AN OLD STORY

It was the same old story of the man who never had had a fire and thought he never would.

It is better to be safe than SORRY

You may be lucky enough to insure the day before the fire but such instances are very rare; make a practice of keeping insured and when you need it you will have it. All good kinds of insurance at right prices. Kindly remember that there is but ter—and butter.

A SAVAGE TIRE "AD" --- WITH COMMENTS. I can't recall whether I've heard this statement at some time or not, but it appears to be true that "we appreciate most that which we understand best"

PRIDE OF THE SAVAGE TIRE TRIBE. The artisan takes pride in doing good things well. Given a correct design, fine raw materials, proper tools, a reputation to sustain, and recognition for work well performed, there is a real incentive to build better than a mere commodity.
