kind by developing a means of keeping the water around them comparatively pure.

WONDERS IN GRAIN OF SAND

Remarkable Combinations When Seen Beneath the Powerful Glass of Even Ordinary Microscopes.

A handful of sand, trickling through the fingers in hard, dry grains, appears to the naked eye merely as a collection of tiny stones.

If you spread a pinch of sand on a piece of white paper, and look at it through a magnifying glass, you will have a surprise. Many of the grains are shells consisting of turns and spirals as perfect as those of the whelk or the periwinkle, but so tiny that without the aid of a glass the eye cannot see them.

They are made by a class of minute creatures that swarm in the waters, and as the animals die their shells are washed up by the tide to form sand. In course of time they become welded into masses of stone, and as the centuries pass by they form great rocks. Many of our mightiest mountain ranges are made of nothing but the shells of these tiny creatures.

Adventure With Pigmy Rattlesnake.

Dr. R. W. Shufeldts writes in Natureland: A few months ago a friend, residing in Florida, sent me a beautiful live specimen of this snake, which was of a fine ash-gray color, marked with medium-sized, more or less rounded black blotches.

A number of small buttons made up its rattle, which could be distinctly heard at a distance of eight or ten feet in a quiet room. On one occasion I came very near being bitten by it, as I was not aware that it could coil itself up tightly when on a hard, smooth surface, and then by a peculiar muscular action throw itself clear of the ground, and for several feet in any direction it wished.

Medieval Coins.

Many of the medieval coins were far larger and more ornate than any issues today. The die cutting was not only more elaborate, but in much higher relief. Some of the German coins of the Seventeenth century were 4 1/2 inches in diameter and contained one pound of silver.

Coins such as these of the 10-thaler size are to be found in many collections, and the coins of the 2, 3, 5-thaler or dollar size are in many cases not especially rare and can be obtained in almost mint state for reasonable prices.

In many cases silver cups and plates were cut up in sections about equal in weight to $2.50 pieces and these rude planchets were counter-stamped in the corners and center with punch marks of crests and coats of arms.

There was a common practice of "clipping" coins of any irregular shape, and this practice was punishable with death.

Big Time Tonight For the Entire Cast 'We Should Worry'

So faithfully has the big cast for "We Should Worry," the screaming musical comedy (being staged by the Elks next Tuesday and Wednesday) been rehearsing the local lodge will entertain the entire cast at their annual harvest ball at the Elks' club rooms tonight.

For the first time last night the entire cast was to gather and go through their different numbers, and all who witnessed the rehearsal were loud in their praise of the way the numbers were handled and were astonished that so much could be accomplished in such a short time.

The drilling of a chorus of some 50 girls into the different dance steps and assemblies, is no easy task, but Mr. and Mrs. Powell, who are producing the play for the Elks this year are the right people in the right place, and they have everything moving all the time, and you will never find a dull moment in their musical numbers.

Everyone is talking of the big show this year and when the reserved seat sale opens at the Vining theatre box office next Saturday morning, on doubt there will be a big line-up to get the choice seats, so if you are going, you had better be there early to get your seats.

FARM REMINDERS

"Shall we plant potatoes next spring?" for early potatoes next spring? is a question often asked of the farm crops department at the O. A. C. experiment station. "If you do, plant whole, medium sized spuds five to six inches deep," is the reply.

Amount of spoiled silage at the top of the silo will be reduced by thoroughly tramping the top of the silo each day for several days after filling.

Queen bees for early delivery can now be ordered. It is well to place orders early as the queen supply is limited. Lists of northwest and southern queen breeders will be supplied beekeepers upon application to the extension service, Oregon Agricultural college.

Furrows plowed through fields of fall grain, vetch and other crops to allow surface water to run off will save much of the crop from drowning out. This practice is especially valuable on low, flat, heavy or white lands.

Cutting off late growth on alfalfa in the Willamette valley is a good practice. Alfalfa appears not to be troubled with stem rot where little growth is left.
