

LOCAL AND PERSONAL NOTES

A Daily Chronicle of those who come and go, and events of local interest.

Here on Visit—

Mr. and Mrs. St. John, who live near the mouth of the Klamath river, were in Ashland friends recently. Mr. St. John is time keeper at Shovel Camp, and had not been in Ashland for some time.

Here for Celebration—

Mrs. Merle Walters of Montague, who was formerly Miss Iniz Reader, a graduate of Ashland high school, was in Ashland attending the celebration July 3 and 4. With Mrs. Walters were Mr. and Mrs. Purdy, relatives of Ruth Purdy of Ashland.

Back from College—

Lynn Mowatt is back from college visiting his father, who is telegraph operator for the Ashland office of the Postal Telegraph company. Before coming to Ashland, Mowatt visited Crater Lake for a while.

Returns to Portland—

Dr. Higgins of Portland who was in Ashland visiting friends and acquaintances during the celebration, has returned to Portland. The trip to Ashland was in the nature of a vacation to Dr. Higgins.

Eva Stevens from Klamath Falls spent the two celebrations here visiting with friends.

To Leave Ashland—

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson of the Ideal Grocery, accompanied by Florence and Billy Wilson, their children, plan on leaving next week for Pennsylvania, to be at the bedside of Mr. Wilson's father, who is ill. They will probably be gone about a year.

Visit Ashland Friends—

Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Giles and Dr. and Mrs. D. Bell of San Francisco, visited with the Gillette family for a short time recently, later resuming their journey to Myrtle Point, where they will visit for some time.

Cliff Payne makes porch swings.

The Ladies of the Christian church are giving a cooked food sale at Enders' Store, Saturday, July 9. Sale commencing at 10:30. 259-2

T. J. Sullivan from Hill is a visitor in the city on business.

H. G. Rainey from Bend has an option on the McWilliams ranch east of town and plans to buy it and move here some time this fall.

Dick Parker is here from Kennett in order to attend the funeral of his aunt.

REAL BOXERS FOUND AMONG BERLIN GIRLS

BERLIN, July 6.—Some American, British and French pugilists might pick up points on real, sock-em-in-the-eye prize fighting from the lusty, though somewhat lethargic maidens who provide the chief entertainment these days in Berlin cafes.

The "Internationale Damen Box-Kampfe" rapidly is becoming an institution, and the brawny, unattractive, Teutonic Amazons, who are the principals, punch each other's faces with an earnestness that would have made Bat Nelson in his palmiest days look like a parlor pacifist.

About half way through the cabaret's programme of unspeakably awful singing, during which popular ballads are rendered—unconscious under the tables—and sparkling new bottles of champagne are opened, the attendants cope off a ring in the middle of the dancing floor.

They're All "Champs" An extremely anaemic-looking gentleman, fastidiously garbed in white, perches in the ring, while the orchestra gives the ta-ra-tata-tah-h-h-h indicative of a momentous event forthcoming.

He announces that the cafe habitués shortly are to be favored with just about the most stupendous spectacle since the Great Flood, the significance of whose outcome is comparable to nothing less than that of the reparations issue. He tells them that the bout is unquestionably the most important thus far between any women of the world—meaning in Freidrichstrasse, the famous street in to which most of Europe's prime roads converge.

The girls, clad in white shirts, whose purpose obviously is not concealment, and brief black trunks, slouch into the ring and pose, with a conspicuous absence of bodily grace, while they are introduced. They are not pretty—no chance—for what curves they may once have had are supplanted by knotty sinews.

And Do They Fight? That's what "they don't do nothing" else but, in the words of that popular jazz number. Their hay-makers are hard and devastating. They are not so swift, agile, nor graceful as male pugs, but they sabb boxing skill and ring generalship and hit with a passion that substantiates Mr. Kipling's vampire version.

There is an ulterior motive in their willingness to spill a little gore. If the battle is sufficiently rousing a "schieber," or a sporting "auslander," may offer a big purse of 20,000 marks (about 25 cents at the moment), which is not to be scorned—they work for about 50 cents a night.

PANCHO VILLA WILL MEET KID WILLIAMS

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—Pancho Villa intends to make hay while the sun shines—no idle champion glory for the flashy Filipino. Villa has picked out quarters here for his workouts preceding his meeting with Kid Williams, former bantam king. The two meet at Shetlin Park on July 30. On the same bill will be Elio Flores, another Filipino puncher. Flores, who has worked with Villa in training for past matches, will meet Bobby Barrett.

