CONCERNING RUSSIA

The most impressive testimony concerning Russia comes from persons, who have lived there, whose lives have been affected by the change from the old to the new regime, and who escaped at last, feeling that they had come out of a prison or a charnal house.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa says that the government of Russia is the most stable in the world with the single exception of the United States. He says that its vast production of grain this year will be a hard blow to the American farmer.

The world will not be alarmed at the prospect of Russia's having a wheat crop. It would expect Russia to such a case to feed its own people, to whom the bread of charity must have become irksome as a steady diet.

COLLEGE WORK REQUIREMENT

The plan tentatively projected by Albany college, of requiring every student to perform some gainful labor, aims at democratization of the undergraduate body in the most effective manner possible.

Young America fortunately has no lessons to unlearn to make either scheme feasible. Of all our popular institutions, the schools are perhaps the least tinged with the snobbery of class consciousness, or false notions concerning the status of labor.

porting through their labor constitute considerably more than a majority in Oregon's chief institutions of higher learning, and nearly a majority wholly sustain themselves in that way.

If compulsory labor goes a step farther, it but recognizes the pedagogical value of work in the general education scheme. The predominance of the working type of student among those who have won especial distinction may well have attracted the attention of the men higher up.

SEEDS OF WAR

Peace comes timidly to the Lausanne conference clad in what is to be known as the Straits Convention. Barring accidents a new chapter opens, probably one of the bitterest international struggles for resources the world ever has seen.

There followed the Seres treaty which only sent the Turk into Asia Minor but authorized the Greek (among others) to follow him there and develop non-Turk colonies. The Turk, like Egbert Floud, could be pushed just so far.

This brief summary is interesting in view of the three great issues on which the conference finally comes to rest. They are: Withdrawal of Allied troops (and eventually warships) from the neighborhood of Constantinople.

The United States objected to confirmation of pre-war contracts which lacked all necessary formalities. Britain and France wanted certain concessions exempted, and so it reads in the Treaty. These may, and probably do conflict with American interests.

KANSAS WHEAT AT 80 CENTS

Reports from Kansas give the information that this year's crop of wheat in that State is worth an average of 80 cents a bushel on the basis of contemporary prices in Chicago.

What is true of Kansas, it is declared, is equally true of most of the Western and Middle Western States in which wheat is one of the principal agricultural products.
