TENDLER THREATENS LIGHTWEIGHT CROWN

NEW YORK, July 17.—While Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, toils laboriously these hot days over sun-baked roads and in the oppressive atmosphere of a none-too-spacious gymnasium up-Ctate, somnolent Philadelphia is slowly awakening to the fact that it has in its midst a potential lightweight king.

In "Lefty" Lew Tendler, former newsboy, Leonard will meet his greatest hazard when they face each other in the squared ring at the Yankee Stadium here on the night of July 23. Tendler ranks only a fraction of a notch below Leonard in the standing of the lightweights. Their clash in Jersey City last July served to demonstrate that conclusively.

The belief prevails in some quarters that Leonard is somewhat "through." His recent fights are cited in support of this assertion. Yet the champion has exhibited possession of the rare faculty of coming through when occasion demands, and both he and his adherents are confident of his ability to "take" the challenger.

Leonard is training as never before in preparation for Tendler. He realizes that it will be no easy task to stand off the Slowtown southpaw for fifteen rounds. Tendler, with the coveted title at stake, also is making no preliminary errors. If he loses again his chance for championship honors will have vanished. The Leonard encounter will be Tendler's supreme effort—the goal at which he has been pointing for years.

It is likely that a crowd second in size only to that which saw the Dempsey-Carpentier fight will wend its way into the great amphitheater the night of the contest, for the memory of that last hectic Leonard-Tendler struggle persists. Between fifty and sixty thousand "bugs" are expected to aid in the "betterment of the sport"—at top prices. No matter which way the fight goes both Leonard and Tendler are assured of winning, for they will clash for the largest purse ever hung up for a contest between lightweights.

RED BLUFF LEGION HAS MODERN HEADQUARTERS

RED BLUFF, Cal., July 16.—Unless the present plans are changed, the Legion is to have modern headquarters for the future activities of the ex-service men in this district, in a part of the old court house to be left standing after the remainder of the structure has been dismantled. A delegation of Legion members appeared before the county supervisors and asked that the north wall of the main building be not removed, as contemplated by the contract under which the structure is being razed.

The ex-service men pointed out to the board the advisability of permitting the wall to remain as support for the stairway leading to the old supervisors' room on the second story of the hall of records building. With this done it is proposed to build a kitchen over the east end of the stairway, in which event the Legion boys and members of other patriotic organizations will have facilities to prepare for banquets and other social affairs. These organizations are to have the supervisors' old room for meetings and other purposes.

The supervisors told the Legion the wall would be retained for the present, at least, and if it looked all right they could see no reason why it should not remain permanently.
