Lizard Lives on His Tail. Beaded lizards are seldom seen by day. In the dry places where they live they lie hidden until the coolness of evening brings them forth. During the hottest part of the year they remain in a state of torpor. They eat frogs, worms, centipedes, ants and other insects, as well as the eggs of frogs, birds and other lizards. In good times the extra nourishment is stored up as fat in the tail. When food is scarce this fat can be absorbed and carried to the hungry cells through the blood, and thus the Gila monster may go without other food for several months. In midsummer the female lays from six to thirteen soft-shelled eggs in a hole scraped out of the damp sand near a stream, and then covered. After being incubated in the sun for about four weeks the young are hatched. They are four inches long and brighter colored than the parents. The mouth is armed with many fang-like teeth arising from the inner edge of the jaws. Four teeth on each side of each jaw are grooved deeply on the front surface and slightly on the rear. A poison sac opens between the lip and the base of each grooved tooth of the lower jaw.

Why Cardinals Wear Red Hats. The custom of wearing red robes and red hats by the cardinals or princes of the Catholic church dates back to the early days of catholicism when the ambassador of the pope took precedence over royalty itself, for he was regarded not only as a representative of a temporal ruler but also as a personage whose spiritual power was superior to that of archbishops. Just as purple was the color worn by the emperors of Rome, red was, during the Middle Ages, the distinctive color throughout the Christian world. Kings and princesses dressed themselves and furnished their palaces in materials of scarlet hue, and as "the father of kings and princes," according to the ritual of his coronation, the pope ranked with the most influential sovereigns, his ambassadors were entitled to wear the same royal color.

Venezuela's Pearls. The island of Margarita, off the coast of Venezuela, is one of the most celebrated centers of pearl fishery. The Spaniards, in the days of Columbus, found the natives of Margarita and the neighboring mainland decked out with pearls, and the pearl-producing oysters of that locality have never since failed in their productiveness. Metal scoops are dragged over the oyster beds, and the interest of the search culminates when the shells thus secured are opened. A black pearl is a rarity commanding a high price. Fine white pearls, if of good luster, are also very valuable. A company of Frenchmen enjoys a concession from the Venezuelan government to fish for pearls with diving apparatus.

Leads Red Cross Army

John Barton Payne, who was Secretary of the Interior in President Wilson's Cabinet, Chairman of the American Red Cross, which will hold its Annual Roll Call from Armistice Day, Nov. 11, to Thanksgiving, Nov. 30. More than 4,000,000 members enrolled during the Roll Call last year and the 3,300 active Red Cross Chapters at home and abroad will strive to maintain this membership strength for the work of the organization during the coming year.

Heard Here and There.
"Opportunity," divulged the henpeck, "knocks but once, proving it is not of the feminine sex."
"Might," explained the big man gently to the little man whom he was pommeling rather ungently, "isn't right, but it helps a whole lot."
"Religion," cried the atheist, "is a lazy explanation of mystery."
"Things left unsaid," wept the unsuccessful flirter whose object of flirtation refused to respond with even a single syllable, "often hurt more than things spoken."
"Bah, bah!" answered the baby when asked his opinion of a piece of free verse just read him.

He Auto Look Bad.
"Good afternoon, Mrs. Jones!" exclaimed Mr. Brown. "What a coincidence, meeting you. I ran into your husband an hour ago."
"How funny!" replied Mrs. Jones. "And how did you think he was looking?"
"Pretty poorly."
"Well, I'm surprised to hear you say that. Everyone says he is looking much better lately."
"Well, he looked bad enough an hour ago," said Mr. Brown. "I wonder why that was," said Mrs. Jones.
"Oh, I can tell you that," said Mr. Brown. "You see, I was in my car when I ran into him."—Farm Life.

Short and Sweet.
Following is the weekly correspondence between a wife at the seashore and her husband in town. They have been married a lot of years and the letters from the lonely wife are of a touching nature. They are all alike and so are the replies.

Two Sides of Body Don't Match.
The human body is not built symmetrically. One-half of the face is not exactly like the other half. If a line is drawn separating the two halves of the physique, well-marked differences may be noticed between them. The sculptors of Classic times recognized this anomaly, and represented it in their statues.
Venus of Milo, for example, has an asymmetrical face, that is, one in which proportions are not consistent. Most persons have heavier bones on the right side than the left. The two sides of the face vary. The eye sockets in both face and skull are of different size. The face usually seems to be shoved over toward the right side. The ears are usually of different size and differently modelled. The shoulders are not of the same height, and are removed varying distances from an imaginary dividing line drawn through the center of the body.

Water-Drinking Habit.
"The habit of drinking water in moderate quantities between meals," says Health, "contributes to health, and indicates the fact that those who go abroad for the purpose of imbibing the waters of mineral springs might profit by staying at home and drinking more water and less whisky. Water is the universal solvent of nature, and the chief agent in all transformations of matter. When taken into an empty stomach it soon begins to pass out through the tissues by an osmotic process into the circulation to liquefy effete solids, whose excretion from the system is thus facilitated. Very few people think of the necessity of washing the inside as well as the outside of the body, and he who would be perfectly healthy should be as careful about the cleanliness of his stomach as that of his skin."

WED FATHER AND SON

Mrs. Jacques Lebaudy, widow of Jacques Lebaudy, the self-styled "emperor of Sahara," and her daughter, Miss Jacqueline, were the brides in a double wedding performed in Paris the other day. Mme. Lebaudy became the bride of her friend and adviser, Henri Sudreau, while her daughter married Sudreau's son Roger. Jacqueline and Roger had been married by civil ceremony last January, but efforts were made by her father to have the marriage annulled. Jacqueline disappeared, and later was found in a private nursing home. Mme. Lebaudy was acquitted of killing her husband in their home in Long Island in 1919, her defense being that she shot him in an effort to protect the girl, then only fourteen years old.

The good Maxwell has demonstrated hill climbing ability never equalled by any car in any price class. In a laboratory test conducted by a leading scientific school, it actually negotiated a grade with a percentage of 12.3 in high gear. More than 100 much higher priced cars similarly tested failed to reach the Maxwell record. Only a most powerful engine, perfect car balance and easy rolling bearings enabled the good Maxwell to perform such an unparalleled feat.

Cord tires, non-skid front and rear; disc steel wheels, demountable at rim and at hub; drum type lamps; Alenite lubrication; motor driven electric horn; unusually long springs; new type water-tight windshield; snug curtains that open with the doors. MAXWELL

Loomis for Mayor Meeting Armory, Friday Night, 8 p. m.

Everybody is invited. There will be no camouflage—no smoke screen—no poison gas. Just a few speeches on local issues straight from the shoulder. At this meeting folks will talk out and tell who is who, and why.

Every argument, false statement, camouflage and side step of the opposition will be discussed.

Who are the "Citizens" behind the Citizens Ticket?

Why didn't Jesse Winburn build the Hotel?

It will be a hot one. Come out and hear it.

ARMORY, FRIDAY NIGHT
