NEW WAY TO PUT CAT OUT

New Yorker, Would Seem to Have Done Considerable Amount of Thinking to Conserve Energy.

"I have heard of many methods for conserving energy practiced by New Yorkers," said the commuter who was spending the summer in town, according to the New York Sun, "but never have I seen anything to equal the man who lives on the second floor across the yard from me.

"I am staying in the old Washington square section and the back yards are fair sized and are together. I was sitting on the small porch the other afternoon about 6 o'clock when this man comes to his window with a large white cat. He fumbles about a bit and first thing we know he is letting the creature down by a long rope attached to a sort of harness that fitted about the cat's body, to the back yard.

"He then tied the tape to something inside the room and sat down to read his paper. In about half an hour the cord was jerked, which attracted the man's attention, and he started pulling the cat upward until he had it safe on the sill, when he took off the harness.

"And I wish you could have seen the bored expression on his face when he caught us roaring with laughter at him. All this to save himself walking down one flight of stairs to put the cat out in the yard."

CATTLE FOOD BIG PROBLEM

Importance of Winter Fodder in Switzerland and Norway Cannot Be Overestimated.

Mountain peoples depend for much food on cows and goats. The problem of getting enough winter feed for the animals is a difficult one. And so this art of mowing has been developed to extremes. In Switzerland not a spear of grass escapes. Grass only three inches high is cut thrice a year. The Norwegian peasant gathers a small hay harvest from the roofs of his house and barns and from the edges of the road. Swiss peasants, called wildheuer, meaning wild hay gatherers, secure hay from ledges of rocks. The risk is so great that the law in places only allows one wildheuer to a family.

The traveler in Norway frequently sees huge bundles of hay sliding down to a valley on wires stretched from some high precipice on a fford. This represents the harvest from isolated spots or from the field of the summer shepherd. The economy of vegetative resources is caused by the necessity of finding fodder for the six or seven months of stall-feeding. Because of frequent rains in Swiss regions, no chance is taken in drying the hay. The farmer's family keeps tossing the hay to hurry drying.

The Nation's Destiny.

Our history, sir, has been a constant and expanding miracle from Plymouth Rock and Jamestown all the way—aye, even from the hour when, from the voiceless and trackless ocean, a new world rose to the sight of an inspired sailor. As we approach the fourth centennial of that stupendous day—when the old world will come to marvel and to learn, amid our gathered pleasures—let us resolve to crown the miracles of our past with the spectacle of a republic compact, united, indissoluble in the bonds of love—loving from the Lakes to the Gulf—this wounds of war healed in every heart as on every hill—serene and resplendent at the summit of human achievement and earthly glory—blazing the path and making clear the way up which all the nations of the earth must come in God's appointed time!—Henry W. Grady.

A Psychologist.

When Miller received an autograph copy of his friend Lewis' latest book on the "Genetic Theory of Knowledge" he immediately sat him down and acknowledged the gift, saying that he "anticipated great pleasure in its perusal."

"Why didn't you read it first?" asked Mrs. Miller. "Then you could have said something much nicer than that." "Margaret," said the husband as he gave Lewis' book a conspicuous place on the library table. "I have a feeling that this is one of the times when my forethought would be better than my hindthought."

Owl's Need of Silence.

A good deal has been written, says Professor Batten in Chambers Journal, about the feathers of the owl which enable him to fly with such muffled flight that he can surprise his quarry lurking in the grass. It has often occurred to me, however, that the silence of the owl's flight may be to enable the bird itself to hear, rather than to prevent others from hearing. In his hunting, the owl is dependent upon the minute sounds for guidance, and anyone who has ever flown will realize that it would be impossible to hear anything at all in the air unless flight were as noiseless as it is capable of being.

Never Mind the Engagement.

"You let that young man kiss you, and yet you're not engaged?"
"Yes."
"I should think you'd be ashamed of yourself."
"Not at all. What's the use of becoming engaged to a young man you're only going to see for two weeks during the summer?"—Detroit Free Press.

'SANDWICH' LONG IN DISPUTE

Invention of Toothsome Morsel Has Been Credited to Many, Including the Great Napoleon.

Both Napoleon and Lord Sandwich have been given credit for inventing the sandwich, but Voltaire, in his history of Charles the Twelfth, king of Sweden, tells of how the king during his campaign in Poland and Russia never or seldom took time to sit down and eat his meals, but generally stood up, spread some butter on a piece of bread with his thumb and put a piece of meat, fish or cheese on top of the butter. This happened almost one hundred years before Napoleon.

And in 1762, or seven years before Napoleon was born, Edward Gibbon in "Decline and Fall" fame, noted in his journal under date of November 24: "I dined at the Cocoa Tree. . . . That respectable body affords every evening a sight truly English. Twenty or thirty of the first men in the kingdom supping at little tables upon a bit of cold meat or a sandwich."

When Napoleon was two years old Foote introduced the word in a play of his, "The Maid of Bath," staged in 1771. But the origin of the word was traced by Pierre Jean Grosley in his "Londres," published in 1767. He resided in London in 1765, and refers to the word as having recently come into use. The title to authorship rests with the butler or attendant, who served thin slices of beef between thin slices of toast to John Montagu, fourth earl of Sandwich (1718-1792), while the latter was attending a prolonged session at the gaming table.

Power of the Sun's Rays.

The sun's radiant energy has been estimated as being equal to that which would be required to pump from the ocean enough water to supply a Niagara 75,000 miles wide. To equal the energy which the earth receives from the sun would call for a row of Niagara cascades encircling the earth three times with every foot-pound of energy utilized in electric horse power.

UNITED COUPONS Good for valuable premiums

Many intelligent mothers overlook these few simple facts about food—

EVERY mother interested in her children's welfare meets a problem in the proper feeding of her boys and girls.

Parents often do not realize the evil effects of mal-nutrition; and that care in the selection of food will avoid a large percentage of children's ills.

One of the best of all foods for providing proper nourishment for growing boys and girls is Grape-Nuts—made of whole wheat flour and malted barley, and scientifically baked for twenty hours. This long baking brings out a delicious flavor, makes the food easy to digest—without fermentation. Grape-Nuts with milk or cream is a complete food.

Here is a suggestion for better health: Serve Grape-Nuts as often as the folks wish it.
