FAMOUS FRENCH RECIPES

Ragout of Artichokes. A good washday dish is ragout of artichokes—easy to prepare and requires little watching. Clean carefully eight little onions and brown in butter. Clean two tender artichokes and remove the leaves and grassy portions. Cut the hearts into small pieces and add to the onions with about six small potatoes cut into small pieces. Salt, pepper and add plenty of butter. Cover the casserole as tightly as possible. Put on the side of the stove to simmer slowly for one and one-half hours. Serve very hot with the meat course or as a separate dish. One may leave the hearts of the artichokes whole if one prefers.

Tuesday's Meeting Interesting—

The Civic Club held a meeting of more than ordinary interest on Tuesday of this week at the Club House.

At the business session, one of the things voted upon was to allow associate members. During the meeting, a charming and gracious incident occurred in the presentation, by Mrs. Fuller, on behalf of Miss Palmer, two silver teapots for the use of the Civic Club.

These teapots were family heirlooms, and Miss Palmer, in this gift of something of infinite value to her, evidenced her keen interest and devotion to the Club, of which she is so valued a member.

Mrs. B. R. Greer as a member of the Social Committee, accepted the gift in behalf of the Civic Club.

At the close of the business meeting, Miss Alice Hanley of Medford was introduced by the president, Mrs. Wright.

Since this was "Pioneer Day" it seemed fitting that a member of an old pioneer family should speak on "Yesterdays."

Miss Hanley gave a brief historical sketch of this Southern Oregon country, enlivening the address by incidents and stories that only one who knew her subject and loved this country could give.

Woman's part in the early drama played in this valley was emphasized. The first white woman came to the valley in 1851, in December of that year. A woman lectured on "Temperance" in those early days, showing that women then, as now, were interested in the forefront of reform.

In those days, there was a distillery, below the old Eagle Mill. Very interesting indeed was the story of the old Jacksonville, when it was the commercial center of all this country; from Lake and Lane counties to the coast.

The Pony Express was the means of communication with the outside world; later followed by the stage coach, with its pocket underneath, a box perhaps three by six, for the mail.

A bit of the history of "Cayuse George," was sketched and the pathetic story of Mary, his mother told. This poor mother, whose grief was so terrible at the death meted her son, that she cut her hair and placed ashes on her head in token of her boy for burial.

A beautiful tribute to "Pioneer Mothers" was paid, and to the hospitality of those mothers under circumstances that seem quite beyond our power to picture.

Speaking of the coming of the R. R. to the valley, Miss Hanley told the local story current, relative to a valley town.

It seems an overcharge for bacon, a jump from 12 to 26 cents, was so prejudicial to the claims of this town that they lost the road.

Some of Miss Hanley's own experiences were told and proved most thrilling.

She also told of her earliest memories of Ashland; the old grist mill stands out clearly and the Applegate Place, where the S. P. station now stands was one of the show places of the country. The pea-fowls, the elk and the deer, in its park, all these things were pictured in her childish memory.

A most amusing story, of the first Fourth of July festival evidenced the fact that the same interest was taken then, as now, in up-to-date raiment and although far from fashionable centers, echoes were heard and heeded.

To the old pioneers, the story of the hay-wagon; the pretty young girls in dresses, the material for which came from far San Francisco; the hoop skirts that would not fit into space allowed in the float and because of the mothers' insistence were worn willy-nilly may be very familiar; but to those who came later it opens up a page vastly interesting and romantic.

How they overcame difficulties to secure the ice for the Fourth of July drink, going ten miles for it, was related.

The Club, and all who heard Miss Hanley's address, were very appreciative, and felt it was a gracious thing for her to give her time, busy as she is, to do it.

Tea was served by the hostesses the Mesdames Sylvester Patterson,

Edward Barron and A. E. Kinney, dedicating the gift received earlier in the day.

Among the new members who came into the club, was Mrs. Johnny Gruelle, the wife of the author of the popular children's books "Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy."

Luncheon in Medford—

Announcement is made of a luncheon to be given in Medford Monday, by the Greater Medford Club and The County Health Association.

The ladies of Ashland, and particularly those of the Civic Club are invited.

They expect to have three hundred present at the luncheon Mrs. Perozzi is the chairman of the Ashland Committee, and those who contemplate attending, may communicate with her, relative to particulars of time, place, cost and other details.

