Waffle Iron Is Old—

A clever display now in the window of the Grantz Pass Electric store has for its main object a waffle iron which is now over 200 years old. The irons are heart-shaped, and the handles are very long, the heat of the fireplaces over which the waffles were cooked making this necessary. The iron has already journeyed many miles, coming from England and landing on the Atlantic coast where New York City now is. In the early 60's it was taken to Crescent City via South America, and from there to the Illinois valley by ox team. It has remained since its purchase in the ownership of the Tolin family, now residing in the Illinois valley.—Grantz Pass Courier.
