BUILDING INDUSTRY SURVEY IS MADE

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Savings, not only to the building industry and its workers, but to the public generally are expected to result from the activities of a committee on seasonal operation in construction industries, the appointment of which by Herbert Hoover, chairman of the President's Conference on Unemployment, has just been announced by the Department of Commerce. This saving should be reflected in lower relative cost of dwellings and other buildings. The members of the committee are: Ernest T. Trigg, manufacturer of Philadelphia, Pa., chairman; John W. Blodgett, manufacturer, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; John Donlin, president, Building Trades Department; American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C.; L. F. Eppich, president, National Association of Real Estate Boards, Denver, Col.; A. P. Greensfelder, contractor, St. Louis, Mo.; John M. Gries, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.; Otto T. Mallory, public works expert, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Rudolph P. Miller, engineer, of New York; James P. Noonan, president, Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Washington, D. C.; William Stanley Parker, architect, of Boston, Mass.; and Edward Eyre Hunt, secretary. Mr. Trigg as chairman, has called a meeting of the committee for July 10 and 11 to lay out plans for a thorough study of the facts. Previous surveys have indicated that most construction activity is concentrated in seven to ten months of the year, which means that building trades workers can not find work in their trade during several months, and that contractors' organizations and equipment, architects, engineers, building material producers, and others connected with construction, must usually remain idle for similar periods. This idle time represents waste, and direct losses to the construction industries themselves, their workers, and the public. The committee was formed in the hope that by examining the facts and proposed remedies, it might be able to suggest sound solutions, and obtain general cooperation in effecting them. It is the general impression that seasonal building has been due perhaps more to custom than to weather, and it is expected that the investigation will throw light on this and other important points.

"To the points further east, the consumer cost is easily $3.00. "The discrepancy is even worse on the 1922 crop, as the sacks, barrels and cost of handling are worth more than the potatoes on the farm, but the proportion of spread between producer and consumer is the same or greater. "When some of these potatoes are served on dining cars or in first-class hotels, they have forgotten all about their humble beginning and the price per bushel depends on the size of the potatoes. A one-pound potato, which costs $1 a bushel would bring the farmer 1 2-3 cents. If served at the moderate price of 25 cents, the spread is about 1,427 per cent. "The consumer pays for bottled spring water, 25 cents a bottle at retail. The water itself costs practically nothing. "Bearing this in mind, what items can be eliminated from the potato's cost?"

[National Crop Improvement Service.]
"HERE is a little picture that shows how one dollar's worth of potatoes becomes three dollars' worth in New York, Philadelphia or Boston. "The figures are computed by O. M. Kile, in an article in McClure's," says Dennis A. Merriman of the American Steel and Wire company. "Just to start you thinking, consider the joy ride to market in 1920."