Club Work to Begin—

The Upper Valley Community Club will open its winter's activities on the third Friday of this month.

The committee appointed last summer to prepare the program for the coming year have completed their work, and are ready to report at this first meeting.

Next week something will be given about the program of the first meeting and the place where it will be held.

Interesting things are expected of this very-much-alive Club.

W. C. T. U. Meeting—

The W. C. T. U. had a called meeting at the Library Tuesday of this week.

Business of grave importance was discussed and the various interests of the organization considered.

One of the things that came before this body, was the yearly program, and a committee was appointed to report at the next meeting, which will be next Tuesday.

The personnel of the committee follow: The Mesdames C. W. Fraley, A. D. Jillson, H. B. Plummer, and O. G. Howard.

The W. C. T. U. meets the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month. The next meeting will be at the library next Tuesday.

A Correction—

Through the omission of a number of words by the machine, the first line was changed in the account of the return of Mr. and Mrs. Mark True and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Tucker. The line should have read "Mr. and Mrs. Mark True and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Tucker returned Sunday evening." Also in the first line of the paragraph relative to the "Triple-Birthday Celebration," "Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Van Natta were host and hostess" should have been the opening phrase.

Royal Neighbors Meet—

Monday evening of this week the Royal Neighbors had a most interesting meeting.

Aside from the regular routine of business there were a number of candidates obligated; all benefit members.

The hostesses had provided delightful refreshments and those did full justice to the dainties.

There was a large number in attendance and the enthusiasm was very marked.

Much interest centered in the discussion relative to the coming Southern Oregon district convention to be held at Jacksonville in November at which Miss Ida Hanson, State Supervising Deputy will be present. There will be a large class initiated at the convention.

All members of this lodge, visiting in Ashland are invited to be present at these meetings.

Very fine floor work will be put on at the Jacksonville convention by all the lodges represented, and this organization is making great preparations for the event.

Further mention will be made later of the work of this lodge.

NEWSPAPER WORK LURES

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene.—Journalism is proving popular with five orientals entering the university this fall. Three are natives of Korea and two hail from India.

Surat Singh Gill, born in Amritsar, India, the trade center of Punjab, is a graduate of the government high school in his native town. Vishna Oak is a graduate of an English school in Bombay.

Duck Soo Chang, ex-editor of Dong-A Il Bo, the leading nationalist paper of Seoul, and Hong Sub Yoon, both graduates of Waseda university, Japan, are entering as graduate students from Korea. Chi Sung Pil, a Korean, was a student in the school of Journalism last year.

Four American students in the school this year were born abroad.

Fred Michel, a freshman, claims Bern Switzerland, as his birthplace. Sol Abramson of the same place was born in Dublin; Fred Goodrich, a journalism senior from Portland was born in Surrey, England, and Alfred Erickson, journalism senior, started his career in Sweden.

LEAKY ROOF?

Very aggravating indeed. Why not a permanent petrolastic bonded roof. Now is a good time to have your roofs overhauled by experienced roofers. I have my roofing equipment here and have just completed laying a built up roof on H. P. Holmes grocery and repaired and recoated Mr. Briggs' property occupied by White House Grocery.

Will be engaged the next few days treating the roof of the Canaps Bldg. occupied by Ashland Daily Tidings. Property owners interested in first class roof repairing and recoating work, are welcome to inspect this work while it is being applied. All architects specify this petrolastic cement treatment for built up and composition roofs. If you want a treatment for your roofs that will stand up it will pay you to investigate this work.

Record-Breaking Haul of Fish

A record-breaking net haul on the Million Dollar pier at Atlantic City brought in over two tons of fish, valued at $2,000. They were mostly weakfish, some of which weighed as much as fourteen pounds each.

It Made a New Man Of Him, Says Dupuis

"Tanlac has built me up to where I look and feel like a different man," recently asserted L. Dupuis, a contracting carpenter, living at 152 1/2 Grand Avenue, Portland, Oregon. "For two years past my health had been gradually failing, and about two weeks ago it just seemed like I had hit the bottom. My stomach got all out of whack, my nerves undone, and I felt so sluggish and lifeless that I seemed to be right on the verge of a complete breakdown.
