Them Was the Days.

"Sorry, but I can't insure you—you're too tall," said the agent to the man who wanted to take out an accident policy.

"Too tall? What's the matter with that?" protested the applicant. "And anyway I'm not as tall as my father was, and he had no trouble getting insured."

"But your father," the agent explained, "was insured years ago when there was no danger of a fellow having his head knocked off by a skidding airplane."—American Legion Weekly.

MEAN MUCH TO HISTORIANS

Deciphering of Ancient Manuscripts Expected to Throw Light on Civilization of Past Age.

'Thousands of age-yellowed documents, recently added to the collection of Bancroft library, University of California, have revealed past civilizations in Mexico and the Southwest hitherto unknown to historians.

News of the impending discoveries was learned coincident with the return of Prof. Herbert E. Bolton, director of the library and noted American historian, from a three weeks' tour of regions inhabited by the cliff dwellers.

The trip was one of many made during the last few years by Professor Bolton for the purpose of procuring additional data before commencing the task of deciphering the manuscripts, which, dealing with broken periods of Spanish-American, Aztec and the cliff dwellers' history, are expected to shed much light on the most advanced American civilizations.

Romance of the variety depicted by Stevenson in his "Treasure Island" and other novelists clings to Professor Bolton, who, in his wanderings, has visited Old Mexico, Arizona, Spain and the southwestern states for the last 15 years, constantly adding to the library collection.

By pack mule tramping through the stretches of the Mohave desert, on horseback through parts of Mexico and often obliged to swing himself to the recesses in cliffs by ropes during his explorations, Professor Bolton has incessantly searched for data throwing light on his life study.

The library, valued at more than $2,000,000, is today one of the most complete in existence dealing with the old conquistadores and Indian civilization as seen by the Spanish explorers. More than 80,000 of the documents have never been read because their quaint chirography and in many cases blurred writing defies the skill of all but the most expert.

Millions of Silkworms.

In northern Italy huge plantations of mulberry trees are grown for the express purpose of supplying the well-to-do with silk. The silkworm is as greedy as he is industrious, and he cannot do his duty except upon an ample diet of tender, juicy mulberry leaves.

The silkworm is the caterpillar hatched from the eggs of the silk moth. The tiny spinner of fine fabric is reared in millions in many a darkened Italian attic and loft. For days he does nothing but digest mulberry green, and at last, when he has had his fill, he climbs up into a twig and begins to weave around himself a comfortable bed of silk. This takes him several days, and by the time his task is finished he has completely hidden himself in a beautiful egg-shaped cocoon.

Every Piedmontese cottage offers hosiery to the silkworm, says the Detroit News.

Manufacturers offer good prices for cocoons, and they generally want more of them than they can get. Each peasant can supply thousands of the wonderful silken balls which have to be carefully unwound on to skeins, cleaned and passed through delicate combing machinery, until the egg of a moth and the leaf of the fruit tree are ready to be made up into articles of wear.

That Was Different.

"They were having a prize fight in a building at Coney Island, and a woman was hanging around the door. When she was asked what she wanted she answered:

"It's my Mike who is one of the fighters. Will you tell me how the fight is going?"

"Yes, I will," was the reply. "Your Mike has knocked the fellow down nine times."

"Glory, glory be!" shouted the woman.

"But, you see," said her informant, "the other man has knocked your Mike down ten times and was going to make it eleven just as I came out."

"Oh, that's it," said the disappointed woman. "Then I had better go home and get my club ready for Mike, for I told him he would get his head cracked if he didn't win this fight."

WOUNDED HAWK FLEW FAR

With Spear in Its Body, Bird Had Traveled Distance of Two Thousand Miles.

Well well! Mary—

As a hawk was swooping on the poultry yard of a farmer on the Vaal river, Africa, the farmer shot and killed it. Then he found embedded in its body what appeared to be an arrow, two feet six inches in length, that apparently had been carried by the bird for a considerable period.

As the arrow was of a peculiar kind unknown in the Transvaal, inquiries were made and a description given, and it was found that the arrow was made by a native tribe, the Akambas of Kenya, 2,000 miles away from the place where the hawk was killed.

Further inquiries showed that the transfixing of the hawk by a small spear, by an Akamba native, was well remembered. The hawk had caused much loss in a chicken run, and was speared by a concealed native, but was rescued and carried off by its mate, and evidently recovered from the wound though it could not rid itself of the spear.
