Daily News Letter

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Germany is suffering from "dollaritis."

It used to be the favorite sport of Anti-Americans here to refer to our people as "dollar chasers" and even now one often sees German newspapers refer to the United States as "Dollerika." But the greed for American money evidenced by the vast majority of 60,000,000 people with bitter minds and empty stomachs surpasses anything even seen in the dollar's own homeland. Indeed, if the dollar ever has deserved the cognomen "almighty" it is here and now.

With the dollar begins and ends the vicious circle that spells economic chaos. A close second is the English pound. German industries have to pay for their raw materials which they import from abroad, in dollars and pounds. To do so they must sell daily huge stacks of paper marks. That drives down the exchange. As soon as the dollar rises prices are raised. Up to recently the rise of the prices kept fair pace with the rise of the dollar, but since the dollar has shown itself capable of such jumps as from 80 to 150 thousand within three or four days, the price-fixers have come to anticipate such great and such constant increases that they bring out the proportion with the dollar-rise. The result is that Germany is rapidly becoming one of the most expensive countries in Europe, even for foreigners. Similarly, the capitals of the ruble and the crown, Moscow and Vienna, respectively, are today exceedingly expensive cities.

The discrepancy between the dollar and prices, which formerly was in favor of the dollar, but now is fast turning against it, becomes particularly marked when the dollar falls, as it usually does after a sudden sensational rise. The most graphic illustration of the fall of the mark is given by the Berliner Illustrierte Zeitung under the heading, "A Sad Story in Five Pictures." The first picture shows three hefty bulls standing beside a one-liter milk can, and the outline reads: "For 1,500 marks one used to be able to buy three heads of cattle—today that is the price of one liter of milk (one-fourth of a gallon)." The next illustration shows a magnificent house beside a pair of shoes: "An elegantly furnished villa used to cost 180,000 marks; today it is the price of a pair of good boots."

Then comes the picture of a fine blooded horse, and beside it a horseshoe; the latter now costs what one used to be able to get a racehorse for.

Next is a loaf of bread beside an automobile, and then—perhaps the most graphic—a sewing machine with a spool of thread. The price for the spool today is 12,500 marks, for which formerly one could buy a hundred—100—sewing machines.

No wonder, then, that the dollar has become truly "almighty" in Germany. As this story's written one can get 1,000,000 marks for a $10 bill.

But while the people of Germany—and of Central Europe in general—have a great respect for Uncle Sam's money, as such, the depreciation of their own currency has caused them to lose their sense of proportion. Every workman in German is a millionaire—on his pay day. A year ago a 10,000-mark bill was the largest denomination to be had. Now the Reichbank is printing half-a-million-mark bills, and is getting ready to print bills with six zeros. A thousand marks is a tip to the beff-hop—and a small one, at that, these days.

The result is that people who continually have bills representing hundreds of thousands crumpled up in their pockets have come to think and talk only those figures, and apply this sort of "zeroitis" also to perfectly sound foreign currency. When a German makes a proposition to an American, he usually concludes his preliminary explanation thus: "Now that'll only cost you two or three thousand dollars—a mere bag o'shells (or the equivalent in German: 'Das spielt ja gar keine Rolle'—that cuts no ice at all)."

They juggle thousands in their talk the way a Broadway spendthrift does nickels. When one explains to them that $3,000 represents the annual income of a fairly well-situated American Government employe, they are flabbergasted; they cannot believe it; they think one is joking. That's because they have come to treat the very conception of "a thousand" with contempt. A thousand marks is just enough for streetcar fare.

Cooe Bay lumber shipments first six months 1923 totaled 150,000,000 feet.

$100,000 OFFERED FOR PEACE PRIZES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The Edward Bok peace plan award of a fortune of one hundred thousand dollars may be competed for by any one who cares to try, so long as he or she is a citizen of the United States.

All plans must be submitted to the American Peace Award Committee, 342 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Briefly, the conditions are as follows:

The winning plan must provide a practicable means whereby the United States can take its place and do its share toward preserving world peace, while not making compulsory the participation of the United States in European wars if any such are, in the future, found unpreventable. The plan may be based upon the present covenant of the League of Nations, or may be entirely apart from that instrument.

The competition is open to every United States citizen, whether by birth or naturalization. Plans may be submitted not only by individuals, but also by organizations, national, state, or local.

Every plan must be accompanied by a summary of not over 500 words. The total length of the paper, exclusive of the summary, is not to be over 3,000 words. Manuscripts must be typewritten.

Manuscripts must not bear the author's name, or any identifying sign. Each manuscript must have attached to it a plain sealed envelope containing the author's name and address.

All plans must be received at the offices of the American Peace Award by midnight on November 15 next.

The names of the jury of award will be announced as near September 1, as possible.

MEDFORD DOING BIG BUSINESS IN PEARS

MEDFORD, Aug. 2.—Already six carloads of Rogue river pears of the valley's huge crop have been shipped to the eastern market and three of six cars that were loaded today were shipped each tonight. The packing houses of the city, which have disturbed only by sounds of the box-makers' hatchets for the past few months, have now begun to hum with real activity, and pickers and trucks are getting busy in the orchards. In a week or more picking and packing of pears will be in full swing, already there is a shortage of help.

DEER SEASON WILL NOT BE POSTPONED

SALEM, Aug. 2.—In a restraining order signed yesterday, Circuit Judge G. Bingham of Marion county restrains the state game commission from enforcing the order postponing the opening date of the deer hunting season from August 20 to September 10.

The case will be appealed to the supreme court but will not be passed upon until the court returns from its vacation which will be during the month of August. This means that the commissioner's order will be ineffective at least this year. Walter C. Winslow, a Salem attorney, is plaintiff in the case.

ADDITIONAL REWARD IS OFFERED FOR RUST

RED BLUFF, Cal., Aug. 2.—The sheriff's office here has received notice of an additional reward of $750 for the capture, dead or alive, of Edwin A. Rust, alias B. James, wanted for the murder of Sheriff I. C. Fucker of Brown County, South Dakota, July 1st. The reward is offered by the commissioners of Fucker's home county.

Rust also is wanted in Aberdeen South Dakota, for highway robbery and for breaking jail, in California for theft of an automobile and for breaking his parole from Folsom prison, and at Moberge, South Dakota, on a charge of burglary.

Rust is described as 21 years of age, a machinist by trade, 5 feet 9-1/4 inches in height, weight 145 pounds, has fair complexion, light brown eyes and blond hair.

"SHEIKS" ARE ROUTED

BY NORTH BEND YOUTHS NORTH BEND, Aug. 2.—Peon pants and sheiks with oiled hair do not go in this city. Half a dozen such youths who landed here a few days ago learned this last evening. Twenty North Bend home boys, who objected to the young women being "vamped" by the strangers, gathered in force and as fast as they were found the oiled locks were shorn, the boys being held for the operation.

Pants were rather a delicate subject last night, for it was not known just how many pairs of visitors had brought with them, so they were permitted to retain their fancy trousers, but unless banished within the week, it was said, the pants would be disposed of as summarily as were the raven locks of their owners.

The northbound train this morning witnessed the departure of the luckless youths, riding between the bumpers of the baggage and express cars.
