VALUE OF GOAT OVERLOOKED

English Newspaper Gives a Variety of Reasons Why the Animals Should Be More Popular.

It is difficult to understand why goat keeping has never attained wider popularity in England. In many other countries goats are looked upon as national assets, declares London Tit-Bits.

In addition to being inexpensive to buy, goats are exceedingly cheap to keep. Their milk is more rich, sweet and creamy than cow's milk, and, above all, the animals are entirely free from tuberculosis.

A good goat can be bought for about $10. It should be kept tethered in a field or garden, where it will easily find food for itself, for goats eat almost anything in the way of grass and vegetables, provided they are clean.

In unfavorable weather it is better to keep goats under cover. An excellent shed for this purpose can be made at home at a cost of about five dollars.

Goat's milk is especially suitable for ailing children, and is the best food for adult invalids who are compelled to take milk in its raw state.

Many people dislike goats because of an erroneous belief that they show their bad tempers in a forceful manner. While animals that are frequently annoyed and irritated naturally show resentment, goats which are cared for kindly and looked after properly are both docile and grateful.

MIND HAS ITS LIMITATIONS

Impossible for Human Reason to Attend to More Than One Thing at a Time.

It is quite possible for us to do two or more things at once. In fact, most of us do so rather frequently. For instance, a pianist reads the notes of a piece of music and at the same time plays the piano with his fingers.

The playing of the piano, or the knitting, has become so much a matter of habit as to be conducted without conscious thought, while the music hall performers who conduct seven or eight complicated operations simultaneously have practiced so often that they are done mechanically.

Work and Play

The two principal things in life are work and play. Everybody ought to do both in proper proportions, systematically, religiously. To fail to do either is perilous. To overdo one and fail to do the other is foolish.

Napoleon as "Corporal Violet"

"Corporal Violet" was an appellation given to Napoleon Bonaparte during his stay in Elba in 1814-1815 by his adherents in France. The violet was the floral device of the empire, and was worn by its partisans, who confidently predicted that a certain "Corporal Violet" would return in the spring.

In the Barnyard

The farm and everything about it looked beautiful, beautiful indeed with its yard full of ricks, the pond full of ducks, the fields full of sheep and cattle, and the trees still full of leaves and birds.

HE'S ANGRY AT FRANCE

Christ A. Meletis of Pittsburgh, Pa., who served in France with the Twenty-eighth division and was wounded six times, was awarded the French Croix de Guerre and officially cited for exemplary bravery under fire.

WIFE TOO EAGER TO WED

AGAIN; DIVORCE REVOKED

AKRON, O., Nov. 24.—Because he discovered that the woman had given false testimony, Judge H. C. Spicer has revoked the divorce decree he granted to Mrs. Genevieve Gladwell.

She was found in the marriage license bureau with Jesse C. Henthorn.

a year her junior, waiting for a license, when she was invited to appear before Judge Spicer again. There she was told that the divorce had been wiped off the docket and that she was still Gladwell's legal spouse.

TURKEY DAY CONTEST VITAL TO UNIVERSITY

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Nov. 24.—(Special.)—With the opportunity to represent the west against Penn state at Pasadena hanging in the balance, the Oregon eleven will clash with the University of Washington at Seattle, Thanksgiving day.

Oregon is now tied with the University of California for first honors in the Pacific coast conference, having gone through the season without a conference defeat. In view of the fact that California has decreed she will not accept, if chosen, the invitation to represent the west in the annual inter-sectional classic on New Year's day, an Oregon victory against Washington would put the Webfooters in line for selection.

in educating the people to the importance of properly preparing the parcel for mailing.

In the Ashland post office lobby is posted a bulletin which gives detailed information concerning the proper packing of each class of parcels and it will be well for patrons to give this poster at least a "once over." Introductory to the details is the following paragraph: "Your postmaster is forbidden to accept improperly packed, wrapped or illegibly addressed parcels, so do not ask him to do so. They cannot be accepted, even as ordinary mail."
