Carelessness of Campers Blamed For Forest Fires

With the exception of lightning, the carelessness of campers has been found to be the origin of the greatest number of fires in the forests within the past year in Washington and Oregon, where a total area of national forest amounting to more than 60,000 acres has been destroyed, according to a report received by Shirley Buck, office of operations, United States forest service. This land national forest amounting to more than $186,000 and includes timber damage of $72,729, the remainder of the sum including forage or grazing areas and reproduction lands. All this is in spite of 788 guards who have been in charge of this territory but who have had too many odds to work against.

May and early June of this year were exceptional months as to low humidity. They developed unusually dry days and forest fires began at an unexpectedly early date, and the drought continued throughout the summer, so that in spite of the figures the fire damage is not extremely great considering the hazard. Of a total of 1323 fires in this district during the year, 469 fires have been attributed to lightning. The indictment against the campers comes next and they are accredited with the responsibility for 324 fires which trace their origin to cigarette stubs cast into dry grass or brush, half dead campfires deserted by picnickers, rubbish heaps from which the fire has not been entirely quenched.

More than $51,000 worth of damage was done to forests in the Oregon national reserve, and of this over $13,000 worth was timbered land. Ten thousand dollars is an extraordinary price for a single plant; yet it was paid by English horticulturists for an orchid raised in America, the cattleya gigas alba. This cattleya was flowered in 1910 and exhibited at an orchid show in the United States, where it was awarded a gold medal. The plant was found in 1909 in a lot of other specimens of cattleya gigas. It was only by chance that the plant was not sold for a dollar or two. The only reason was that, after most of its companions had been disposed of, this one, with some others was set aside. Finally all the specimens were potted. To the great surprise of the horticulturists when, next spring, the plant came up, it was with pure white flowers. The plant was sold in London for perhaps the highest figure that an orchid ever brought.

MAN PAYS $150 FINE; KILLED DOE AND FAWN

ROSEBURG, Nov. 20.—Fred Kizer of Albany, Or., Saturday paid a fine of $150 in the justice court for killing a doe and fawn at Deer Park Inn south of Roseburg, on September 6 of this year. Kizer, with A. W. Dupee, were apprehended by Mrs. Winn, owner of the private game preserve at Deer Park Inn. Dupee entered a plea of guilty and paid a fine of $100. Kizer's father of Albany claimed his son was only 17 and should be tried by the juvenile court. After tracing school records, it was found that Kizer was 20. He entered a plea of guilty over the long distance telephone from Albany.

FLOWER BROUGHT BIG PRICE

English Horticulturists Paid Large Sum for American Plant With Somewhat Peculiar History.

Ten thousand dollars is an extraordinary price for a single plant; yet it was paid by English horticulturists for an orchid raised in America, the cattleya gigas alba. Why "The Innocents" Succeeded.

How easy it is now to understand the prodigious success of "The Innocents Abroad," appearing as it did precisely at the psychological moment, at the close of the Civil war, at the opening of the epoch of industrial pioneering, in the hour when the life of business had become obligatory upon every American man! How easy it is to understand why it was so generally used as a guidebook by Americans traveling in Europe. It attacked not only the legitimate pretensions of the human spirit but the legitimate pretensions also. It expressly made the American business man as good as Titan and a little better; it made him feel that art and history and all the great, elevated, admirable, painful discoveries of his mankind were things not worth wasting one's emotions over.—Exchange.

Change.

Chiropractors at a convention discuss the probability that women in another few generations will have only four toes.

Tight shoes are deforming and dwarfing the little toe. Instructors at swimming pools frequently comment on the number of women whose little toes have almost disappeared.

Back of this is the biological principle that nature makes additions to the body when needed, and takes away parts no longer necessary. Thus fish in Mammoth cave are blind, not seeing eyes. A change of diet has made a long human organ shrivel into a small appendix.

Chew Food Thoroughly. A point which counts much for economy whether living at home or at restaurants is a rather funny one, you may say. I have not heard it mentioned often. People usually laugh about it, but it is very true, nevertheless. That is that most people do not chew their food sufficiently to get the full nutrient value from it. If food were chewed three or four times as long as it usually is, we would not eat more than half as much of it as we do. Think of cutting your meat bill right in two, in the middle! And feeling better for it!—Nellie Kelso in Thrift Magazine.