The Villa-Williams bout will not endanger Villa's crown. Williams cannot make the flyweight limit. The boys will battle over the eight-round route.

Here on Visit—

J. E. Fielder, formerly of Ashland, was over from Ager, California for a short visit recently. He stated that his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Rosenstock, formerly of Ashland, now own a fine dairy ranch in Washington.

REDDING MINE MAY REOPEN THIS YEAR

REDDING, Calif., July 6.—The sum of $100,000, or its equivalent in receiver's certificates and bonds, was paid to the clerk of the superior court Wednesday by John Tait Milliken, who as commissioner of the court, three weeks ago sold the Afterthought Copper Company's mine and smelter at Ingot to Forest P. Tralles of St. Louis, representing the bondholders.

John Tait Milliken, mining engineer for the Afterthought for several years, says it is possible, if not probable, that mine and smelter will be started up before the year expires.

The great smelter built at Ingot was operated long enough, says Milliken, to demonstrate that the process was a success as far as handling Afterthought ore is concerned, both for copper and zinc and also for the silver and gold content. Jackling at the Bully Hill plant had taken up the process where the Afterthought had let go. The oil flotation plant at Ingot is well adapted to handling certain low grade ore.

The Afterthought will continue to be in charge of Robert Milliken, receiver, until the year allowed for redemption expires.

SHASTA REST HOUSE OPENED ON FOURTH

SISSON, Calif., July 6.—To the weary and footsore of all time a place of rest was dedicated yesterday when the Sierra Club of San Francisco, assisted by officers of the Mt. Shasta Chamber of Commerce, assembled at the Shasta Alpine lodge on the snowcapped slopes of Mt. Shasta and at high noon held simple, but impressive services, dedicating the large rest house built last year.

Members of the Sierra Club arrived here July 1st and spent three days in the shade of the Shasta pines. J. M. Kibee of San Francisco, acted as master of ceremonies, and addresses were made by Hall, McAllister and Kibee of the Sierra Club and John R. Hall, secretary of the Mt. Shasta Chamber of Commerce, and B. M. Schuler, of Mt. Shasta. The building was christened by Miss Harwood of San Francisco.

Record Ascent Claimed A number of parties climbed Mt. Shasta, and Norman Clyde, and H. J. Stephenson of the Sierra Club are believed to have broken the record for the ascent of the mountain when they reached the summit from the lodge in three hours and seventeen minutes.

Hurt While at Work—Raymond Carson, local high school boy, suffered a deep scalp wound while working in the woods recently. He was felling a tree when his axe caught on a limb and rebounded, inflicting a deep cut in his head. Raymond was brought to town and medical aid was administered. He expects to be able to return to work within a week.

Accident Victim Recovered—Mrs. Erickson, whose hand was badly lacerated in an auto wreck near Ashland the 4th was discharged from the Community Hospital today. Mrs. Erickson suffered a shock, which, with her cut hand, made her condition serious for a time.

RETURNS FOR VISIT AFTER LONG ABSENCE

Roscoe N. Nickerson, whose father was superintendent of the Klamath Indian agency 46 years ago, is a visitor in Ashland today, being en route from a visit with his family at San Francisco. The visitor last saw Ashland and the Rogue River Valley 38 years ago, and was then a boy of 10 years. He recalls, however, that Ashland was only a village of a few hundred people and that the Rogue River Valley was only sparsely settled. "I am all but dumfounded at the remarkable changes that have taken place. There was no Medford and the little towns of Ashland and Jacksonville were vying for supremacy of the valley, said the visitor." In talking of his early residence in the Klamath country, he said that Oliver Applegate served as secretary to his father at the agency.

Mr. Nickerson is a minister of the Presbyterian church and has spent the past three years as pastor of the church at Cordova, Alaska. He will return north in a few days and will take up missionary work among the Eskimaux. His work will be confined to the residents of one of the principal islands of the north country. He states that development has been rather slow in Alaska during the past few years, but that renewed activity is being exhibited and that it is a country of wonderful opportunities for young men.

Rev. Nickerson is a brother of W. W. Nickerson, of Medford, with whom he is enjoying a brief visit.

Visits Medford—H. O. Anderson, manager of the Ashland Mills, was a business visitor in Medford today, making the trip by auto. Mr. Anderson reports that the volume of business at the mill still continues to grow.

Allen Antry had the misfortune to turn over his Ford coupe recently, smashing the top.
