Modern Artist Interprets Music on Canvas

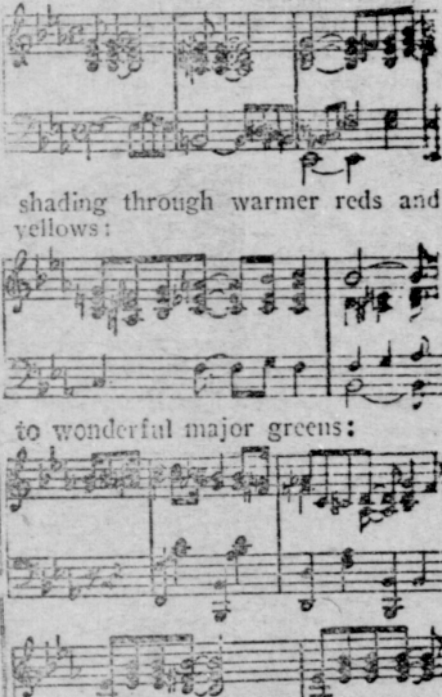

BERTA HADER

Berta Hader of Nyack, New York, Uses Tone Color in Painting

The amazing clavivux which interprets the greatest composers in terms of colors has become an established part of musical expression, but it remained for a New York woman artist recently to take practical advantage of the great principle.

TONE RELEASES COLOR "Just as the pressure of a key on the clavivux releases an exquisite color equivalent, so the audible music chord releases a color in the mind of the artist," she explains.

used as her tone model a fox-trot song of the seasons, called "When the Leaves Come Tumbling Down" "There were brown minors:

shading through warmer reds and yellows; to wonderful major greens; in that music," she declares. "It really made me see elves and fairies dancing through dells and glades. It was the most successful color I ever had."

FORD MAKING COKE; EMPLOYEES SAVE MONEY

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 28.—The Ford Motor company, by producing coke and selling it to employes at $8 a ton, is saving workers approximately $100,000 each month on their coal bills.

According to estimates, about 500 tons daily are now being delivered to the homes of workers, which means that Highland Park, River Rouge and other plants receive approximately 12,500 tons monthly.

Thus these employes are assured of a ton a month minimum each at a fair price, according to the Ford News.

With coke selling throughout Detroit and vicinity at from $14 to $16 a ton, it will be seen that workers, individually, are able to save in many cases from $6 to $8, or virtually what the company asks for a ton.

Before the season ends, it is estimated the Ford Motor company will have saved its workers $1,000,000 on fuel bills.

PROPOSED MEASURE WILL SAVE ON POSTAGE STAMPS

SALEM, Dec. 28.—The state of Oregon will save in postage not less than $10,000 biennially in case a bill introduced in congress by Senator David L. Walsh, of Massachusetts, becomes a law. This was announced here by Sam A. Kozar, secretary of state.

The proposed law, a copy of which was received at the state department, provides that official bulletins of information to voters issued under the laws of the state and affording opposing candidates and the advocates and opponents of measures referred to the voters equal opportunities for the presentation of their claims and arguments shall be transmitted within the limits of the issuing state in the United States mails free of postage.

The secretary of state, in a letter sent to Senator Walsh, declared that he favored passage of the bill in the interests of economy.

SAYS CLARA PHILLIPS WAS IN SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28.—Captain of Detectives Duncan Matheson announced that he had every reason to believe that Clara Phillips, "hammer murderess," visited San Francisco following her sensational escape from the Los Angeles jail recently, and that the automobile which brought here here was still in the city. Nature Has Made Provision.

Man cannot take enough nitrogen from the air to affect nature's balance. Growing plants and animals, by the most remarkable harmonious processes in nature, maintain the proportion, oxygen in 100 pounds of air 23 and nitrogen 77. Man cannot disturb this ratio by little nitrogen concentrators.

Coconut Shell Mandolin.

Compared with the rest of their achievements, the African natives have reached a high development in music. Their instruments, while made of crude materials, are often ornamented with remarkable decorative skill, and the sounds obtained are highly effective. Coconut shells chosen for their size and shape are especially favored for the bodies of mandolins, and with these quaint instruments musicians, who are privileged characters, wander about like the ancient bards and minstrels and exert a great influence over the chieftains.

Radiation From Sun.

Experiments made last summer in Europe show that the amount of radiation received from the sun on the surface of the earth in a clear day is greater with a dark blue than with a light blue sky. In the latter case there is a higher tension of the water vapor in the air. It is suggested that some instrument capable of measuring accurately the intensity of the blue of the sky would be useful in observations on the variable transmission of the sun's heat through the atmosphere.

MODERN goddesses of the ballroom are casting their eyes on the modes of the ancient Egyptian goddesses and queens of the Nile for inspiration for their modern evening gowns. They've done the Spanish infanta mode almost to death—the Greek mode is too simple for some—but the Egyptian mode! Shades of Cleopatra! That allows for metallic gowns of bronze and gold; long stone-studded girdles; bandeaux of spangles; gauze scarfs of scarlet and purple! Bracelets, long earrings, beads, scarabs, everything but the asp—Who couldn't be a siren in all this glory of glitter and color—The sleek lines, the long trains, the centre drape skirt? The gown in the photo shows an exquisite model worn by Gloria Swanson, the Paramount star, in "My American Wife." It is of black ciré velvet with a fan train falling from the waistline in the back. Crystal beads form hip bands and front panel in true Egyptian style. The crystal also forms the shoulder straps. This banding of crystal is interesting, for, radiating as it does from the girdle cabochon, it helps to bring out to the greatest extent the lines of the popular and chic centre drape. This centre drape is, by the way, surpassing all side drapes in the eyes of the fashionable one. But to go back to Miss Swanson's evening gown. Further radiations are made by bands of shining black sequins that glitter at every step, and the centre ornament is of black onyx. The headdress is interesting. A bandeau of scarab and jet is topped by a roll of hair in turban effect. Long drop earrings of jet and crystal complement it. The crystal bandings are studied in jet also. Indeed this is one of the most glorious costumes ever worn by Miss Swanson, who is noted for her exquisite taste and chic. The sketch shows a simpler gown in brocade with the centre drape, with girdle and headdress ornament to match. The two head sketches are shown wearing two modern versions of headdresses worn by erstwhile enchantresses of the Nile.

SHEEPMEN WILL FIGHT COYOTE BOUNTY REPEAL

Sheepmen plan to have a lobby at the legislature to see that the bounty on coyotes is not repealed. Cutting out the coyote bounty has been suggested as one of the ways in which to economize. Governor-elect Pierce was quoted as enumerating the coyote bounty among other things on his list for retrenchment.

Oregon's sheep industry is considerable and the woolmen suffer from the inroads of the coyote. It is said that if the campaign against this marauding animal was suspended for six months, the damage to the flocks