If it is for Ashland, we are for it.

LETTER MAY BE RECALLED

Post Office Department Regulations Make Provision for Withdrawal From the Mails.

Have you ever written a letter, mailed it in a corner box or in your local postoffice and then changed your mind? If you have, you can get your letter back again and thinking that, having once mailed it, there was no chance of recalling it?

If you have had such an experience don't let it worry you in the future, for under the postal laws and regulations it is a comparatively easy matter for you to get the letter back into your own hands.

All you have to do is to go to your local postmaster and explain to him that you want to withdraw your letter from the mails. The postmaster must comply with your request, providing you can furnish proofs that you are the sender of the missive. These proofs consist of giving an accurate description of the letter you wish to get back as well as presenting to the postmaster a sample of your handwriting, which must be identical with that on the original letter.

The rules of the Postoffice department also permit postmasters to telegraph to the railway mail clerk and get him to take a recalled letter out of a mail-pouch after it has left the city on the way to its destination. This measure to secure the return of a letter is only taken, however, in extreme emergencies.

DOG TAUGHT TO STEAL SHEEP

Intelligent Collie Made His Master Rich Until the Trick Was Discovered and Stopped.

At one time sheep stealing was a capital offense in England, and many men were hanged for it. The records show that the most successful of these rogues owed their prosperity to the faithful dogs which they had trained for the purpose. In one case a notorious criminal practiced sheep stealing on a large scale. Whenever charged with the offense, he was able to prove an alibi.

Here is the explanation. When sheep were for sale he would view them as a prospective purchaser, taking his dog with him. The dog carefully noted the individual sheep handled by his master. Later in the day, or during the night, the dog was sent back to the flock. In an incredibly short time the collie sorted out the selected sheep from ten to twenty out of a flock numbering hundreds—and drove them away to a spot where he knew his master would be.

Ancestry of Birds.

Evolutionists believe that man arose from the basic stock that produced the apes. The ancestry of birds can be retraced still further to none other than the lowly reptile. Fossil birds, to which we must look for our evidence, are almost as scarce as fossil men. Extinct reptiles and mammals have been preserved for us in abundance, but the very power of flight, which raised the bird above its reptilian ancestors, has done much to cheat us of avian remains. Cumbersome, awkward creatures, without this magic gift, chance caught in sticky pitch or the treacherous mud of some lagoon, are unable to escape its grip. But the light-bodied, quick-winged bird is seldom trapped in such a way.

Chinese Idea of Goldfish.

It is said that there is a universal belief among the Chinese that the finer kinds of goldfish are raised from the eggs of the silk moth. According to the belief of the Chinese the silk moth lays its eggs on a fresh brick or tile, and this is placed in shallow water and exposed to the sun. In several days, they hatch out minute larvae and are fed on pond slime, developing rapidly into gorgeous goldfish.

Great care has to be used in the preparation of the water, but the process may be aborted by an intervening thunderclap, which sometimes makes such havoc with the eggs that they hatch out frogs or scorpions instead of the much desired goldfish.

Assuring Real Holidays.

A very interesting and important decision of the British courts is that a wife may take a holiday alone, if she desires, and that her husband cannot stop her.

It was born of a case following twenty-one years of reasonably calm marriage. The wife decided on a vacation of a week without the company of her hubby. He forbade it. She made an unexpected and astonishing appeal to the court and she won her case.

And because the husband made any objection whatsoever she now sues him for a permanent separation and secures it—just for that like that.

Insects That Sing.

Japanese do not care for cats and write is a singing insect, which is kept in a cage that hangs from the eaves of the house.

Although the little creature does not perform on all occasions, the sound of rain will at any time start him chirping. So, to amuse strangers in a Japanese home, one of the family will go on to the roof and pour down a bucket of water to produce the dripping sound of rain.

As soon as the singing insect hears what he imagines to be the real thing, he begins to warble.
